Hearing Narrows to Interpreting Terms

He said he did not agree with Mr. Newell that the government water rights were absolutely secure. He thought the government had prior rights to all the Klamath water but that its position was being undermined. He declared that undoubtedly if the matter went on as it is going the power company would gain strong vested rights to the water from which it would be difficult, or impossible, to dislodge them.

Dam Not the Keynote
Mr. Bradbury said that the building of the dam would not hasten the opening of Tule Lake and other lower lands. He said that it was a question of building ditches and laterals to supply these lands which was the keynote of the situation as regards the date of their opening.

W. H. Geary of the Geary Investment company, with a development project on the Upper Lake, said his company had sold some land at $70 an acre. He thought the government land around the lake was about the same sort.

M. Motschenbacher, president of the Klamath Drainage district, said there had been persistent rumors that the district would not get water if the power company built the dam. He said the directors had been quite uneasy.

Under cross examination by Attorney Groesbeck he admitted that his fear had been reduced by hearing the testimony of Mr. McKee and Mr. Newell.

"We do not care who builds the dam," he said as long as we get the water.

In support of his contention that there are powerful influences at work to keep the valuable marsh lands from homestead settlement by ex-service men, Mr. Carnahan asked the witness the difference in value between the marsh lands and the dry hill land, from which he said no one was trying to bar the ex-soldiers. The witness said comparison would run about 100 to one in favor of the marsh land.

Carnahan a witness
Mr. Carnahan was the last witness. He declared that the contract should be so clear that it needed to depend on no one's interpretation; that different people construed it differently.

He said that not only he, but such men as Senator Chamberlain, Congressman Sinnott and former Attorney General Brown saw grave danger in it.

He said that while he did not believe the government had entirely lost its water rights, except for 50,000 acres, he believed neglect to use the water had seriously impaired them and that the government should actively reassert its rights immediately as a necessary protection.

He said that he feared that the fillings of the company gave them absolute control of water thus acquired and that they could convey it to the Keno and Copco plants and later, so absolute is their ownership, sell it to California irrigationists.

While personally he would agree to others than the government building the dam, he said he thought public would be best served if the government built dam. If ambiguity of the contract were cleared up, however, he had no objection to the power company building the dam, providing water were provided for every available acre in the project and the public rights fully protected.

He said, on information secured from Senator Chamberlain and Congressman Sinnott, he believed the government would have revenue from the oil land leasing act to immediately build the dam if the reclamation service would make a demand for the money.

Argument in Brief
The hearing closed with brief arguments by Mr. Carnahan, Mr. Holgate and Mr. Groesbeck. Representatives of other interests waived right of argument. The arguments presented followed closely the lines of the testimony.

Mr. Carnahan declared that he had the backing of the legion in every step he had taken. He said he had been falsely charged with making a personal fight upon the power company and reclamation service and blocking progress, but that every step had the sanction of the ex-service men's organization.

Preparing Report Today
The committee is meeting today to prepare its report. It was indicated that recommendations would accompany the report.

Publication of the official record depends upon the judgment of the chamber of commerce. The entire record and findings will be submitted to Secretary Payne for use in the formal hearing at Washington December 2d.

Society

Society folk who were busy all last week with entertainments of every description were stopped in their rush of dinners, dances and bridge parties by the terrific storm which descended upon Klamath Falls Monday and only ceased its down pour late Friday. Only a few of the more adventurous ladies of the city entertained.

A most attractive party for the very young set of the city was a surprise dinner honoring Rudolph Jacob's 11th birthday, given for him and a number of his school mates by his mother, Mrs. L. Jacobs and sister, Mrs. John Enders. The dinner was served at 5 o'clock and the guests were seated around a table made attractive with Thanksgiving decorations.

The invited guests were: Joe Evans, Kenneth Myers, Bruce Jeffries, Howard Taylor, Eunice Roberts, Joe Crook, Archie, Buttler, Robert Clay, Keith Kuconich and the two Masters George.

Henrietta Wright was hostess on her seventh birthday to a number of her little girls friends Tuesday afternoon. Her little guests were the girls of the primary class at Central school and besides the girls from Central, Helen Mason, Helen Shive, Helen Monroe, Arline Johnson, Elizabeth Powell, Cora Bell and Eula Wilson and Fay Gizzle were invited.

