EXPECT PRICE REBOUND IN NEAR FUTURE

That the low level reached by some commodities in the recent slump in prices is not a natural one is indicated by reports from New York. Just as soon as buying starts, prices rebound. What is true of the wholesale market will be equally true of the retail business. That is why the consumer should keep a close watch on price offerings and take advantage of the bargains being put out by merchants.

The following dispatch from New York tells a story that means higher prices, soon:

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—The really sensational prices that have been brought about in the course of the last few weeks have begun to bring some buyers into the market and general buying for spring use may be looked for in the very near future. It was especially noticeable today, however, in the little business which was done, that any marked buying strength brought about a quick advance in price offerings. This led some of the market wise to form the conclusion that the sellers were no longer acting under strong pressure and many say sharp resumption of buying on a general scale would see ascending prices until a level was established more equitable to the seller than the one now prevailing.

The outlook in the men's wear and dress goods business is mixed with a majority holding the view that the worst is about over and that the next turn in the market will necessarily be upward. It is felt that buying in all lines has been so limited for so long a period that stocks must necessarily be very low and that this scarcity in itself will force buyers into the market. Gray goods are extremely sensitive to buying movements and fluctuations are constantly being felt. Prices are now so unbelievably low that it is now thought they can be maintained at their present levels.

First Elks' Show Of Season Pleases

Typically nice American girls were "Uncle Sam's Nieces," the Misses Howlette and Chamberlain and the two Misses Wilkins, who opened the Elks winter series of entertainments with a musical program and comedy skit at the Elks temple last night. The program showed talent in spots and a willing enthusiasm all the way through that drew plenteous applause from the audience.

Miss Chamberlain made a jaleph hit with a couple of Scotch ballads and Miss Howlette did a couple of readings of Riley's poems that evoked generous hand-clapping. Miss Wilkins at the piano was an efficient accompanist. The other Miss Wilkins displayed a fine mezzo-soprano voice in the quartet numbers.

The second half of the program was a comedy skit in which a telephone was a central pivot. An Irish cook with a variable temper predestined to always get the wrong number, precipitated many laughable situations.

Poe Valley Shooting Is Dismissed; Court Chides Complainant

Nick Hozin of Poe Valley, arrested Thanksgiving day on a charge of having shot Mike Pudoff, was dismissed in Judge Chapman's court last evening. Judge Chapman, who established a precedent in dismissing a man guilty of shooting, then took occasion to severely reprimand the complaining witness and told him that he was more to blame for the trouble than the man who did the shooting.

Hozin and Pudoff are both Russians and live in a Russian settlement in Poe valley. They had a common ownership in a stack of hay and it was over this that the shooting resulted. Pudoff admitted on the stand that he took a knife and started over to Hozin's house. He said he expected to find Hozin having trouble with his (Pudoff's) brother and he took the knife along to take revenge if he found that Hozin had harmed him. When he entered the house, he said he saw Hozin waiting for him with a gun in his hand. He said he immediately dropped the knife but that Hozin paid no attention to that and fired twice, striking him once in the arm and once in the leg.

Pudoff admitted on cross examination that he had attempted to take the law into his own hands on former occasions and had somewhat of a reputation for flourishing deadly weapons at any time that his temper was aroused.

National Weather Strip

The National weather strip may still be installed this year if orders are placed immediately. Mr. Collier, state agent, who left for Bend Saturday, left behind him Mr. J. W. Baker, who is placing the weather strip on several of the homes in the city. He will be glad to call and explain its many advantages to those who may be interested. It never wears out, will pay for itself in the fuel it saves and affords so much comfort by the shutting out of cold and dust that you would not give it up for ten times the cost. Orders left at The Herald office will be delivered to Mr. Baker. Ask those fortunate enough to have installed this weather strip what they think of it; then phone in your request for Mr. Baker to call. 30-1
