AT THE THEATERS

If it is a genuine, tingling thrill you hunger for—some rare, red blooded adventure cut in huge chunks from the flanks of life in the raw; spiced with romance and sprinkled throughout with suspense, or, in plain words, you are looking for the prize photoplay of the season, the one that has all the zip and zest that you have looked for so vainly, your hunger will be satisfied for "The Courage of Marge O'Doone" will be shown at the Star theatre tonight.
"The Courage of Marge O'Doone" was written by popular Oliver Curwood, one of the most popular of present day novelists. It has been made into a big special production by Vitagraph with a star cast of well-known players, headed by Niles Welch and Pauline Starke. It is a big, dramatic, fighting photoplay story. The arena of action is that most thrilling, vigorous and romantic of all the world's stages, the wild, white wastes of the frozen north.
There are primitive men, fierce and beautiful women, men fighting against the elements, man against man, bear fights and the long lonely trails that break the hearts and sinews of men; there is that red-blooded romance and adventure of the great story right where it belongs, right where it is bred. It is
