The Point Makes the Pen

The Tempoint Pen has the point that won't weaken in the strongest hand or strongest ink—

Due to a special hardening process which also gives the gold pen a steel-like hardness and flexibility.

Writes at first touch. The famous Wahl Comb Feed automatically regulates flow of ink for any speed.

Air-tight chamber prevents "sweating" and keeps pen moist for instant writing.

TEMPPOINT
The Perfect Pointed Pen

A fitting writing mate to the Eversharp Pencil, made by the same concern. Made in both Self-Filling and Screw-Join styles. Prices, $2.50 and $3.

WEAK TEAM BUT GOOD COACHING

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Aug. 25.—With the opening of the football season but a month away, followers of the University of Oregon hopes are beginning to admit that prospects for the coming season look as rosy as they did at the end of last year, when ten veterans of the coast champion eleven announced their intention of returning this year.

Two things are going to work wonders for Oregon this year, in the opinion of the close followers of the game: The strong coaching staff gathered together for the Oregon varsity, and the admirable schedule arranged for the team. The coaching staff of the varsity will number five, one of the strongest on the coast. Three coast conference games and one northwest conference game have been arranged for the varsity, in addition to one practice game, and a season-ender with the University of Southern California Thanksgiving day.

"Shy" Huntington will be head coach this year, which will be his third year as mentor of Oregon eleven. During his two years' career at Oregon, "Shy" has lost but three games, and has won three conference championships. In 1918, the one game lost during the season was to the University of California. This game prevented the varsity from winning the coast championship, but Oregon stood at the top of the northwest group.

In 1919, Oregon lost a memorable game to Washington State College, and on New Year's day, 1920, Harvard won by one point over the lemon-yellow warriors at Pasadena. Last year, however, the Oregon varsity won both the northwest and coast conference championships.

In addition to Coach Huntington, the lemon-yellow staff of instructors will number Trainer Bill Hayward, Assistant Coach "Bart" Spellman, "Ken" Bartlett, and "Baa" Williams. Hayward will begin his fifteenth year as trainer of the Oregon eleven.

In Paris a collector bought an antique finger ring in which was figured a lion with sharp claws of steel. From these he received an accidental scratch of which he nearly died. Investigation showed the claws were hollowed and communicated with a small poison receptacle in the ring.

TATTOOING AS A FINE ART

It Reached Its Highest Development in the Marquesas Islands of the South Seas.

Tattooing is an art so old that its origin is lost to historical records, having been practiced when the cavemen went out to club their fellows. In the Marquesas Islands, the most distant and most mysterious of South sea archipelagos, tattooing reached its highest development and there it was the most beautiful form of art known.

For a man in the Marquesas to lack the tattooed stars of terror upon his face and to have a bare countenance upon his face was to be a poltroon and despised by the whole tribe. Frederick O'Brien says in the Century that to achieve a fairly complete picture on one's body meant many months of intense suffering and the expenditure of much wealth.

When white men were cast by shipwreck in the islands of the far Pacific or fled from duty on whalers or warships and sought to stay among the Marquesans they acceded to the honored customs of their hosts and adopted their facial adornment. Once the curious ink of the tattooer has gotten into the skin it is there forever and can never be erased, like the pits of smallpox. The white men, therefore, of Europe and America never again returned to their old homes after settling among these Marquesans and having their faces tattooed.

EGYPTIAN BEADS MOVE BED

Remarkable Manifestations Said to Have Been Made by Ancient Necklaces in Edinburgh.

Some remarkable manifestations, states the Scotsman, have occurred in Edinburgh in association with an ancient Egyptian necklace. The present owner of the necklace, who lives in the west end of Edinburgh, received it from Cairo at the end of 1913.

Recently she decided to get rid of it and threw it into a waste paper basket. That night when near the basket she was startled by the distinct feeling of a hand clutching at her wrist. She afterward heard sounds from the basket as a mouse moving. Examination revealed only waste paper and the glass beads.

She gave the beads to her brother, who on going to bed placed them on the pillow near his head. The necklace seemed to be moved on the pillow during the night by some unseen agency. A night or two later he again put the beads on his bed. He was roused from his sleep by the bed being moved from side to side. He afterward heard the necklace producing a rustling movement. The following night he slept soundly with the necklace in the room. At four o'clock next morning he was awakened by the bed again shaking. Other persons say they had similar experiences with the beads.

