NO. 11801
TREASURY DEPARTMENT

Office of Comptroller of the Currency.

Washington, D. C., July 30, 1920.

Whereas, by satisfactory evidence presented to the undersigned, it has been made to appear that "The American National Bank of Klamath Falls," in the County of Klamath and State of Oregon, has complied with all the provisions of the statute of the United States required to be complied with before an association shall be authorized to commence the business of banking;

Now therefore, I, John Skelton Williams, Comptroller of the Currency, do hereby certify that "The American National Bank of Klamath Falls," in the County of Klamath and State of Oregon, is authorized to commence the business of banking as provided in Section Fifty one hundred and sixty-nine of the Revised Statutes of the United States.

In testimony whereof, witness my hand and seal of office this Thirtieth day of July, 1920.

JNO. SKELTON WILLIAMS,
(Seal) Comptroller of the Currency.

BIRDS HAVE VARIOUS NAMES

Get Cognomens From Habits or Plumage Though Not Infrequently From Song or Call.

Birds are given various names in various parts of the country; some get these names from their habits, others from their plumage, while the song, or call, in other cases is responsible for the nickname of the bird, according to London Answers.

The cuckoo has two mates. The meadow pipit is known as the cuckoo's mate in some parts of the country, because of its habit of always accompanying the cuckoo from place to place throughout its stay in this country. The wryneck gets the same name for a different reason. It arrives in the country about the same time, or a few days earlier than the cuckoo, and therefore the name has been given it.

Little "Bread-and-no-cheese" is perhaps rather a mouthful, but the name is given to the yellow bunting on account of the fact that its simple song resembles these words more than anything else in the world.

"Yaffle" is the name given to that laughing bird of the woods, the green woodpecker, also known by the less cheerful cognomen of rain bird, because whenever it laughs the glass goes back and the rain comes down. In other words, the laugh of the green woodpecker, like the "hee-haw" of the donkey, is considered by many to be a sure sign of wet weather.

The whitethroat has a habit of creeping along the lower parts of the hedges, where the nettles grow, and therefore it has acquired for itself the name of "nettle creeper."

TIRE KNOWN BY MANY NAMES

Not Including What It is Called by Impatient Autoist When it Punctures.

A thing which ties is a tire—say makers of the dictionary. The first purpose of the tire was to tie or band the wheel together. As time passed, the original meaning of the word has been lost sight of and now the tire is the part of the wheel which touches the road and stands the wear and tear of travel.

England and her possessions, except Canada, spells the word "tyre." No less an authority than England's own Encyclopedia Britannica is on record with the opinion that "this spelling is not now accepted by the best English authorities," yet "tyre" persists.

In some of the Spanish-speaking countries, such as Chile and the Argentine, tires are known as "neumaticos." In Mexico they are "lanias." In other places where Spanish is the language, notably Cuba, the correct word is "gomas." In Brazil, where Portuguese is spoken, the name is "pneumaticos."

The French have the short name "pneus" for tires. This is a contraction of pneumatiques. In practically all the Scandinavian countries the Danish word "gummitager"—rubber ring—is used.

Making a Citizen.

You make the citizen by giving him intelligence. He must learn to see things as they are. He must also learn to see the possibilities and rise in power to put them to the test. There is no place for the coward in the march of progress. We need men, "brave men, who dare while others fly." And this means they must have brains and brawn with which to fight life's battles and hold their own in the world. And to intelligence we must add constancy. It avails little to be brilliant if you haven't the power to stick to your job until you make a success of it. Persistence will help you win, when you put your head to work. These are the first things in the making of citizens. The home and the school must work together to produce it.—Grit.

July.

July was originally the fifth month of the Roman year. In the Alban calendar it had a complement of 30 days, which was reduced to 31 and then to 30, and it stood thus for many centuries.

At length Julius Caesar restored it to 31. He felt a personal interest in July, as it was his natal month. After the death of this great law-giver and reformer Marc Antony changed the name from Quintilis to July, in honor of Caesar's family name, in order to note that as the sun was most potent at this time so was Caesar the most powerful potentate who had ever lived. Our Saxon ancestors called July "Hey Month" because they usually moved their hay at that period of the year.—Chicago Journal.

Black Hole of Calcutta.

This name was given to an apartment in Calcutta in which a party of English were confined on the night of June 20, 1783. The garrison of the fort connected with the English factory at Calcutta was captured by the Nawab Siraj-ud-Daula, who caused all the prisoners taken to be confined in a room 18 by 14 feet 10 inches. This cell had only two windows, obstructed by a veranda. Of the 150 people who spent the night in a horror of thirst, heat and agony from pressure, only 23 survived the experience.

Natural Explanation.

"Why is it that the dark horses in a political convention always keep so quiet?"

"Because under the circumstances, the word with none of them can be say."

ARMIES MOVED BY MAP, NOW IN MUSEUM

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—One of the most interesting exhibits of the thousands in the world war collection now being gathered at the national museum is the "Order of Battle" map used by General Pershing in directing the movements of the American forces in France. The wall map, 8 by 10 feet in size, together with the walls, floor and furniture of the room in which it hung at American headquarters at Chaumont, was transferred to the museum by the war department at the request of the general.

The map was brought to Washington and installed in the museum by the sergeant and three enlisted men of the headquarters staff who kept it corrected and guarded it throughout the war. At Chaumont the map, when not in use, was concealed by a sliding section of wall which is installed in the same manner in the museum.

The map shows in a vivid fashion the exact situation at the hour the armistice was signed with reference to the strength and location of all divisions, both enemy and allied, on the western front, the correct battle-line, the names and location of commanding officers and locations of headquarters and army boundaries. There also is a considerable amount of detailed information regarding the American divisions, as for instance the percentages of fresh and tired troops and the length of time the various units had been in the line or in reserve.

The war collection has already assumed such proportions as to make necessary some new arrangement for housing it. Many of the exhibits are now crowded into the ground floor of the new national museum building while others are in the old building and a few of the artillery pieces are in the open air awaiting the construction of suitable shelter. William DeC. Ravenel, the director of the museum, says congress probably will be asked at the next session to provide a building for the collection which is of great historical value.

The airplane exhibit includes all types of American and French planes used extensively in combat, pursuit and bombing work abroad and several specimens of captured enemy machines. There are also on exhibition many types of airplane motors. In addition to the world war aviation section the museum contains the original Langley and Wright models.

The collection of American army medical equipment, furnished by the war department, is practically complete and includes the various types of operating and X-ray equipment used in base hospitals and field and advanced base stations, a large variety of surgical instruments, ambulances and military dental equipment.

One entire section of the collection is devoted to exhibits showing the inception and development of the gas mask. Other exhibits include the great 60-inch searchlights used in the field, the field artillery, machine gun and rifles of the uniforms, field equipment and medals of general officers, subordinate officers and privates of all the allied countries and Germany and Austria. There also is a collection of articles manufactured entirely of paper by the Germans. These include paper, twine, paper cloth, feed bags, artillery packs, water buckets, blankets, kit bags, saddle bags, canteen covers and knapsacks.

Many other exhibits are being received daily from the army and navy and the director hopes to make the collection the most complete world war museum in existence.

In the city of Brussels an exhibition of snow statuary is given every winter by the art students, who transform one of the public parks into a natural gallery, and display specimens of their work which are really remarkable.

The playing cards of the fourteenth century differed materially from the pack in use today. The Venetian pack, for example, consisted of 78 cards—23 of them marked with emblems of various kinds, and 55 with numerals, divided into four suits of 14 cards each.
