

AT THE THEATERS

"Blackie's Redemption," which will be the feature at the Liberty theatre tonight with Bert Lytell as the star is the second of the clever Red Book Magazine stories to be made into screen plays by Metro.

"Blackie's Redemption" is the story of a "gentleman crook" who desires to "go straight." He gives up his lawless pursuits and is about to marry the girl he loves when he is arrested and sent to prison for a crime committed by others.

How he makes his daring escape is one of the many thrilling incidents which will be revealed in the play, and which leads to a powerful and startling climax. A heart-rending feature is the beautiful love of Mary Dawson for Blackie—a love which withstands every test and which is the means of his ultimate redemption.

"The Square Shooter," a comedy drama in which Buck Jones, the new William Fox star, is featured.

will be shown for the first time at the Liberty theatre on Sunday. Buck Jones, the cowboy-soldier-aviator-actor, has done some very fine work in this photoplay according to report. The story is one of life on a western ranch. It contains many humorous and near-tragic situations which arise through a case of confused identity.

Buck Jones probably feels most at home on horseback. His marvelous riding has thrilled thousands. "The Square Shooter" offers the new star ample room to display his ability as a horseman.

PURPOSE OF PICKETING DETERMINES ITS LEGALITY

SALEM, Oct. 2.—The supreme court yesterday upheld the right of picketing by the Portland shoe clerk's union, but denied the right of union jewelers to picket Portland shops. The difference was that the shoe clerks were striking to enforce a contract with the employers while the jewelers were striking to enforce recognition of their union.

WIRELESS WILL SAVE VESSELS

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 2.—Trenchard's Alaskan waters, graveyard of scores of vessels and into whose many lives and much treasure have been poured due to navigation pitfalls, are about to be conquered by radio, according to advice received here telling progress of naval communication service investigation into plans for establishing radio-compass stations.

Floyd E. Dunklee, radio electrician of the service, is now in Juneau, Alaska, investigating sites for stations, having recently completed the work of installing radio-compass stations, protecting San Francisco bay. Dangers to navigation are removed by the same means which guarded London from Zeppelin attacks, a secret during the war, and one of the most interesting developments in radio-telegraphy. When Zeppelins started their attacks upon London, the foremost of allied experts applied their efforts to provide some means of defense. The prime necessity for defense was determination of the location of invading Zeppelins.

Discovery of a radio direction finder resulted from their efforts. Zeppelins used wireless in reporting departure from German bases, and frequently while enroute sent wireless messages back to the base. The allied discovery was a device to determine from which direction these wireless waves came.

Direction finders established at different points upon hearing a Zeppelin wireless would report to the headquarters the direction from each station of the Zeppelin. Charting these directions the headquarters accurately determined the location of the Zeppelin and it could be engaged in combat before getting across the British borders.

Success of the direction-finders resulted in extension of their use to aid shipping. Radio-compass stations established on the Atlantic seaboard proved highly efficient, and establishment of stations around San Francisco bay followed. Other allied countries are also using the system. This means of informing a vessel of its precise location is regarded as one of the most valued aids to navigation inaugurated this century, according to naval communication experts.

Tentative plans contemplate establishment of six radio-compass stations in Alaskan waters. It is expected location of the stations will be determined upon Electrician Dunklee's investigations this year and erection of stations be undertaken next spring.

A cordial invitation is extended to all to attend these services.

CHINESE BUYS 275 ACRES AT MIDLAND

Sale of 275 acres of Midland tule land to Chin Lung, a Stockton, Cal., Chinese farmer was reported today by L. Jacobs. The tract is practically square, facing the railroad track about halfway between Midland and Ady. The deal was closed yesterday. The price was withheld by Mr. Jacobs but is understood to have been between $65 and $75 an acre.

Chin Lung is a high official in one of the Chinese six companies and purchased the land for his organization. It will be developed at once. The owners plan to plant it to celery as soon as the ground is in condition for a celery crop.

BANDIT IN JAIL DOES FANCYWORK

RAWLINGS, Wyo., Oct. 1.—Artistic embroidery work as an occupation for a train robber may sound unusual but it is bringing to William L. Carlisle, whose exploits following his robbery of a Union Pacific train filled the columns of newspapers for days, an income which allows him to pursue studies in prison.

Carlisle still suffers from a wound in his chest received at the time of his capture and is unable to do heavy manual work.
