

FIRE INQUIRY REPORT SCORES CITY COUNCIL

dangerous affair and should have been condemned and razed long ago in the estimation of the present and former fire chiefs of Klamath Falls both of whom declare they would have condemned it had they been clothed with proper authority. The chimneys were supported by brackets and some of the stoves and flues were in extremely dangerous conditions, electric wiring bad and there was but one (dry) fire extinguisher in the entire building and many other outstanding features which, in the estimation of your deputies as well as many citizens of Klamath Falls, constituted a menace to the lives it contained as well as to the community.

The contents of the report of deputies Allen and Stokes were well-known to the mayor, city council, fire chief and other officials, copies having been furnished them together with recommendations for the elimination of many designated hazards including the Houston hotel and many other structures in the city regarded as extreme hazards and the most of which still exist (at the time of our investigation) without remedy. A series of drafts of model ordinances designed to correct and eliminate many of the fire hazards of the city and giving city officials authority to inspect properties and correct the evils found to exist were furnished the city council of Klamath Falls.

Report Ignored—Ordinance Tabled

The survey, read in open council, was summarily dismissed by the "placed on file" route. The ordinances, one designed to regulate the storage of gasoline, another regulating the conduct of garages, another regulating the interior construction of motion picture theatres and providing safe exits and still another defining what constituted unusual fire hazards and providing for inspections and authorizing condemnations in extreme instances never got beyond first or second reading and all suffered the ignominy of being "tabled." Each in turn ran up against objections and criticisms from interests directly affected which was sufficient for its end. The city attorney was instructed to draft ordinances covering these protective features which would be satisfactory to all concerned but they have never materialized.

There is but one ordinance on the Klamath Falls statutes authorizing fire inspections by the fire chief and the elimination of fire hazards but all cases of infractions must first be reported to the mayor and city council and in no case is he permitted to take action without authority from these official sources. Cases are cited of record in which the fire chief has reported hazards to the mayor without result and in one particular case chronicled in the testimony of Fire Chief Kiehl Ambrose, appended hereto, in which he reported a particularly extreme hazard two or three times to the mayor to receive the final orders to "leave it alone."

The mayor and certain other officials of Klamath Falls showed a disposition to be resentful of and antagonistic toward the state fire marshal's department for the exercise of its good offices and legal functions in the promotion of fire prevention

A Mail Order Fallacy

Recently, one of the country's largest "mail-order" stores announced a number of price reductions which, if a person does not reason very carefully, are very deceptive.

In the first place, while "Pigs is Pigs!" it does not necessarily follow that "Goods are Good!" The following price-comparisons are of standard quality goods, making a just comparison possible. The Parcel Post and Freight Rates are correct, and the final prices, in Klamath Falls, show conclusively that WE CAN SELL YOU THE SAME GOODS CHEAPER! If this is possible, in selling standard lines, does it not stand to reason that we can, with very few exceptions, sell you whatever you wish at as low, or lower prices.

All prices were taken from a catalogue received three days ago.
