Wanda Hawley has proven conclusively that she has that indefinable something that gains and holds the public favor.

Until her voice failed, she gave promise of becoming a successful concert artist. Further work in music being impossible, she entered moving pictures as a leading woman. Such has been her popularity that Realart has made her a star.

Beautiful, with a smiling beauty that makes all who see her happy, the personality of Wanda Hawley has impressed itself indelibly upon the thousands who are delighted with her work. To supplement her charm of face and manner, Miss Hawley is a gifted actress, winning high dramatic laurels in such productions as "We Can't Have Everything," "For Better or for Worse," and "Old wives for New."

Light comedy has always seen her at her best. It is in happy and laughable roles that Miss Hawley is altogether irresistible. Such a part is she offered in "Miss Hobbs," her first Realart starring vehicle. As a man-hating, fad-loving, super-feminist, she is altogether laughable in her attempts to escape the wiles of Dan Cupid, and to aid her feminine friends to "break off their shackles." Of course—but here—we won't spoil the story, which will be unfolded in pictures at the Liberty theater tonight.

The unselfish relinquishment of the greatest hope a man has, simply because he will not let his own love spoil the romance of his dearest friend, gives a tremendous heart appeal to "Overland Red," starring Harry Carey, which comes to the Liberty theater on Sunday.

The picture is replete with the thrill, the excitement, and the beauty of desert life in Western America. There is the same spectacular horsemanship, the lightning gun play and the droll humor that has characterized Harry Carey's former pictures.

Overland Red, played by the star himself, and Collie, a boy he has befriended, discover the location of a valuable mine. They are only tramps. A dishonest sheriff tries to get the information from them.

with whom Collie falls in love. Red does too, but he never lets on, for he would not mar the happiness of his friend and the girl.

There is a stirring climax to the picture when Red avenges the dastardly act of the sheriff who has shot Collie in the back. The subtlety with which Red's final sacrifice is brought out gives a tender conclusion to the picture.

One of the most interesting members of the animal kingdom is the flying frog of Borneo. Its long toes are webbed to the tips, and these act as little parachutes, enabling the frog to leap from the loftiest trees and descend to the earth gradually.

Massage is much in vogue in Japan, and a notable feature of any Japanese town towards evening is the blind masseur as he walks along, announcing himself with his peculiar whistle, in search of work, which he can always find in plenty.

DAVE WILLIAMS IN "OLE, THE SWEDIE"

The possibilities for comedy appear to be great in any play based on the idea of a Swede who has lately come to this country, and who finds himself confronted with many new and perplexing situations.

When a character like Ole is presented on the stage it is a very easy matter to exaggerate and overdo it in order to gain laughs; but no such mistake is made by Dave Williams when he presents the Swedish character. He never for one moment departs from the true to life idea, and the result is a funny play with no low comedy to mar the plausibility.

Yes, it has a plot, there is a villain, a will, a government detective sleuthing around, and several other excellent parts, but they are often forgotten in the contagion of Ole's side-splitting mistakes and the ridiculously funny situations in which he finds himself.

The public loves to laugh and they are certainly granted their desire when they see Dave Williams play Ole the Swede at the Houston opera house on Monday, August 30th. Reserved seats on sale at the opera house.

Mole's Marvelous Appetite.
Incredible stories are told of the mole's appetite, and in order to see if there was anything in them (writes an English correspondent) I tried an experiment. My mole—a matronly lady—weighed three and half ounces. Each item of food that she was given was carefully weighed, and here is her record between 9 a. m. and noon: One frog, three slugs, twenty-four earthworms, a piece of raw mutton, and a bit of cheese, a total of just over four ounces! Some delay followed, as my stock of weighed food was exhausted. Probably by the time I had replenished it she thought it was time for a fresh meal, for she went at it again with no visible damage to her appetite, and before three o'clock she had got through another three ounces, mostly earthworms this time. That was twice her own weight in food in six hours. After this display I gave up the attempt to measure her maximum capacity.

LOCAL FORD AGENCY GETS INCREASED ALLOTMENT

E. R. Danner returned from Portland after signing a new contract, which is perpetual. The present contract signing of all dealers in Portland was necessary since the Ford Motor Co. have the Fordson distribution in connection with the former products.

The allotment for the Danner-Patty Motor Co. for 1929 is 240 cars, which are divided in the following models: Tourings, roadsters, sedans, coupes, and trucks. The tractor allotment is 49 tractors for the same period.

The territory covered by this firm comprises Klamath Agency and Fort Klamath on the north, and all of Klamath county including Malin on the south, and is considered the best territory east of the Cascade mountains, by the Ford Motor Co. branch manager, Mr. Stellywagen. The best testimony to the belief is the fact that he has visited this territory personally and thinks it has a wonderful future, increasing our car allotment accordingly.

The last year's allotment allowed a Ford car to every 74 people in the territory, and the firm had an average of 25 orders on file throughout the year. The present allotment is on a basis of one Ford car to every 40 souls, and will assist greatly in making more prompt deliveries.

The tractor estimate last year was 23 and many farmers made purchases of Fordsons and equipment, which proves the popularity of power farming and its rapid growth. Danner-Patty Motor Co. is very optimistic over the future automobile business in their line. They report the bankers encouraging power farming. They seem pleased to hear a prospect state his position, and always make suggestions that are beneficial realizing that we must increase production for home consumption if we, as a nation, are to keep our place in the sun.

The best evidence of the necessity of motor transportation was noticed by the falling off of all business during our recent gasoline shortage, which reminds us that America is motorized.

The automobile, like a telephone, is a necessity, and one is foolish to attempt to say when they are used for pleasure or for business.

Locally, with the present crops harvested, we will have more money than ever, owing to bumper crops and prices, and in a short while the election will be settled satisfactorily. Then we will again settle down to enjoy real prosperity.

Why not all have the optimistic view that this dealer enjoys.—Adv.
