

PARIS TAXI DRIVERS SEEK PROTECTION

PARIS, Sept. 5. (By Mail).—So frequent has become the murder of taxicab drivers by unscrupulous customers who would deprive them of their day's receipts, that the Parisian chauffeurs are experiencing a nervous crisis.

After three drivers were shot in the back of the head by their patrons, the taxicab drivers asked Prefect of Police Haux to be permitted to carry revolvers and to carry along on the seat with them "a dog of the Great Dane, Newfoundland or mastiff variety." Their request is being discussed at headquarters.

OF SAME RACE

BUDAPEST, Sept. 5. (By Mail).—The Scotch and those Transylvanian Magyars known as "Basklers" are of the same race, according to the conclusions of Professor May Mose of Debrecen university.

Both peoples, according to Professor Mose, are descendants of the same Teutonic tribe that became divided. He holds there are striking similarities in the dialects and customs of the two peoples. It is proposed to use his study in support of the Basklers' demand for independence.

ORDER RESTORED IN KOREA, SAYS OFFICIAL PAPER

SEOUL, Korea, Aug. 17. (By Mail.) For the purpose of "dispelling disquieting rumors about the situation in Korea," the government-general published today a statement saying that there are both the moderate and radical elements among the Korean political malcontents. The former have been in favor of avoiding violent action and reaching their goal by a slow and steady process, according to the statement. The radical section, it is said, opposed such a lukewarm policy and advocated a policy of having recourse to bombs for the consummation of their object.

Finally the views of the radical section prevailed, says the official review, and the moderate elements had to bow to the decision of the radicals. The Koreans, it is said, framed and distributed among themselves various laws such as those relating to a military system and administrative policy and the Dokurisu Shimban, which is their organ, published an article outlining circumstances in which murder is to be justified. The "administrative policy" of the provisional Korean government explaining justification for the use of bombs for the killing of the "enemy" and the destruction of "enemy buildings" and the organization of bands of "determined men for the carrying out of the administrative policy in and out of Korean" was authorized, says the review. In clause three of the administrative policy it is stipulated that the salvation of Korea should be affected by means of bombs, according to the police statement.

The review further goes on to say that the Korean malcontents have established their headquarters at Antung, across the Yalu river, where Japanese authority cannot reach. The Koreans have frequently invaded the districts of Kankyo Hokudo crossing the Tomanko. But every time, however, the invaders were repulsed by the Japanese frontier guards. In the Helan Hokudo districts Korean malcontents were reported to have broken into several district offices, killed or injured the officials and stolen public funds. The residences of wealthy Koreans were broken into the inmates intimidated and property carried off, police boxes were raided, policemen were killed or injured and money was taken away and the buildings destroyed, says the review. More than 20 of these cases of violence are recorded as having occurred since March 15.

The report continues: "At one time something like a reign of terror was created in certain districts and the public officials refused to go out without strong police protection. Some wealthy Koreans kept sums of money in readiness to be handed over in case of a visit from bandits, while others were obliged to abandon their residences. On July 17 the police gave chase to a party of marauders armed with revolvers and six were shot down. Since then the bandits have completely disappeared and order has been restored." The statement says in conclusion that some cases of attempted use of bombs by Koreans have been discovered in time on the frontiers. The men were arrested.