George Elliot the Lay Preacher.

A novelist who bases his art on clean-cut ethical formulas is bound to wane in popularity. For special reasons, he may make a strong appeal to his own generation and yet be neglected by the generation succeeding. George Elliot was the eloquent lay preacher of her age. Literary sermons like hers are now out of date. Readers do not care to be told what will happen if they do not do this or if they do that. Similarly Thomas Hardy is certain to suffer in fame. The kind of philosophic determination embodied in his novels is disappearing. If Hardy and George Elliot long survive, it will be in spite of their moral formulas; it will be because readers will be willing to overlook moral formulas on account of the permanently interesting phases of life presented by a master hand in their novels. Herein lies the final test of literary immortality. There is no question about novels like "Tom Jones" and "Vanity Fair," which are not framed on any precise technical theory. They are life itself and its diffused morality.—Wilbur Cross, in the Yale Review.

Spell of the Witch Doctor.

In the twentieth century, according to the report of forward movement survey, there are approximately 129 million people in Africa held in abject fear through the hundreds of thousands of witch doctors who alone are believed to have the power of "spelling out" the evil spirits. The theory of the African native regarding disease is that an enemy casts a spell which enters the body and it must either be spelled out or cast out and this is accomplished by the use of charms which often kill before they have the opportunity of proving their curative powers. The natives of South Africa, the survey finds, depend entirely on witch doctors and herb doctors. For 8½ million native people there are only twenty-three missionary doctors and nineteen nurses. Scattered among the millions, this little band of workers accomplishes wonders. But the sway of the witch doctors is practically unaffected.

Electric Incubator.

The electric incubator is said to be much safer, surer and more economical than the oil-heated apparatus. Current entering the incubator passes through resistance elements in the top of the box; these are arranged to distribute the heat evenly over the 75 eggs below. Double insulating walls prevent the escape of heat, while a thermostat keeps temperature constant. Ventilation is likewise automatic.

SAYS IT WILL BE REAL BOUT

Jimmy McQueen, one of Frisco's most ardent sportsmen, and who totes the reputation of knowing the pedigree and record of every boxer of any prestige whatsoever, was in the city yesterday for the transaction of business with Matchmaker Frank Smith. Until his arrival here Thursday night, Jimmy was not aware that Wild Bill Reed and Earl Ritchie are to be the top-liners in the Labor day card here, and when the information was imparted to him, Jimmy rammed his hands into his pockets, crossed his left foot over his right foot, screwed his left eyebrow upward about three notches, leaned back against the refreshment bar of the Smoke, and thus, having assumed his characteristic informative pose, disgorged himself thusly:

"What? You say you got Wild Bill lined up against Earl Ritchie for that Labor day card in this burg? Well, take it from little Jimmy, it'll be some scrap, 'specially if those two wallpapers are in condition to 'go.' An', say, did you ever see Wild Bill when he wasn't in condition an' rarin' to go? That boy's real and only name is Scrap, and the name's no misnomer, either. He'd scrap at his own funeral, just to convince the mournin' public that he never was a dead one. He's gone up against the best boys in the business, and he's made 'em all hit the ball from the gong to the finish. Wonder to me he isn't goin' up against Jack Dempsey. Probably lacks a manager with a noodle but, anyway, when he and that guy Ritchie pump mits with each other on Labor day, there's a-goin' to be some encounter I'm a-tellin' you. Ritchie's some ring-master himself, probably fades Wild Bill a little at that—at least that's the information I've got stored away in my little fightin' 'cyclopaedia. 'Wish I could be here to see the mulling, 'cause it's goin' to be one grand, gladsome, little old meleé, take it from me."

Some recommendation that, coming from Jimmy McQueen, but it is just more evidence that Matchmaker Smith had his head with 'him the day he signed these big boys for the Labor day program. Both mixers are in the midst of a consistent period of training, and they assert that they are going to give the public the benefit of every ounce of fighting energy they possess when they meet here on the evening of September 6.

Progress

Building is very active in Klamath Falls. New homes are springing up everywhere. And a great many of them were made possible by saving accounts started years ago.

Opportunity looks at your Bank Book before it knocks at your door.

It is the size of a man's savings, rather than the size of his earnings, that indicate his success.
