FRANCE RESENTS ASSERTIONS OF NATION'S APATHY

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—France's "victory of peace" in her reconstruction "nails the lie that her people are not working," Herbert S. Houston, New York publisher, declares after a year of research at Paris, whence he recently returned.

Offering statistics showing remarkable rehabilitation in former devastated regions, where German divisions wrought havoc in industrial, farming and mining sections, Mr. Houston characterizes the recovery of the French people as another "miracle of the Marne." In an article in the current issue of World's Work he says:

"With government support, including loans totalling 9,609,082,916 francs for agricultural and industrial reconstruction in "devastated departments," the French people have reopened 5,345 out of 6445 schools existing before the war; built or rebuilt 28,200 temporary wooden and 16,800 permanent stone dwellings, and erected 28,500 wooden barracks to replace houses destroyed; cleared 3,339,000 hectares (a hectare is about 2 1/4 acres) out of 3,950,000 of barbed wire and trenches; employed 1,500 men in pumping out and cleaning up flooded mines; rebuilt 475 out of 600 railroad bridges, with 80 more in course of construction; reopened virtually all of 1,100 kilometers of canals destroyed and rebuilt 136 wharves and built 28 new ones.

"Today, less than two years from the armistice, the population of the invaded regions has grown from less than 2,000,000 to more than 4,000,000, approximately three-quarters of the pre-war population," Mr. Houston says, adding that the return was "not that of the prodigal son."

American committees have done much to help France rebuild, Mr. Houston declares, adding that introduction of farming machinery to the French peasant probably was America's best contribution.

"As a result to a considerable degree of this mechanical assistance greatly increasing the producing power of the fewer workers, the devastated regions in 1920 will raise enough crops for food," he predicts.

On the industrial reconstruction of France, Mr. Houston asserts that 300,000 workers are now employed in French mills and 2,627 of the 3,508 factories destroyed in the war have resumed production. During the war the destruction in mill centers was very great, 80 per cent of the textile mills in Lille having been destroyed; all 40 mills in Armentieres wiped out; in Fourmies only 50,000 bobbins remained out of 700,000 and Roubaix and Turcoing "had the same degree of destruction."

"So it was throughout the whole industrial region of the north, the great workshop of France," Mr. Houston says. "The tale of rebuilding, now to be added to Frenchmen's annals, will always be a chapter of achievement, almost as important and vital as the defense against the German invasion."

By 1922, Mr. Houston asserts, France hopes to have her mines producing again, with about 8,000 miners working where 17,000 labored before the war. Within five or six years after that she expects to be working up to three-quarters before-war production.

"The lie that France is not at work should be seared on the lips of everyone who utters it," writes Mr. Houston. If she is not at work, how can she be reclaiming her fields, rebuilding her roads and houses and factories and towns, and reestablishing the shattered life of over one-fifth of her territory? The she is doing that, anyone can see who visits France or who takes the small trouble to look up the facts. And she is doing it before she has received the indemnity pledged to her by the peace treaty and re-pledged again and again by everyone of her allies."

RULES WITH IRON HAND

KERRASSOUNDE, Anatolia, Turkey, Aug. 13. (By Mail).—Osman Agha, the newly designated governor of Kerrassounde, is probably the most feared man on the north coast of Anatolia.

When the nationalists selected Osman Agha to impress Greeks, Armenians, Jews and Turks alike into Mustapha Kemal's army, they took into their camp a man who would have been a terrible menace in opposition ranks and who is merciless in executing the orders of the Angora government.

Osman Agha has been for years the self-constituted boss of Kerrassounde. In office or out of office he is master of the local situation. Until recently he was only mayor of the little city. But no provincial governor could give the old bandit chief orders. In fact he always managed to unseat all provincial officials. He transcended walls, metropolitans and bishops. Turks, Greeks, Armenians and Jews fear him alike, but had to obey his orders. He took over property which he wanted without legal right and threw anyone into prison who questioned his authority.

Osman Agha was even a self-constituted regulator of women's fashions. He hated the high-heeled shoes and short skirts which Moslem women copied from their French sisters. Consequently he issued an edict that no Mohammedan woman should wear a heel more than one inch high and that their dresses should come to her ankle. Then he immediately sent word to all the shoemakers and dressmakers that they would be jailed if they executed orders in violation of his edict.

He dried up Kerrassounde by methods as direct as those of the late Carrie Nation. Without warning he went to all the liquor shops and poured all the spirits into the street. It was being sold in violation of Mohammedan teachings. Being a Turk of the old school and a total abstainer himself, he offered no explanation whatever to the wine merchants, who dared not question his authority.

Immoral women became too conspicuous in Kerrassounde. Consequently he ordered that the heads of all such women be shaven. Many of the women left the town. Those which remained disappeared from time to time and many of their bodies were washed up by the sea.

Osman Agha embodies all the tyrannies which Turkish officials exercised over the Christians in Pontus, the Black sea coast of Anatolia, where Greeks have predominated in the chief cities for many centuries. The Greeks of Pontus are buoyed up by the hope that they may soon be protected against Turkish oppression, but they dare not show their joy at the prospect of deliverance. Until many of the Turkish officials responsible for massacres and deportations shall have been punished there will be no peace and security for the Christians in Pontus.

BRAZIL ALSO HAS HOUSING PROBLEM

RIO DE JANEIRO, Aug. 14. (By Mail).—Both federal and municipal governments are about to take action to relieve the shortage of houses here.

In the chamber of deputies, a bill has been introduced providing for a special bond issue of $50,000,000 for the construction of houses for working families. In the Municipal Council a measure was presented providing that all workers' houses built in the next two years be free from the usual municipal taxes.

The federal bill proposes the construction, under the municipal administration, of 30,000 houses in various districts of the capital wherever nationally municipally owned ground is available. It is intended that the houses shall be sold to heads of working families, payment being spread over a period of 20 years. In addition, the bill provides for the construction of two huge apartment houses, for families and for bachelors, respectively, with common kitchens and other communal installations, the rent being placed at a very low figure.

Ted Kid Lewis is to engage in his first battle in America since he won the English welterweight championship from Johnny Basham in London a few months ago at Philadelphia on Sept. 15. He will meet Young Neil, of Allentown, Pa., for eight rounds.

A Classified Ad will sell it.

The custom of putting on a black cap—really a square of black cloth—which judges in England do when sentencing a prisoner to death, originated from the custom of covering the head as a sign of mourning in ancient days. The judge, in putting on the black cap, mourns the fact that he is about to order a life to be forfeited.
