PIANIST PLAYS 36 HOURS, 46 MINUTES

J. M. Waterbury, the Marathon pianist, playing in the window of the Electric Shop, 123 South Sixth street stopped playing at 10:46 p. m. Saturday, after 36 hours, 46 minutes, and 40 seconds of continuous playing.

NEW CLOSING TIME FOR BARBER SHOPS

Tonight starts the new closing time for local barber shops, under agreement recently reached by the employing barbers and local barbers' union.

On every week day but Saturday the shops will close at 6:30 p. m. instead of 7, and on Saturday nights they will close at 9:30, instead of 10 o'clock as formerly.

One class of trade expected to be affected by the new schedule is the mill and factory workers, who will have to become accustomed to making their tonorial pilgrimage half an hour earlier than usual or find the gates barred. It was to accommodate this class that the time was fixed at 6:30, otherwise it would have been made the closing hour on week days.

CORRECTION
The Herald desires to apologize to the public and to the Warren Hunt hospital management and its staff for our error in placing the cut of Mr. Frank B. Robinson in the hospital advertising in place of the actual cut in our issue of Saturday evening.
