

CLEVELAND WINS

DETROIT, Oct. 2.—By defeating Detroit today Cleveland won the American league pennant. The score was 10 to 1.

SMALL BOY ESCAPES DROWNING CLOSELY

A plunge which came near proving fatal for little 3-year-old Jesse Alford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Alford, occurred between 9:30 and 10 o'clock this morning, when the boy fell into the pond on the old Reams place. Little Jack Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Thompson, who had been playing with Jesse near the pond, mentioned to his mother when she came out of the house that the boy was in the water, and it was in this way that Mrs. Thompson discovered the child face down on the bottom of the pond.

She called for help and a carpenter by the name of Scott, employed by the California-Oregon Power company, jumped in after the little fellow. Joe Butler, foreman for the Warren Construction company, on the Conger avenue job lent his assistance, and as he had experience with drowning cases was able to keep the boy alive until the doctor arrived.

Mrs. William Booker, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. William Duncan and family, left this morning for San Francisco, where she will join her husband.

Society

At the country home of Mr. and Mrs. Tolle, near Merrill, September 23 at 3 o'clock, Miss Audrey Tolle became the bride of Paul D. Lewis, of Dayton, Oregon. The ceremony took place in the presence of the family and a few of Miss Tolle's friends, beneath an altar of flowers and greens, constructed at one end of the parlor. Rev. Aaron Wolf, Presbyterian minister of the Merrill church, read the beautiful ring ceremony for this occasion.

Mrs. Lewis has been a resident of Klamath county all her life and is well known to many people here. Mr. Lewis came here about eight months ago. At the close of the ceremony a luncheon was served after which the young people came to Klamath Falls and left for Dayton, where they will make their home.

The Five Hundred club met Tuesday of this week with Mrs. Jack Slater at her home in Hot Springs addition, to complete its organization. The afternoon was spent playing cards. Refreshments were served by the hostess. It was arranged that the next meeting of the new club would be at the home of Mrs. G. B. Cozad on High street.

Present were: Mesdames Frank Andrews, James Watkins, Jr., E. D. Lamb, Byron Hardenbrook, O. W. Robinson, G. B. Cozad, Jack Slater and Miss Verda Cozad.

Mrs. James H. Carter entertained a number of friends at cards Saturday night, honoring Mrs. Byron Hardenbrook's birthday. She served her guests with a novel and dainty luncheon at the close of the evening.

The guests were Mesdames Hardenbrook, James Watkins, Jr., John Enders, Roger Deweese, Glen Jester, and the Misses Bess Kilgore and Verda Cozad.

Autumn leaves in gay red and yellow relieved with great bowls of asters and sweet peas were the decorative motifs at the reception given in farewell to Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Hogue, at the Presbyterian church Thursday night. The church was crowded with friends of the couple who have known them for the many happy years spent in Klamath Falls and who regretted losing them when they left this morning to make their home in some other community.

Ice cream and cake were served by a committee of ladies to the guests assembled at the church Thursday. There were speeches given by Andrew Collier, Fred Fleet and the Rev. E. P. Lawrence. There was also a very interesting musical program given by the young ladies of the congregation.

Al D. Short, of the White Pelican hotel, was host Wednesday evening at a supper dance for 24 of his friends. The affair was held in the hotel.

Cards were the feature of a party given Monday afternoon by Miss Verda Cozad for a number of the younger set. The prize of honor was won by Mrs. Glen Jester and Mrs. Charles Moore was given the consolation prize. Refreshments were served to the ladies during the afternoon.

Miss Cozad's guests were Mesdames V. M. Palmer, E. M. Bubb, Don Belding, Charles Moore, Glen Jester, Hardin Carter, Roy Orem, Byron Hardenbrook, James Watkins, Jr., G. B. Cozad, J. E. Enders, Misses Josie Low and Florence Porter.

A surprise party was given Tuesday to celebrate Ethelwyne O'Flaherty's birthday. Those present were Waive Withrow, Bertha Peltz, Elizabeth Ramsby, Opal Harvey, Joan McDonald, Harry Peltz, Kenneth Mear, Robert Cornish and Teddy Beckett.

Mrs. K. G. Cummings entertained yesterday for her mother, Mrs. L. Watters and her sister, Miss Julia Watters, who are visiting here from Missouri. The house was made very lovely with autumn leaves and chokes cherries. Those present were Mrs. W. S. Slough, E. S. Phillips, R. E. Wattenburg, James McClure, Parks, Thomas Hampton, Bert C. Thomas, A. R. Wilson, Misses Gertrude Parker, Pearl Demmorest and Esther McAndrews.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Hogue were extensively entertained this week by their many friends here, and among those who entertained them were: Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Wilson who had a dinner Friday; the U. S. R. S. people entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Newell, last night; Tuesday Rev. and Mrs. E. P. Lawrence gave a dinner, as did Mrs. J. A. Perry and Mrs. Jennie Hurn on Wednesday. Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Koppen were hosts at a dinner Thursday honoring Mr. and

EASTERN BOY WILL STICK TO HOME FARM

The growth of the boys' and girls' club movement in Oregon and its success in Klamath county since it started three years ago, especially the success this year in purebred calf development, make the story of a Massachusetts boy's experience more interesting. The story is taken from the department of agriculture's weekly news letter and is as follows:

Thomas Chisholm, of Weymouth, Mass., is a farm boy who believes that there is money in farming and that it is about the best profession a boy can select. He believes there is money in it because he is making it.

