TRUCKS PROVE THEIR WORTH

The tremendous superiority of modern pneumatic tired motor trucks over farm horses was directly proved to 25,000 Colorado farmers recently when a motorcade of 20 trucks of various makes invaded 11 agricultural counties on a demonstration tour of 750 miles that lasted two weeks.

The Rocky Mountain Auto Trade association, under whose auspices the tour was made, challenged the farmers, along the route to produce a hauling job the trucks couldn't handle. The farmers took up the challenge in earnest, but failed to "stump" the trucks, although the big freighters were often called on—and did—perform feats that amazed even their own drivers. For example, a two-ton truck, carrying a 2,100 lb. overload of coal, successfully pulled over an 11 per cent grade through blow sand which no other motor vehicle had ever conquered, on a $100 wager by a farmer living nearby that the truck could not get through.

The trucks of the caravan averaged 750 miles—a distance equal to the entire tour route—in demonstration work, and half a million ton-miles of freight were hauled free for the farmers. Picking their way across plowed fields with the ease of an eight cylinder sedan tooling along a city boulevard, the powerful trucks carried big loads of grain from combines and threshers direct to elevators miles distant, performing in from one to three hours hauling jobs that would take the farmer's best team a full day or longer to accomplish. Livestock, lumber, coal, barley, rye, oats, wheat, potatoes, cement, shingles, plaster, kerosene and even church pews were transported between farms and railroad shipping points. In many cases the loads handled by a pair of the trucks in a few hours over distances as high as 80 miles would have kept all of the farmer's horse equipment busy for days.

MANY TREE SPECIES

EUGENE, Ore., Sept. 15.—An example of the extraordinary number of diversified woods grown in forests of the state is found in report of a forest examiner in this territory. In the Cascade national forest, within a distance of 12 miles he found 14 species of coniferous trees. They included western yellow pine, western white pine, sugar pine, lodge pole pine, knob cone pine, Douglas fir, western hemlock, incense cedar, western red cedar, Engelmann spruce, white fir, red fir, mountain hemlock and western yew.

PERSONAL MENTION

M. F. Orr, a resident of Olney, returned last night from Zanesville, Ohio, where he had been spending the month with friends and relatives. This was Mr. Orr's first visit in 28 years to his old home, but he was nevertheless glad to be home once more. He said this morning that labor conditions, prices, and living problems were very much the same in the middle west as they are in Klamath County.

Mrs. James Foster left yesterday morning for San Francisco where she will visit with friends.

Mrs. W. E. Akema is in town today from Chiloquin, and is registered at the White Pelican hotel.

R. W. Tower and family were county seat visitors yesterday from their home in Keno.

Will Houston returned yesterday with a big buck from a successful hunting trip.

Dr. Goble is moving his family from South Riverside, where they have been living for the past year, to the K. D. apartments.

W. W. Hall is a business visitor here today from Chiloquin. He is registered at the White Pelican hotel. James Lytle left this morning for San Francisco and Sacramento on his two weeks vacation.

E. T. Fisk arrived last night from Los Angeles and is a guest at the White Pelican hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. August Liskey were in town yesterday from their ranch in the Malin section. They report that they have started their harvesting there and that the crops are fine. The Liskeys also own a farm at Midland, but the crops were not so flourishing there this year.

Reports from the sheriff's office say that Klamath county tax payers have only until October 5 to pay their taxes.

Mark Hannah is a city visitor from Portland. Mr. Hannah may make his home in Klamath Falls this winter.

Mrs. George Jones is in the city for a few days from her home at Castella, California.

Austin Case left this morning for Corvallis, where he will prepare to take up his studies at the Oregon Agricultural College.

Mrs. J. D. Mann, who has been here from Salem for the past month visiting her daughter, Mrs. D. M. Smith and family, returned this morning to her home in the valley. Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Langell, who have been in Klamath Falls for the past two days, left for their home in Bay this afternoon.

Earl Mack was a passenger on the train this morning for Corvallis, where he expects to enter the agricultural college.

John Hendry, insurance adjuster, left for Portland this morning after a business visit of several days, made necessary by the burning of various buildings in the Houston fire.

Fred Page, of Page and Son, commission merchants of Portland, is in town today attending to business matters. He is one of the owners of the Page and Stratton building, which was damaged in the Houston fire.

H. J. Ticknor of Langell Valley was in town this afternoon attending to business matters.

Thomas Segal and small son were town visitors this morning from their ranch home near Merrill.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Withrow left this afternoon for Rocky Point in order to be on hand when the duck season opens.

Paul Robertson and wife have arrived from Seattle, Washington, to make their home in Klamath Falls. Mr. Robertson will be interested with his father, W. H. Robertson, in the Klamath Falls steam laundry.

Word has been received here that Jimmy Sheehy, who acted as city editor of the Herald last summer, has gone to Colorado, from Portland, for his health.

Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Mortenson left the first of the week for Portland for a week's visit.

Dr. George I. Wright reports the birth of a baby girl to Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Grohs, of Rimrock Ranch. The baby was born in this city yesterday.

COX FOISTS FALSE SPECTER TO FORE IN CAMPAIGN TALK

By William Hoeter

May one who was more or less intimately associated with Theodore Roosevelt in the last fifteen years of his life say a word in regard to the developing tendencies of the pending presidential campaign?

