PERSONAL MENTION

Mr. and Mrs. Rex Renner will leave tomorrow for San Francisco, where the former will take a three-months' course in electrical ignition work.

See tomorrow's paper for Lester and West's Auction Sale list.

At the Theaters

Do you like photoplays about strange lands and people? Or do you prefer to see pictures about folks you know—heart-rending dramas that might be the story of the people next door?

The Star theatre is showing a picture of the latter type tonight. Ethel Clayton, who makes those pretty, wistful heroines fairly live before your eyes, is the star, and the picture is "A Lady in Love."

It's a Paramount Artcraft and the story of an innocent schoolgirl, who eloped with the wrong man—a suave crook—and went through a host of thrilling experiences before she could obey her heart and accept Mr. Right.

Harrison Ford is again Miss Clayton's leading man. A number of your other favorites are in the cast. You'll enjoy this picture.

Blue ribboned herd of Shorthorns will be sold at auction by Lester and West. See ad tomorrow.

CARD OF THANKS

I desire to express my sincere appreciation of the efforts and support of my friends in the late mayoralty contest, and I also wish to express again my deep regard for Mr. Wiley and to congratulate him upon the splendid showing that he made.

I am certain that the people have chosen an executive to whose standard we shall all be proud to rally, and I again reiterate my oft-expressed resolve to stand behind him in every move he makes for our common advancement.

GERMAN CREWS DAMAGE SHIPS

Vessels Allocated to the United States Arrive Here in Bad Condition.

WILL NOT BE SENT ON TOURS

Only One of Ships Capable of Making Voyage Under Own Power and It Would Be Unsafe to Send Her to Sea Again.

Washington.—Owing to deliberate damage wrought by the crews to the engines and other vital parts of the five ex-German warships recently brought to this country under the peace treaty allocation, necessitating extensive repairs to make them possible of operation, none of the vessels will be sent on an exhibition tour of coastal cities, as the navy department had hoped to do.

In making this announcement the department included a statement by Capt. J. F. Hellweg, commanding officer of the convoy which brought the ex-German warships to America, asserting that even the dreadnaught Ostfriesland, the only one of the five ships capable of making the transatlantic trip under her own power, was in such condition on arrival at New York that it would be hazardous to send her to sea again.

Calls It Vandalism. Captain Hellweg attributed the condition of the ships, four of which, the cruiser Frankfurt and three destroyers, were submerged at Scapa Flow, to "deliberate vandalism" on the part of their former German crews.

"The gutted condition in which we found these vessels on taking them over cannot be exaggerated," he said. "What had not been stolen was wrecked. The vandalism indicated a very careful preparation and the usual thoroughness of the Hun in execution."

Expressing the belief that the Ostfriesland had been systematically looted while in the German dockyard for a year after her surrender had been called for, Captain Hellweg also declared the presence of an "unnecessarily large crew aboard when the dreadnaught was brought to Rosyth, Scotland, indicated in the light of developments that the crew was sent with a view of looting everything possible en route."

Causes Many Breakdowns. Not only did the German crews commit obvious depredations, Captain Hellweg declared, but their "preparations for future trouble by removing sections of pipes and valves" were responsible, he said, for numerous breakdowns in the Ostfriesland's machinery on the trip across. He cited one instance in which a six-inch pipe line gave way and flooded the fire room, when the vessel was a thousand miles from the European coast. The dreadnaught was forced to make most of the voyage, he said, with only one engine running, although it towed the Frankfurt all the way.

By bringing back on the deck of the Ostfriesland two 12-inch and two 14-inch guns which had formed a reserve for the land batteries of the American navy during the war, Captain Hellweg estimated that more than twice the amount appropriated to bring the ex-German ships across, $90,000, was saved in their transportation.

WHY TINNED BEEF IN FIJIS?

Leading Scientists Are Going to Find Out if Cattle Can Be Raised There.

Honolulu.—Why do the Fiji Islanders eat canned beef?

The Pan-Pacific scientific congress, composed of more than seventy-five of the leading scientists of the United States, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Samoa, Japan and other countries bordering on the Pacific ocean, struggled with that and other problems during its recent sessions here.

The more important half of the knotty question relative to the Fijians and their diet, however, is why don't they raise their own cattle instead of eating tinned meat shipped across the ocean?

If there is anything to prevent cattle raising in the Fiji Islands, the congress intends to find out what it is, and, if possible, remove the obstacle.

How Do They Do It?

Harrodsburg.—This dog carried a message. When the public fountain, which had been wrecked by an automobile, was put in repair after being out of commission for several months, a dog was near when the water was turned on. He gratefully wet his parched throat and then trotted down the street. A few minutes later four dogs came from the direction in which the first dog had gone and made hot-foot for the fountain.

Boy Beats Girls Baking.

Worcester, Mass.—Wesley Sheldon, a fourteen-year-old boy, of Ashburnham, was declared the winner of the Worcester County Farm bureau bread-making contests, in which many girls competed from every city and town in the county. During the period of three months he made 58 loaves of bread in 19 bakings, performed 76 hours of housework, and used 48 hours in doing errands for his mother.

An Officer and a Gentleman.

Having failed twice to pass the mental tests for entrance to the naval academy, a youth who was permitted to take the examination a third time, procured another youth who had already passed, to undergo the examination in June. The substitute was discovered and the appointments of both canceled. The names of the offenders were not made public.