P. E. O. Woman's national sorority, is planning a gift sale for December 22, in the Evans building. They will have lovely things to offer the woman who is interested in well cooked food and tasty home decorations. These sales and bazaars given by churches and clubs are time saving things for busy society woman and they offer her an opportunity, as well, to help a worthy organization.

Flowering plants, table decorations, ferns, fruit cake, salted nuts, mints, and gold fish aquariums will be among the things offered by the P. E. O. to Klamath Falls ladies.

The silver tea given by the ladies of the Christian church at the home of Mrs. K. G. Cummings, Thursday afternoon, was a success and was well attended by members and friends of the church. The afternoon was spent in conversation and Mrs. F. W. Abbey favored the guests with a splendid reading. The hostesses, Mrs. Weist, Mrs. Bullock and Mrs. W. E. Seehorn, served the dainty luncheon.

Those present were: Mesdames F. W. Abbey, J. T. McCollum, Fred Goeller, E. Bice, Jesse Bailey, Leo Houston, Sadie Mattoon, J. J. Keller, Nyhart, R. H. Dunbar, G. H. Hunter, McKim, Danner, H. S. Abbey, Harry Richardson, R. J. Sheets, Rufus Moore, West, Bullock, Cummings, Geo Wirtz, and the Misses Elizabeth McCurdy, Vivian Sheets, Marie West, Margaret Cummings and Master Charles Cummings.

Mrs. J. F. Goeller was hostess Wednesday afternoon to the A. N. W. club at her home on South Riverside. The afternoon was pleasantly spent with needlework and delicious refreshments were served.

Guests other than the club members were: Mesdames R. J. Sheets, and Harry Richardson.

The books the club is to read this year are as follows: The Claw by Stockley; O. Money-Porter; Life and Gabrielle-Glasgow; The U. S. Trail-Zane Grey; Mrs. Hope's Husband; The Sky Pilot of No Man's Land-Conners; The Toll of The Sands-Paul de Laney; Harriett and the Paper-Morris; Mary Marie-Porter; The Following of The Star-Barclay; Bab-Rhinehart; His Official Fiancee-Rieve; Christopher and Columbus; A Poor Wise Man.

The Happy Hour Sewing club will meet next Tuesday at the home of Mrs. R. A. Emmitt on Pine street. All members are urged to be present, as an interesting afternoon is promised.

An enjoyable evening was passed Thursday by the Rebekah Lodge members and their friends at an open meeting in the chapter rooms of the order. An interesting program was rendered, and especial mention is due the pupils of Riverside school, who gave a Thanksgiving pageant. Besides this number there were several readings, as well as vocal and instrumental solos.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Collier Sr. of Eugene, who have been here as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew M. Collier for the past two weeks, were extensively entertained at various dinner parties this week. Sunday Mrs. A. M. Collier was hostess at a dinner party for her guests, to which Mr. and Mrs. Frank McCormack and family were invited. Tuesday Mrs. Collier again entertained at an elaborate dinner for Mr. and Mrs. Collier Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Collier and Charles Collier Jr. Friday evening Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fleet gave a dinner honoring Mr. and Mrs. Collier. Their guests were Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Collier, Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Porter, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Collier and Mr. Fleet's father, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Collier were hosts for their parents on Wednesday evening at their home in Hot Springs.

DOWN COMES BACON

We have just received the following telegram from San Francisco, telling of a further cut in the cost of bacon, and now is your chance to cut the cost of living: "Weiss & Rosenthal, Klamath Falls, Ore."

Referring to bacon, advertise in your papers that the price of bacon is reduced to two dollars and seventy-five cents per can, according to government reduction. Advertise extensively.

"M. LEVY & SON."

This speaks for itself and tells you where to get this bacon.

The Klamath Falls Red Cross workers are now soliciting funds. Hector's store joins with all other patriotic people in urging hearty support to the call. Without funds the Red Cross cannot do the work it wants to do. True, it can perform deeds of charity without your support, but how much more and better it can do if you will help with your dollars. Would you refuse a cry for help from a suffering little child? No, certainly not. Yet, in refusing to subscribe to the Red Cross that is just exactly what you are doing.
