PERSONAL MENTION

Mrs. H. K. Christie, who has been the guest of her brother, Martin Jensen and family on Ninth street for the past few weeks, left yesterday for her home in San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Houston left this morning by car for Medford, where they will visit for several days before going to Southern California to spend the winter.

Miss Florence Bradley spent the week end at Malin, visiting friends.

Mrs. A. L. Leavitt, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Mary Reed, spent yesterday as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Clemens on their ranch near Dorris, Cal.

A. J. Connolly is a business visitor here from Portland, Ore.

Frank C. Bramwell, a banker from Grants Pass; Al J. Mantineau, proprietor of a Grants Pass hotel, and J. E. Bartlett, president of the Medford Electric company, are all here for a week's hunting in Klamath county. Yesterday the party returned from a successful hunting trip with 22 big geese, and were so encouraged that they are going out today after ducks.

Martin Lotches and wife are in town today on business.

Ed Cookman is a county seat business visitor from Chiloquin today.

J. N. Ottman and wife came into town yesterday from their home at Malin, and are spending a few days with friends.

Mrs. L. H. Lauretsen and daughter are visiting here from Fort Klamath this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Napoleon Hamel of the Hamel apartments left Saturday for Seattle, where they will visit their daughter for the next few weeks.

H. A. Ketsdever was in town the last of the week from Algona, attending to business affairs.

Elder Rippey of the Seventh Day Adventist church left this morning on his return journey to California.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Daggett, Mrs. J. Daggett and Mr. J. Daggett's father, who have been on a vacation trip to Portland and other northern cities for the past month, returned home on last night's train.

Mrs. George Walton and daughters were county seat visitors Saturday afternoon from their home at Merrill.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Setzer and family are on a week's automobile trip in California. They left the last of the week.

Harry Telford was in town from his ranch Saturday afternoon, attending to matters of business.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert McDonald were passengers on the outgoing train this morning, and will visit in Medford, Ashland, and other western Oregon points before they return. This jaunt will be more or less of a honeymoon trip, business affairs having caused them to defer this pleasure at the time of their marriage about a month ago. They may go to Sacramento before they embark on the homeward journey.

Cougar Trail on the Road to Nakimu Caves

Just a hole in the ground, or Na-ki-mu in Indian parlance, yet the object of mystery, fear, curiosity and interest. This in brief, describes one of the natural wonders of the Canadian Pacific Rockies. Mystery and fear marked the Indians' attitude, curiosity prompted the white man to investigate the hole, and interest brings many visitors annually to visit the Nakimu Caves.

Once upon a time—in 1904 to be exact—there came into the Selkirk Mountains near Glacier in British Columbia, a man who had hunted, prospected and explored the mountains from Colorado to the Arctic Circle. His name was Charles H. Deutchmann and in his association with the Indians he had heard many tales of a Valley of Had Spirits, of Na-ki-mu in which these spirits lived and from whence issued their grumbings. He determined to solve the mystery. The Indians shunned the place. "Ha-jo Kia-wa-ta," meaning "no go," was their dogged answer when asked to accompany anyone into this, to them, fearsome place. So Deutchmann went alone.

He found the spirits to be whistlings made by shifting air currents in a narrow canyon; he found Na-ki-mu to be the entrance to a series of wonderful caves which he has been exploring and charting ever since. Today he acts as guide to the tourists who come from Glacier along the eight mile trail beside the dancing waters of Cougar Creek, to visit these caves 5,500 feet above level.

The caves are formed of metamorphosed marbled lime, the walls being covered with incrustations of calcium carbonate in pale yellow, pink, white and black. When the guide waves his torch back and forth, pictures of indescribable beauty are revealed. The first cave is a sort of ante-chamber, being but eighty-seven feet underground; the second cave, 300 feet down, is an imposing vault 30 feet wide and 120 feet high. Cougar Creek, now of Stygian blackness, flows through the caves and adds to their weirdness. Huge icicles form a year round decoration. The air is fresh and cold and visitors need warm clothing. The caves may be visited from the middle of June to the last of September.

Botanists and naturalists find the Nakimu region a paradise and Deutchmann is a peerless guide for those who wish to stop over and hunt for blossoms, bugs or bears.

Admiral Braisted Says:

"The peace time program adopted and put into operation even at this time has placed the Red Cross a very close ally of the Naval Service in its new undertakings in behalf of the welfare of its personnel. Home Service activities have been of inestimable value to the Navy in general. It is a service to the men and their families which could not be provided for other than by tremendous organization, such as the Red Cross, whose Home Service sections, numbering in the thousands, reach out and touch practically every household in the United States.

"As surgeon-general of the Navy, my personal appreciation is deeply expressed for the supplemental recreational and entertainment service now carried on by the Red Cross at hospitals, for the sick, injured and convalescent. Through your generous assistance, many beneficial activities have been made possible at hospitals, in our efforts to provide for the happiness and contentment of patients and maintenance of high morale."

W. C. BRAISTED, Rear Admiral, Surgeon General U. S. Navy.

AT THE LIBERTY THEATRE

"Life's Twist," the Robertson-Cole Special which will be seen at the Liberty theatre, tomorrow, has been called Bessie Barriscale's best picture. It deals with the adventures in love of two women, one the pampered daughter of fortune, the other the undeveloped, ragged product of a great city's squalor. Both types, extreme in contrast, are interpreted by Miss Barriscale in masterly fashion, according to the reviewers.

The photo-play was directed by William Christy Cabanne. It was adapted to the screen by Harvey Gates from the magazine story by Thomas Edgelowe, Walter McGrail, as leading man, King Baggot, Truly Shattock, Marena Manon, are seen to decided advantage.