The first candidate failed in both the February and April examinations, and in June persuaded a candidate who had passed in April to take the examination under the former's name before the civil service board in Baltimore. The papers fell into the hands of examiners at the naval academy, who had gone over the papers which the second candidate had submitted for himself. A careful comparison indicated that they had been written by the same person, and both youths confessed.—Associated Press correspondent New York Sun.

Misunderstood.

A New York lawyer whose seat probably outweighed his learning was arguing a case in a local court, which for present purposes need not be identified.

"My contention, your honors," he said in accents that betrayed his race, "is that de lower court made error because de verdict im against de weight of de evidence."

"We can't hear that," said the court, meaning that it was not a proper assignment of error.

"Well, now," said the lawyer, who entirely missed the point, "if your honors vill listen I vill speak a little louder."

Old and Young Presidents.

The honor of the presidency came to William Henry Harrison later in life than to any other incumbent of office, Mr. Harrison being sixty-eight years of age when inaugurated in 1841. When Theodore Roosevelt succeeded President McKinley in 1901, he was but forty-two years of age, being younger than any other president of the United States at the time of obtaining the office.

A Slow Voyage to the Sea.

A block of wood was cast into the Yellowstone river 11 years ago by a citizen of Glendive, Mont. It is slowly drifting to the sea. The inscription made upon it by the man who started it has been added to by two other persons, who picked it up and started it again on its way. It was last seen at Washburn, N. D.

COLLISION BRINGS NEW STAR

Explanation of Recent Phenomenon is Given by Prof. Charles C. Conroy of Los Angeles.

Vallejo, Cal.—The new star in the constellation Cygnus, lately reported through Harvard observatory, was produced by a collision in the heavens between a large comet and a comparatively dim sun.

This is the information given out by Capt. Thomas J. See of the naval observatory at Mare Island, from Prof. Charles C. Conroy of Los Angeles.

The star forms a corner of the parallelogram of Alpha, Gamma and Delta Cygni. Captain See said he had been advised. At present it is of the second magnitude and the magnitude may be expected to increase for several days, but will die down in the course of a few months, he reported.

Catch Blue Lobster Off Shore of Massachusetts

Nantucket, Mass.—Capt. Sylvia of the steamer Sankaty was presented with a party—a blue lobster. A fisherman brought him ashore, much elated over his rare find, and handed him over with some pomp and ceremony. The fresh was a deep, rich navy-blue in color, instead of the customary green, but, boiled, he turned red, just the same as his ordinary brother.

Checked Girl by "God's Orders"

Mom Point, Miss.—Louis Smith, shipyard worker, killed his four-year-old daughter, Lula, by strangling her to death. Passers-by, witnessing the tragedy from a distance, held him until he was placed under arrest. Smith told the officers that he had been ordered by God to kill his daughter, and now that he had carried out God's wish, he was ready to die himself. The man is believed to be mentally deranged.

One Retort Barrenness.

Marion, Ind.—Mrs. Charles Haven inserted an advertisement offering to trade her five children for poodle dogs, so that she will not be compelled to leave the dwelling in which she lives. The house was sold to a bachelor, who informed Mrs. Haven she must leave or get rid of the children.

First Aid for Scalds.

It depends on the promptness with which a scald is given proper treatment, whether or not there will be little or no sore places afterward.

A scalded hand or foot should be plunged immediately into a bath of warm water and baking soda in the proportion of a teaspoonful of the soda to a pint of water. Leave the affected part in this solution until the pain ceases. If a part of the body that cannot be placed in the bath of water or scalded, the chest, or the back, or the thigh, wrap the scalded parts with a cloth saturated with the solution. Remove until the sting is removed. Then cover with carbolic vasoline and apply a bandage over this to keep the air out.

If this treatment is applied at once, the scalded part will heal in a short time.

"Glopetra's" Needles.

Glopetra's needles are two Egyptian shells of red sponges, which were transported from Heliopolis to Alexandria 14 B. C., where they remained until 1877, when they were presented to the governments of Great Britain and the United States by the Khedive Ismail Pasha. They bear inscriptions of Thothmes III., about 1500 B. C., and Ramesses II. One stands on the Thames embankment London, the other in Central Park New York city. This one is about 8 inches long; the base is seven feet or an inch square and weighs 200 tons.

Pocket Book Strangely Lost.

A young woman dropped her pocket book containing $40 down the elevator shaft of a Hartford, Conn., hotel building. Thorough search was made for it, but the pocket book was not found until two months later. It was found on the elevator weight, a that when the elevator went down to pocket book went up, and it was discovered by accident by a man who was looking down the elevator way from the top story to see if the car was coming up.

Ocean's Fine Harbor.

The harbor of Otilama, in south Russia, is formed by several stone piers and a long breakwater and is protected in every direction. It is the only port in southern Russia where ships drawing 30 feet can come & rest to the docks, and the docks are large and better equipped than those of any other Black sea port. The depth is 25 feet on one side and 15 ft on the other.

At the age of 54, Mrs. R. Lyons of San Diego, Cal., is a great grandmother.

About Other People--and About You!

There are two kinds of news in the paper. Part of the news is about the affairs of other people; their sayings, doings and goings to do; things that have happened—may happen—didn't happen.

But there's also a lot of news in this paper—if you know where to look for it—about your affairs.

That's the part of the news you'll find in the Advertisements. There's valuable news there about things you want or will want; perhaps about things you have that others want.

Every Advertisement carries a message to someone.

Many Advertisements carry messages of interest or value to you.

You can't afford to miss the Advertisements because so many of them are news relating directly to you or to your affairs.
