ANOTHER NEW BUILDING FOR OREGON CAMPUS

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Sept. 1.—The fourth new building to be erected on the campus of the University of Oregon this year has been started, and is expected to be completed early next year.

Rapid progress is being made on the other buildings under construction on the campus. The woman's building is the nearest to completion, practically all the outside work having been completed.

A large gymnasium forms the center part of the building, with ample locker facilities below. In the west wing, there is a swimming pool in the basement, while the two upper stories will be composed of classrooms and offices.

Work on the upper structure of the second unit of the woman's dormitory has already been started, and it is planned to have this building completed as soon as possible in order to accommodate the increased enrollment of women expected next year.

The completion of the present building program of the university will bring the total of buildings located on the campus at Eugene to 23.

HARDING FAMILY TREE REVEALED

EAST HAMPTON, Conn. Sept. 1.—A Bible now owned by A. W. Sexton of this town, and which once was the Amos Clark family Bible, shows by its birth, marriage and death record pages that Senator Warren G. Harding, the Republican Presidential nominee, is a direct descendant of Nathan Harding, born January 10, 1780, in the Harding home on the old Harding Road in Middle Haddam, Conn.

Nathan Harding married Philena Clark in Middle Haddam on August 11, 1802. They had twelve children of whom one was Abner Clark Harding, born Feb. 10, 1807. Abner be-

NO AGREEMENT YET ON IMMIGRATION

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—Press reports from Tokio, via Honolulu, that an agreement was reached on the Japanese immigration question are apparently premature. Officials at the State Department today said the discussions had not passed the state of informal conversations, for the purpose of reaching an agreement on the principal issues.

PERSIAN LAMBS FROM TURKESTAN THRIVE IN CANADA

The lady who covets a Persian lamb coat will soon be getting hers from western Canada. A new line of agricultural activity in Alberta and British Columbia is raising Karakul sheep, the animals whose young produce the fur variously known as Persian lamb, astrakhan and karakul. This breed, but little known on the American continent, was first introduced into the United States in 1912 direct from Bokara, Turkestan, and the following year small herds were established in Alberta and British Columbia, Canada, where they have thrived and increased in numbers.

Recently E. H. Dewley, an inspector for the United States Bureau of Animal Industry, who has a herd of 45 animals near Calgary, Alberta, has located land in the Kamloops district of British Columbia where he intends to establish a similar ranch. He believes this district to be particularly adapted to raising Karakul sheep because its elevation, climate and winter conditions closely approximate those of Bokara, in Turkestan. The Karakul lambs are killed for fur within three days from birth, when the wool is curly, a property it maintains afterwards in the most humid atmosphere. If the animal is permitted to live, the growth gradually becomes straight, losing every vestige of flexure at maturity. The success of the experiments with Karakul sheep in Alberta and
