SHOW LOCATION OF WATER

Signs on Painted Desert in the Southwest Guide Travelers to the Precious Liquid.

Travel off the beaten paths in the famous Painted Desert of the Southwest would be a dangerous matter were it not for the stone sentinels set up by the Navajo Indians to direct the stranger traveling through that country, where once there was water in plenty, but where now are only the dry beds of rivers.

These sentinels are piles of rocks, as high as a man, located on rises of ground where they may be readily seen. In the body of the monument is placed a projecting rock which is arranged to point the direction to the nearest spring or waterhole. If one follows the direction indicated, although he may have to proceed a considerable distance, the precious water will always be found.

Frequently it is only a very weak seep supplying no more than a few cups in an hour. Or it may be a pool located deep in the recesses of a rocky ledge and collected from the snows of the past winter. Sometimes it is situated in an out-of-the-way place, and then there may be two, or even three smaller monuments erected along the route designated.

Also along the way there may be arrows cut in the rocks or crooked grooves symbolizing the windings of a brook or signs of various kinds which will attract attention. These directions all help to make the way plain and reduce the chance of the traveler becoming confused.

JOIN A "THANK YOU" CLUB

No Initiation Fee and No Dues, and Membership is Open to Every Person.

It's great, the "Thank You" club. No initiation, no dues, no long-drawn-out meetings, and no reports. Anyone can make a quorum to do business. No stated meetings nor any stipulated place of meeting. Anybody can start a "Thank You" club. Beats Overall clubs all to pieces! Lasts longer, does more good, and spreads sunshine.

One carries the by-laws around in his head. The password is "Thank You." And that's all there is in the whole book of rules. That's all it means, the "Thank You" club—just a thank you for the little services performed daily as well as the big ones. A thank you is more appreciated by many people than a tip, which, by some, might be considered an insult.

Start a club some morning. Watch your club grow. Good ideas spread. Try the club for one day. It may make you a life member. And the "thank you" exchanges will increase and radiate like ripples from a stone thrown into the millpond.

There's a big field in this world for "Thank You" clubs. Their members take the edge off rough places. If "Thank You" is the password, the genuine smile of service is the open reward for its application.—Haverhill Gazette.

Fake "Josses" for Travelers.

Canton and Amoy supply travelers and curio dealers with quantities of hideous idols known in the trade as "josses." They are fakes pure and simple, having no relation to any oriental religion. Ingenious designers have produced a great variety of hobgoblins—such, for example, as the "hunger god," with the face of a tiger and ferocious fangs.

Most of them are of clay, turned out from wooden or metal molds, dipped in molten glass and allowed to cool. A fairly expert Chinese workman can make 100 in a day at a cost of 3 cents apiece. The European or American tourist pays $5.

Real josses may be worth a lot of money, especially if carved out of jade. This is a material greatly prized in the orient, and a jade idol 15 inches high, and as many centuries old, has been known to sell for $10,000 in Canton.

White and Red Roses Blended.

The most interesting combination of roses is that of the union of the white rose of York with the red rose of Lancaster after the long struggle between those two factions when the red rose might have represented the blood that was shed and the other one the condition of the people bled white by the war. To cement the peace Henry of Lancaster wedded pretty Elizabeth of York and a clever gardener of old England blended the two roses and made a new one, striped red and white. We have it in this country where it is still called the York and Lancaster, though not every beholder realizes the story held in its fragrant petals.

The Cockade.

The cockade, an ornament or knot of ribbon or rosette of leather, was originally worn as a military or naval decoration or as the badge of a political party. Cockades made of ribbons of the national colors were worn by soldiers of the national wars of the eighteenth century. In England after the expulsion of the Stuart dynasty the white cockade became the badge of the adherents of the exiled house in opposition to the orange of Nassau and the black of Hanover. From the hats of the military it passed to those of the civil servants of the crown. Then as headgear changed the use of the distinction was confined to servants. The black cockade on the hats of officers' servants was introduced by George I.

HALF MILLION WORKERS TAKE PART, PICNICS

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 11.—More than 500,000 persons have this year attended the picnics given by industrial concerns in Pittsburgh to their employees, according to the estimates of amusement park managers and a number of the most important are yet to be held.

Arrangements for these great gatherings of workmen and their families are on a colossal scale and carried out by an efficient organization of trained engineers and office men. It occasionally happened, as in the case of the Clairton plant of the Carnegie Steel company, that no picnic ground was available. So the engineers selected a nice bit of virgin forest not far from the town, built good roads in and through it, erected merry-go-rounds and other traditional amusement devices, built refreshment booths and a dancing platform and when the thousands of steel workers and their families reached the place for a day's enjoyment, they found it as complete as if it had been standing for years.

The quantity of provisions required for the entertainment for a big plant and its workers astounded those who know little of such enterprises.

At one industrial picnic held here recently three tons of beef and four tons of boiled ham were required for the sandwiches. Five thousand loaves of bread were used, three men working fifty hours to cut it to size.

For the 45,000 persons who attended this picnic there were issued 65,000 free tickets for park amusements; 15,000 American flags and 40,000 toy balloons for children were distributed and 45,000 souvenir buttons were given to the workers and their families, while 50,000 knives, forks, spoons and plates were sent to the grounds for the picnic supper.

To provide this feast the company gave 80,000 pickles, 24,000 rolls, 8,000 pounds of baked beans, 1,800 pounds of coffee, 50,000 pounds of frankfurters and 1,500 gallons of ice cream. The food was cooked in an oven erected on the ground by the company's workmen.

picnics of the year, a number of others have equalled it and many more have come within striking distance.

