

NOTES FROM THE CENTRAL SCHOOL

(Contributed)

The teaching force of the Central school is making every effort to secure regular and punctual attendance. During the past month a general average of 97.3 per cent was made in attendance. The seventh grade had the banner room, having the highest per cent of attendance 99.1 per cent, and no tardies. The fifth and sixth closely followed with 98.4, and the eighth 98.1. Owing to an epidemic of measles in the primary grades, the attendance was not as encouraging.

List of Visitors

In the fifth grade, we have recently had as visitors, Mrs. Yaden, Mrs. Cafer, and Mrs. Chaney. We are always glad to have our friends call. We have added two new pupils, but we also have lost two. Mary Frasier came to us from Yakima, Washington, and Rowland Cook from Straw, California. Gerda Larson left here for San Francisco and Leola Dick went to Redding.

Among other visitors to our building, since the last report were Mesdames R. M. Young, T. R. Skillington, W. H. Klingerberg, T. L. Stanley, F. J. Riley, Henry Young, G. E. Grizale, Fred Fleet, Alvin Hammel, and Mrs. Ellen Hannon.

Ellis Trulove, a bright little lad of Monroe, Oregon, dropped into the office early Monday morning to register in the sixth grade.

Thanksgiving Program

On Wednesday before Thanksgiving the eighth grade (five wires) gave a program to which they invited the seventh grade (Central stars) their teachers, principal and superintendent. Herbert Phillips, president of the class presided.

The first half hour was given over to practice in parliamentary drill, followed by selection arranged by the committee, as follows: President Wilson's proclamation read by Claudina Witt; Thanksgiving song, by George Condry, Lanier Wallan, and Donald Veach; Thanksgiving story by Harold Bateman; reading by Geo. Bradley; song, eighth grade girls; and a reading, Clara Wilson. "The Star Spangled Banner" sung by both classes closed the program.

Answers "Help Ads"

To an advertisement for office assistants, placed in rooms 7-8, very interesting applications have been made. The following was written by Joy Evans:

"Your advertisement on the seventh grade blackboard attracted my attention.

I wish to apply for the position of mimeograph operator. I have had some experience in this line; you already know my ability.

"I will try not to let it interfere with my other school work in any way.

"I have not been absent or tardy since school started this fall.

For recommendations, I refer you to Miss McAundrews, Mrs. Murray, and Mr. Wells.

Respectfully yours,
JOY EVANS.

become a journalist and write as follows:

"I wish to apply for the position of journalist in your office. I hope to be one some day, and besides by holding that position I might gain knowledge of that business.

Mrs. Carr, trust, will recommend me. I have learned that you will accept no one without her recommendation.

Respectfully yours,
HAROLD BATEMAN.

Domestic Science Work

The various grades are doing splendid work in domestic science. The eighth grade were glad to return to their work after a short vacation. The seventh grade have their new problems well begun. The stitches on their dresser scarfs show skill and care. Thelma Grizale and Elvira Call are the first to finish their towels in the sixth grade. Jean Rogers, Helen Chaney and Hera Wainio of the fifth grade show a marked improvement in their work.

Hand ball is now in season. It was going full blast at the Central school. Gordon Smith, Charles Johnston, Tom Watt, and Hugh Curran are some of the best players in the 7th grade. Gordon Smith and Charles Johnston have the championship of this grade.

Athletics

The grammar school football team made its last appearance of the season at Modoc park last Thursday. A game had been scheduled with the high school freshmen but the latter failed to appear and game was forfeited to the grammar school eleven. The grade boys have taken a great interest in football during the past season and have learned a lot about the fundamental points of the game, especially as it relates to good, clear school athletics. Football is the great American school game and as the style of play becomes more open, its popularity is increasing. The foundation of the boy's athletic life must start in the public school school and it is gratifying to see the boys take a wholesome interest in such games as football and baseball.

The prospects for a good eleven next season are very bright.

Manual Training Notes

With an attendance of about 250 boys. This department finds itself taxed to the limit, both in regard to work room and store room for unfinished work. The boys all hope for lockers where their work may be safely stored, but until our building is enlarged this would be hardly possible.

Several classes missed their usual period during Thanksgiving and will work with re-doubled energy to make up the lost time.

Pointers, window sticks, and shelves were made last week for the school in addition to the regular work.

As there are only three more periods of 45 day each for the 7th and 8th grades before the Christmas holidays, the boys will make a special effort to finish their pre-holiday work in due time.

Very creditable work was done last week by George Condry, Angus Walsh, Harry Molatore, Gordon Smith and Richard Peck.

ROSEBURG, Dec. 7.—A large copper still was brought to this city from near Glendale. HISTORIAN WRITES ON OREGON NORMAL SCHOOLS

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Dec. 7.—That normal school presidents in Oregon received as low as $1500 a year back in 1901 is brought out in "The History of Oregon Normal Schools," written by Almack, assistant director of the extension division of the University of Oregon. Some of the professors received as low as $400 a year and very few of them received as much as is now the minimum salary for rural teachers in most Oregon counties. This article, which was published in the Oregon historical quarterly, is one of a series of monographs on the history of education in Oregon, being edited by Dr. D. H. Sheldon, dean of the school of education.
