 "I AIN'T MAD AT NOBODY"

AT THE THEATERS

"No. 99" is the newest treat awaiting local picture-lovers who delight in viewing fascinating J. Warren Kerrigan slip on the silver sheet in his unmatchable style.

This show is the attraction at the Liberty Theatre tonight.

Arthur Penryn, a convict from Sing Sing who has been unjustly sentenced, escapes. He hides himself in Cynthia Vivian's boudoir, where she discovers him. Her sympathies are enlisted, and she suggests that he remain in hiding at her home, posing as Phillip Valentine, a friend of her brother, who is absent. At this house party are John Brandt, the man who sent Arthur to jail, and Renee Eberington, and old love of Arthur's. Arthur intimidates Brandt into silence, and Renee does not hand him over to the authorities because she still loves him. Brandt is a suitor for Cynthia's hand, but Arthur and Cynthia quickly fall in love.

The butler announces the real Phillip Valentine, and Arthur has him locked in the garage. Suspensions are aroused when Arthur is caught with a tray of food for Valentine. Just as officers are about to discover Valentine, Arthur and Cynthia jump into a sedan and speed away. Arthur drives to the man whom Brandt paid to "frame" Arthur, and send him to jail. He forces the fellow to inform Brandt. Brandt, instead of Arthur, is placed in the son of Henry Penryn, the coal baron. And with his troubles at an end the handsome hero leaves to begin life anew with Cynthia.

"Big Happiness" contains a theme so real and vital that it will find a responsive chord in everyone who sees it, and will be seen at the Liberty Theatre tomorrow.

In "Big Happiness" there is the tremendous struggle of three persons, twin brothers—unlike except in face and form—and a girl, whose lives, destiny has interwoven in a strange manner.

The girl married to one brother—to save her father from financial disgrace—finds herself unwittingly the victim of her husband's lust for gold, which causes him to ask his brother to take his place on the night of their marriage. The brother does not realize the seriousness of the situation and consents to the unusual scheme.

Gradually these two, the brother and the wife, fall desperately in love with each other. Taunted by the knowledge of his falseness, the brother is about to make a clean breast of it, when word reaches him that the girl's husband is dead. But his happiness is short lived for the husband returns, ill with fever. Then comes a dramatic climax.

CORRECTION

In the report of the prizes awarded for the best floats in the Labor Day parade, The Herald was misinformed as to the winner for the trophy for the best display float, credit having been given to J. H. Garrett & Son. The error was due to the fact that the Mack truck carrying the load is sold by Garrett & Son. The float, however, was the idea of John H. Coffman, who manages the trucking business for Coffman & Peyton. The logs were loaded by him, assisted by the truck driver, Frank Jones.

COX CONTINUES ACCUSATIONS OF 'SLUSH' FUND

EN ROUTE WITH COX SPECIAL, Sept. 11.—Governor Cox is threatening to split the state of Washington wide open with revelations as to the slush fund activities of the Harding wing of the Republican party. His answer to a question asked by the Spokesman-Review on the first page Friday and his action in making the letter public came like a bolt out of a clear sky.

Curiously enough the letter, supplied to Cox by a Republican, was used as an answer to a Republican paper. It is understood to be part of the secret data given the Ohio governor by Hroy Slater, former state chairman of the Progressive party in Washington. As a result of the commission of the documents, Governor Cox announced that Editor Coales of the Review and Thaddeus Lane, chairman of the Washington ways and means committee, will be subpoenaed to appear before the senate investigating committee at Chicago and there answer the questions asked them by Cox.

"When I arrived in town this morning I found that a question had been propounded to me in the Spokesman-Review," the fighting Governor opened up. "In this publication Thaddeus S. Lane, chairman of the ways and means committee in this state denies my statement that the quota out here was $50,000."

Cox proved his assertion by exhibiting a letter written by A. S. Stewart, state treasurer, to an unnamed Spokane man which in part read as follows:

"I am in receipt of a letter from Republican national headquarters asking that we raise $60,000 for the presidential campaign. In years gone by the national headquarters has contributed to this state but it would seem that our state is now wealthy enough, and I might interpolate under a Democratic administration, and has so many large industries that we should be able to act instead of receiving aid. Large industries and small, I feel, will give freely in an effort to turn back the government to the Republican party. In consultation with some of the leaders of the party here we think it will require a fund of $200,000 to carry us through from now until the end of the campaign. If our funds come in sufficiently we could probably send $50,000 to national headquarters."

Governor Cox continued: "I do not want to be outdone by my fellow publisher and if he asks me a question I think I ought to ask him one:—Mr. Coales, I want to know whether you did not attend a meeting on March 31, 1920. It was held here. I ask you whether it wasn't in the breakfast room? I ask you whether it wasn't in the breakfast room? I ask you whether at that time several thousand dollars was not subscribed as a starter? I ask you whether among the subscribers was not F. R. Culbertson, indicted for profiteering? I ask you Mr. Coales whether R. B. Patterson wasn't there—also indicted for profiteering—and whether he did not make a contribution? I ask you also whether E. T. Coleman, Spokane banker and Republican candidate for governor, was not there and whether he did not make a contribution? We want the facts about the state of Washington and tonight I shall wire my representative at Chicago asking him to subpoena Mr. Coales and Mr. Lane. I will ask them to hold up their hands in Chicago and tell the truth and I will abide by the truth."

DOUGLAS FIR RECOMMENDED FOR FIRE RESISTENT DOORS

Underwriters' laboratories of Chicago, maintained by the National Board of Fire Underwriters, has recently made tests of the fire resistant properties of Douglas fir at the request of fire door manufacturers.

As a result of this test the underwriters' laboratories have recommended that Douglas fir be listed as standard for the making of cores in tin-clad fire doors.

As a result of this test by the insurance interests it is anticipated that a new field of market exploitation will be opened to fire manufacturers.