Mill managers and corporation executives look upon the industrial picnic as one of their best weapons against unrest and gladly give to their employees the day for enjoyment, while bearing all the expenses, in many instances even to transportation to and from the parks.

AT THE THEATERS

Robert Z. Leonard, who directed Marion Davies in "April Folly," her new Cosmopolitan Production, released as a Paramount Artercraft picture, showing at the Star Theatre tonight, attributes the beautiful star's success on the screen to her previous experience as a dancer and on the stage.

"A woman who has been a professional dancer," said Mr. Leonard recently, "will walk well, carry herself gracefully, and handle herself in a polished manner before the camera. Women who have had experience on the legitimate stage are always far easier for a director to handle than those who have not. They do the correct thing instinctively. Their work on the stage puts them at least five years ahead of the actress who has appeared on the screen only. Miss Davies is the finest illustration of both of these statements that I know."

"April Folly" was adapted from Cynthia Stockley's famous magazine story of the same name. It tells the story of a thrilling pursuit for a noted diamond and of a pretty girl who was not quite what she seemed. Conway Tearle is the leading man.

Anita Stewart is shown in practically two characters in "Mind the Paint Girl," a First National feature which will be shown at the Star Theatre on Sunday.

First she appears as the little slum girl, who sweeps out her father's shop and runs errands and does any handy work to make both ends meet for her parents, who are very poor. As the shop girl, she is shown in more or less ragged dresses, with her hair hanging down her back and hats of impossible styles. Ignorant and untutored, yet she has a strong heart and battles her way among the roughs of the neighborhood who are very much in love with her pretty face, and try to steal kisses as chance presents itself.

Full of ambition to get out of the sordid neighborhood and to win the better things of life, she takes the opportunity of her father's death to move. Then she applies for a place on the stage. After much discouragement, she finally gets a place in the chorus. Then through the accidental spilling of a bucket of paint, she gets an inspiration, and suggests the song, "Mind the Paint," to a composer. She is given the opportunity to sing it and makes the hit of the season.

Then as the famous music hall girl and the world at her feet, she is presented in beautiful gowns of every description, gowns that every woman will want to study to see the latest in styles and the perfection of their artistry.

MEXICO BUILDING UP ARMY AND NAVY

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 25 (By Mail)

Purchase of two gunboats and six destroyers is being considered by the Mexican government, according to General Plutarco Elias Calles, secretary of war and marine.

"I understand that destroyers can be bought from the United States government for $20,000 each," General Calles told a group of newspaper men recently. "In view of the success with which these small craft were used during the war, I believe that it would be advisable for the Mexican government to buy three for the Atlantic service and three for the Pacific."

General Calles and his staff are at work on a plan for universal military service, with which it is expected that the determined figure of 50,000 soldiers can be raised.

"I believe that the best military age is from 21 to 22 years," the war minister said. "At this age men are least selfish and best able to get along with each other, regardless of the walks of life from which they came."

"In the meanwhile," General Calles added, "the mustering out of troops is progressing briskly and thousands of soldiers are being returned to civil life, where the government believes they can best serve their country by tilling the farms and manning the factories. The privates and the higher officers are cooperating in the movement, it is said, the only opposition coming from a few petty chiefs."

Never One Like It Before

NEVER before a range that so lightens and brightens the duties of housewives.

Never before one so practical, durable, efficient—so saving of fuel, of labor—so replete in all things making for perfection.

And NEVER a cooking range so downright beautiful—the crowning achievement of over 40 years of manufacturing experience.

The Blue Beauty is covered with a heavy coat of blue porcelain enamel—enamel baked for keeps on a cast iron body durable as the rock of Gibraltar. Everlastingly rust-proof. Never needs to be blackened!

Sanitary, cleaned with cloth and water, the most remarkable range ever seen! And the most economical.

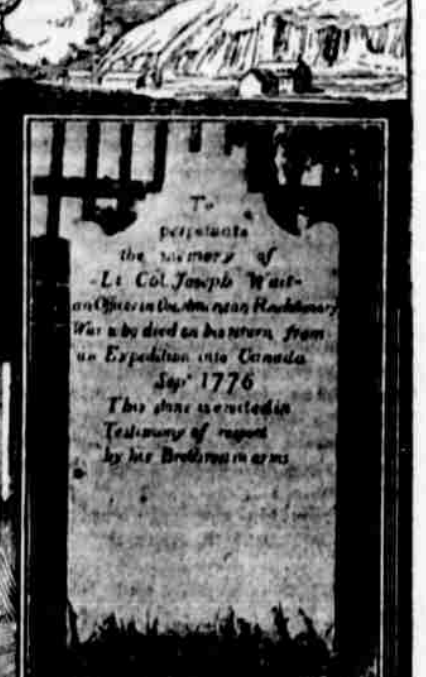

Give it the eye-test. That's all we ask.

A VERMONT MARBLE TABLET OF REVOLUTIONARY DAYS

This slab was raised on a Vermont farm soon after the Declaration of Independence was signed. These two pictures represent the faces of the slab as they appear today. They will bear study, not alone on account of their timely interest, but because they prove that Vermont Marble is thoroughly durable.

I have just received a carload of this material, also one of Barrie Granite, finished in the most approved designs and I invite your inspection of the work at 1040 Main street.