Thomas belongs to one of the boys' and girls' calf clubs organized by the United States department of agriculture and the state agricultural college, but he was in the dairying business when he was but 7 years old—long before there was a club organized in his locality. At that age his father had a chance to sell one of his cows for a large sum. As he wanted the blood to remain in the herd he gave Thomas her calf to bring up by hand, and he did it so successfully that as a 2-year-old she gave 34 pounds a day and was a steady milker. He owned this cow for six years. One of its first members The first boys' and girls' calf clubs in Massachusetts was organized in Weymouth, and Thomas was one of its first members. This year he is president of the club. Last year he was one of the team of three that won first place and the right to represent the Massachusetts calf-club work at the Eastern States exposition in Springfield, Mass. The Massachusetts team won first place in the contest at Springfield.

Thomas also entered a judging contest at the same exposition and won third place. His prize was a purebred Guernsey calf, which he has added to the farm herd. In the Chisholm family all the livestock does not belong to father. Father believes if you want a boy to be interested in the old place you must give him a share in its returns as well as its work, and father practices what he believes.

Manages Father's Herd

The following extract is from a report Thomas made his club leader recently:

"We have at home now 22 head of cows, and I am managing the herd for my father on a 50-50 basis. Besides this I own personally a purebred registered Holstein Friesian bull and a registered heifer of the same breed. These are the cattle with which I entered the calf club. I like this breed and think it is the most profitable producing herd on earth today. I have one grade cow in the herd that produced 10,500 pounds of 4 per cent milk in 300 days, which isn't so bad. Ours is the dairy business."

"I know a great many farmers are going out of business; there is the labor crisis and feed is high, but the fellow that can stick to the job is going to be the lucky one."

"It takes a good long day to do the work of the dairy. That is one reason why I am not just now in school, but I have had two years in the agricultural high school and I am still working under the teacher of that school."

Mrs. Hogue and their daughter, Miss Faye.

Mrs. Hogue was the guest of honor at the reception given by the A. N. W. club on Thursday afternoon at the beautifully flower decorated home of Mrs. J. E. Bratton.

Mrs. Hogue has been affiliated with this club since its organization 14 years ago and has contributed largely to its success and it is with regret that the members accepted her resignation.

Refreshments were served. The guests other than club members were: Mrs. A. M. Worden, Mrs. A. R. Wilson, Mrs. Mary Moore, Mrs. Charles Moore, Mrs. L. S. Willits, Mrs. J. A. Perry, Mrs. John Sargent, Mrs. W. C. Ball, Mrs. E. W. Gowan, Mrs. L. L. Truax, Mrs. James McClure and Miss Julia Watters.

The Elks' club dance last night, which was the first given in the Temple this season, was a decided success and was attended by such an enthusiastic crowd that the music did not stop until 2:30 o'clock.

"BETTER CITY" IS SLOGAN OF LABOR

opportunity for crookedness, but the city would profit through the creation of a fund for emergencies, such as the influenza epidemic of last year, which might recur, or in relief of victims of such catastrophes as the Houston fire.

But the law had been shattered, the conduct of boxing had had fallen into unscrupulous hands and the proceeds from sale of seats had never been accounted for. No one knew what had been taken in or how it had been disposed of. The only certain thing was that no accounting had been made and the law had been flagrantly violated.

J. H. Garrett, a former member of the boxing commission, said that he considered boxing a clean sport and wanted to see it encouraged.

Needs Grow With City

The entire discussion, participated in by a score of earnest speakers, was an arraignment of existing conditions. Blame was not placed on individuals. It was clearly realized, however, that the city is growing and new problems are developing. The speakers declared for men in office who would fairly enforce the law and build a foundation for the development of the city of the future—a city five times the present size.

—men of vision and foresight who will not be blinded by personal or political prejudice.

Lee Makes Statement

W. T. Lee, the council's choice for mayor, in answer to a direct question, stated that he would not inject the courthouse question into the mayoralty race. He declared that he stood for the Hot Springs courthouse, as he had from the beginning, and in the county campaign he would do his strenuous best for his side, but that as a candidate for mayor of Klamath Falls he would make the race, if he decided to make it at all, on the merits of the office and on a platform of community betterment, decency and cleanliness, both moral and physical.

Need of Money Discussed

The consensus of opinion was that it would be unfair to any candidates to place them in office without sufficient funds to accomplish the improvements they were expected to foster, and it was decided that a campaign for the $90,000 tax levy and a higher limit on bonded indebtedness should be a part of the program when finally completed.
