AT THE THEATERS

The popularity of Zane Grey is not an accident. He alone has truly caught the spirit of the west and has portrayed in unsurpassed colors the period of the pioneer. His depiction of pioneers' virtues, rugged and honest, are delight of thousands of his readers. He has not hesitated to paint conflict and villainy, as is evidenced by the fact that all of his great stories lend themselves so readily to adaption for the motion picture screen.

Zane Grey departed somewhat from his general subject in the selection of the play 'Riders of the Dawn,' which will be seen at the Liberty theater tomorrow. While it portrays the spirit of the west, it is not the play of the pioneer which he tells, but a story of more modern type.

The uplift of an entire community through the faith and belief that "love is stronger than hate," on the part of one little girl plays an important part in "Polly of the Storm Country," in which Mildred Harris Chaplin will be starred at the Star theater Sunday.

As Polly Hopkins, Mrs. Chaplin portrays the role of a girl wedged between a most sordid environment and a burning desire to create and instill happiness in those about her. Polly sees her entire family taken from her by the very people she is trying to aid. Love turns to hate.

"The Woman and the Puppet," Geraldine Farrar's latest Goldwyn starring vehicle, will be shown at the Star theater tonight only. The plot is laid in Spain and centers around Concha, a beautiful and wilful Spanish cigarette girl. A rich man bribes her mother and endeavors to use Concha as a toy, and the girl leaves her home to dance in a wharf cafe. The rich man discovers her dancing, half dressed, for an Englishman. Don Mateo can no longer believe her to be the virtuous maiden who repulsed his advances, but she convinces him that his suspicions are wrong. The lovers are carried through a series of clashes until an understanding is reached.

selves constantly confronted by grave problems. Mr. Duncan appreciated the privilege accorded him of appearing before a representative body of working men, and extended thanks for the invitation extended him.

Various other gentlemen were called upon and responded each according to his views. After the orator had somewhat subsided a suggestion was made that general condemnation of existing conditions would work no good unless accompanied by suggestions tending to betterment. Accordingly, the various city offices were taken up one by one and the following tentative nominations were made:

Will T. Lee was nominated for mayor and at first declined. Mr. Lee stated that the path of the office holder was not strewn with roses. He spoke from experience as a former member of the city council and that unless the executive of a city be given the fullest co-operation by the councilmen and the various officers he would be "just a stick." Ultimately Mr. Lee was prevailed upon to accept the nomination with the understanding that he be free from pledges of any kind and committed solely to the "square deal," to efficiency and economy in public affairs and to the welfare of Klamath Falls.

Choice for Council
W. S. Conkling, president of the central labor council, was nominated for councilman from the first ward. From the second ward, Ed Martin, who was not present, was nominated, and Fred L. Houston agreed in case of Mr. Martin's inability or refusal to run, to make the race. In the third ward, J. C. McCollum was nominated. For the fourth ward, Bert Hawkins was selected as candidate. The candidacy of J. B. Vollmer, in the fifth ward, was unanimously endorsed. Mr. Vollmer is an old time member and ex-secretary of the local carpenters' union and his entry into the race while taken at his own initiative, was naturally endorsed by organized labor.

Scrap Over Recorder
A motion was made that A. L. Leavitt be endorsed for city recorder and the motion precipitated a lively discussion. The duties of the police judge were referred to and usurped prerogatives were also touched upon. Eventually an amendment was adopted by which the meeting specifically placed itself upon record as refraining from endorsement of any person for city clerk, police judge or recorder.

Will Start Petitions
Petitions will be prepared today for the nominees endorsed by the meeting. The meeting adjourned near midnight in order that those due to get up early might obtain some sleep, but the enthusiasm manifested was sufficient to have carried the meeting over into the small hours of the morning.

Representative Meeting
Among those present at the meeting were J. H. Garrett, Fred Houston, County Judge Bunnell, Captain Lee, L. J. Bean, Sam Francis, J. B. Auten, William Templar, District Attorney Duncan, Rev. C. F. Trimble and many other business men and public officials, as well as a thoroughly representative gathering of delegates from the different labor unions.

Marion Hanks and family, Charles Roberts and family, and Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Grosebeck were among Klamath Falls residents who visited the fair grounds yesterday.

PERSONAL MENTION

Give Them "The Water"

You know the old saying "you must give them the water before they can learn to swim?"

Well! That holds equally true in regard to Music and any home without a good piano is not likely to develop musical children.

Parents are now given an opportunity by means of our convenient payment plan to secure that piano at once which leaves no excuse for the home without a piano.

Remember—You must give them the water before, they can learn to swim.

If Disease or Accident Stops Your Income

Disease or accident may at any time totally and permanently disable you and put an end to your earning power. What would you and your family do for an income? How would your home be maintained? Would your wife work? Would your children leave school and work? Your wife might be unable to earn an income—your children might be too young. There is a better way and a sure way.

An Immediate Monthly Income

One of the world's greatest financial institutions will contract to pay you a monthly income, beginning immediately on receipt of due proof that, at any time, you have become totally and permanently disabled, and will pay that income as long as you live. The Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York has recently devised a perfect income plan for policyholders who become disabled. And it is incorporating it, on request, in its Life and Endowment policies.

How It Works

You take, for example, a $10,000 Life form of policy, with the disability provision. Then, if you become totally and permanently disabled:

1. No further premium payments would be required. The outgo stops!
2. You would receive a monthly income of $100 as long as you lived. Immediate first payment, and a check mailed to you the first day of each month thereafter. When you died, the full $10,000 would be paid to your beneficiary, without deduction for the disability payments you had received or for the premiums that had been waived.
3. The cash surrender value and the loan value of the policy would increase from year to year, just as they would if the premiums had continued to be paid and disability payments had not been made.
4. You would continue to receive an annual dividend, of the same amount as would have been payable if premium payments had not been waived—not a reduced dividend.

No Delay!

There must be no delay in your time of need and of trouble. Disability payments, to be of the utmost benefit, should begin immediately and should be made Monthly. "Immediately" doesn't mean in two months, or three or six months, or a year—it means at once!—as soon as the disability is proved. There is then no sudden stoppage of the entire income of the family. The Mutual Life's new disability provision provides just such an income—immediate, monthly, lifelong!

DOUBLE THE SUM INSURED

In the same policy, you may have a provision under which the Company will pay your beneficiary double the sum insured in case of your accidental death, if death occurs within 60 days after the accident. If the policy is payable in a single sum, double that sum will be paid; if the policy is a Life Income contract, payable in monthly instalments, the monthly payment will be doubled.

Complete Protection

In case of your death under one of these complete protection policies your family is protected after your death—you and your family are protected in case you become totally and permanently disabled—and accidental death doubles the insurance. You and yours are guarded at every point.

The Company

The Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York is the oldest legal reserve life insurance institution in the United States, and is one of the greatest and strongest in the world. You cannot find better policies, better service, or a better disability provision. It pays to investigate.