Governor James M. Cox, the Democratic candidate, with increasing frequency is using the name of Colonel Roosevelt in his speeches, as of one from whom the Governor has derived his inspiration for this momentous campaign, and whose support of Mr. Cox's so-called policies would be forthcoming were Roosevelt alive. At least, Governor Cox is at pains to make it appear that it is into his hands that the torch borne by Colonel Roosevelt was entrusted when the latter passed on.

Addressing the Ohio Democratic State Convention at Columbus on August 17th, among other things Governor Cox said:

"Need I remind you that it was in this State that Theodore Roosevelt, that great American, made his speech proclaiming his creed, not that the judges alone should be recalled, but that the judicial procedure itself should be subject to recall."

Acknowledged Error.

First and foremost, no man who knew Theodore Roosevelt well, and was proud to follow his leadership, needs to be told that he lived to realize the error of that specific doctrine which Governor Cox now drags from the political limbo of dead things.

But aside from this, the one outstanding note in Roosevelt's great career was his uncompromising, tried and true Americanism. He was an American above and beyond everything else. His Americanism arose above all party considerations. He was jealous of his country's honor, proud of its traditions, zealous in the maintenance of its integrity and independence. He labored incessantly to promote that national unity which he believed to be one of the safeguards of the Republic; and his faith in Washington's Farewell Address and in the Monroe Doctrine was such that he regarded strict adherence to the injunctions of both as the two great bulwarks of our national existence. If it were necessary to prove these assertions, columns could be quoted from his writings and speeches in support thereof. But one has only to mention the name of Theodore Roosevelt to bring before the mind a picture of a United States strong, self-reliant and independent.

Roosevelt's Position Clear.

One does not have to ponder long to reach a conclusion, therefore, where Roosevelt would stand if happily he were among us today. The man who in 1916 avowed that the supreme national need was the overthrow of Wilsonism and all that Wilsonism represents would have a mighty well-defined position in the fighting today if he were with us, and he would not be ranged on the side of Governor Cox.

The man who, though age was creeping upon him, demanded as his right that he be sent across to face with the two hundred thousand men that clamored to accompany him, the German menace; and who grimly laid down the plea that by his end on the field of battle the drooping morale of the entente forces might be revived, though the death of a former President of the United States would have had little in common with a candidate whose newspapers proclaimed sixteen months after the sinking of the Lusitania, that "The German U-boats have committed no crime against us."

Remember in what stirring words Roosevelt denounced the Lusitania sinking, and how, throughout all that drab period of American neutrality, his powerful voice rang through the land awakening the patriotism of our people to the culmination in April, 1917, when even Mr. Wilson finally was compelled to face the inevitable.

There is no law against Governor Cox's use of Colonel Roosevelt's name. Nor is there any law on the statute books providing for the crimes which are committed in the name of progressiveness for which Colonel Roosevelt stood. There are Napoleons of finance, of wheat, of oil and of industry, but there was only one Napoleon. There are Jimmies and Eddies and Harries, but there was only one Teddy.

In the campaign upon which we have entered, the name of Roosevelt will be invoked many times in many places in behalf of many things. But few in all the great army of those who followed Roosevelt will be deceived. They know above all other things that the safety and integrity of the United States lay closest to Theodore Roosevelt's heart, and with them his doctrine of stalwart Americanism will prevail against any preachment of progressivism which seeks to lure them from the path of patriotic duty.

MUCH WHEAT SHIPPED

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 15.—Wheat exported from Portland during August was responsible for $3,288,204 of the total figure of $4,809,000 for all exports from this city. The amount of wheat shipped during the month was 1,262,919 bushels. August tonnage nearly doubled the records for 1919.

MEDFORD GETS LOCAL COACH

Announcement has been made by the school board that Otto Klum, former athletic coach of the high school under whose direction three years ago the high school teams won more games and contests and were generally the most successful in the history of that institution, has been engaged to have charge of the athletic teams and to teach history and physical instruction in the Medford high school this year.

The board members and Superintendent Smith felt that they must enlarge the athletic activities and physical education course of the Medford schools, and decided that Mr. Klum was the best man they could get to have charge of these activities in the high school. Charles A. King will continue in charge of the physical instruction in the grade schools and will also be assistant coach of the high school athletic teams.

The announcement that Mr. Klum has been engaged is causing general rejoicing among the high school students, and under his regime it is generally thought Medford high, which had made a pitiable showing in athletic contests the past two years will again come into her own. Mr. Klum, who has been located for the past year at Klamath Falls, is in the city and attended the conference of the board, superintendent and principal last Tuesday night in regard to the athletic policy of the high school.

Through the resignation of Mrs. Sarah K. Ruble of Berthold, Colo., who was hired by the old board and who resigned last Saturday because of her not filling the required qualifications for teacher of French and Spanish in the high school, the board and superintendent was able to make a rearrangement of the faculty members in the high school and the subjects each will teach. One of the changes is that Burton Strock of Denver, Colo., who was hired to have charge of the instruction of the high school band, will teach French and Spanish in addition.—Medford Mail-Tribune.

STAR BOOKS SHOW FOR NEXT WEEK

The Star theater has signed up with the Dark Town Picture of 1920 for shows here September 21 and 22. The representative of this company who has been here the last two or three days promises that the follies will be high class and worth while comedy.

The Star theater has also signed contracts with motion picture producers, for the coming year that should entitle them to the best pictures produced during that period. I. P.
