

NEW SCHOOL LAWS PLANNED

OLYMPIA, Wash., Nov. 29.—Sweeping changes in the school laws of the state of Washington, with the object of removing the administration of the schools from politics and of redistributing school funds on what is characterized as a more equitable basis, are recommended in the preliminary report of the state public school administrative code commission report of the state public school administrative code commission submitted to Governor Louis F. Hart.

The present system of school administration in Washington, as well as the method of raising and apportioning funds for the maintenance of education, is declared in the report to have outlined its usefulness and to be adequate to the conditions of present-day education. The financial reorganization is necessary, the commission declares. In order that the cost of education may be equalized as between the wealthy district and the district with low property valuation, and so that equality of opportunity in education may be insured to all children of the state, regardless of their geographical situation.

To effect the reorganization recommended, one amendment to the state constitution would be required, the commission reports. Otherwise it lies within the power of the state legislature to remedy the evils complained of, and bills to this end are to be submitted by the commission at a later time.

As a means toward removing management of school affairs from the influence of politics, the commission proposes that county superintendents of schools shall be appointed by county boards of education, whose members are to be elected by popular vote. In like manner the state superintendent of public instruction would be appointed by a state board of education.

Price Pendulum Due To Swing Upward Again Says Merchant

"Prices have hit the bottom and it is a wise individual who recognizes this fact," was the terse statement made by M. I. Bloctky of the La Vogue stores, Saturday, as he was preparing for his departure for New York to buy his spring merchandise for his various stores.

"The facts are that prices have gone lower than conditions warrant. It is simply the case of the swinging of the pendulum—it has reached the limit and will swing back. Many people are waiting until prices go lower. They did that once before, when prices were on the upgrade, and in some cases history may repeat itself. Many far-sighted people are taking advantage of conditions and are buying to the limit. These will feel the satisfaction that always goes with making a good buy. Within a short time prices will start upward again, but they will not reach the heights from which they have just descended."

Mr. Bloctky left here Sunday morning for California, where he will make a brief visit to his other stores before starting for New York, where he will purchase his stock of spring cloaks and suits.

New Military Program Is Outlined

of view of the efficiency of the army one-year enlistment periods are of little value. The report reviews at length the new educational and recreational program established since the war and declares that "the time will come soon when the peace-time army will be throughout an educational institution from which men will graduate better equipped to enter civilian pursuits and with a larger and firmer grasp on citizenship and its responsibilities and privileges."

War Cost 13 Billions

The total cost of the war through the war department is placed by the secretary at about $13,730,300,500 and it is stated that in the liquidation of claims and contracts the department saved the government $7 per cent of the outstanding obligations at the end of the war.

Discussing the disposal of surplus war stocks Secretary Baker recommends that in the future the department's plans keep in mind an effort to have on hand at the termination of a war supplies of a character, so far as consistent with army needs that could readily and quickly be absorbed into the country's commerce.

Tribute to Navy

Declaring that he is happy to leave to his successors in the war department the assurance that "in any national emergency they have but to use and direct the limitless capacity and willingness of the American people which spontaneously offers itself when a crisis comes," Mr. Baker concludes his report with a tribute to the navy and civilian war organizations for co-operation during and after the war, and declares that:

"In equipment, personnel and spirit the army of the United States today is an object of just pride to the country."
