DON'T BE A SUCKER

Don't fall for the fly-by-night merchant who is here today and somewhere else two weeks from now. Klamath Falls has had more than its share of this class of dealer. A short time ago some fellows were in the city selling furs. They were dressed in sailor's uniforms and told their victims that they had smuggled them in from Siberia. Investigation by The Herald proved that they had purchased all of their supply in New York; that they were getting higher prices for an article that was inferior to that which could be purchased here from an established house; that they gouged their victim for all he or she would stand and had no fixed price. A few days later a chap was auctioning yard goods on the street, and the same story could be told of the material disposed of. The holidays are at hand and there is sure to be a new effort made by some fly-by-night to unload worthless stuff upon the unwary. Don't let them do it. Don't be a sucker. If you want to buy something, get it from a merchant at home. He stands back of what he sells if it proves to be unsatisfactory, you can get your money back. This paper tells you whenever any reputable merchant has bargains of real worth to offer you. Read the advertising and profit by it. We stand back of every statement made in these columns by any established business house in this city—and we permit only that class of advertising to appear in this paper.

At the Theaters

THE STAR THEATRE

The photoplay art progresses more rapidly every day. It has reached the point where the Belasco touch absolutely is demanded, and every effort is made to make scenes true to life. There are some directors who earnestly try to get the real honest-to-goodness article in preference to a passable make-shift.

Take for instance, the case of Director Ted Sloman in the National picture, "Blind Youth," which will be shown at the Star theatre tonight.

The picture called for a gay, colorful masquerade party in a studio of the Latin Quarter of Paris. Mr. Sloman could just as well have taken a lot of Hoosiers and native Californians and "Frenchified" them for the occasion.

But, no! Mr. Sloman heard there was a party of French officers visiting Los Angeles on some sort of government mission. Nothing would satisfy him but that these officers should participate in the studio scene. So a diplomatic emissary met the French officers in their hotel one fine afternoon and broached the proposition to them. They were delighted. At the masquerade they enjoyed themselves fully as much as if they were back in that dear Paris.

So when you go to see "Blind Youth," which, by the way, was written by Lou Tellegen and Willard Mack, look for that buoyant Parisian touch in the masquerade scene.

THE LIBERTY THEATRE

Do you believe that a man who had served a year in prison could step into the shoes of his minister brother? There is such a situation as the central theme of "Other Men's Shoes," the Edgar Lewis production, coming to the Liberty theatre today.

Stephen and Jim Browning were twin brothers so alike in face, form and voice that their most intimate friends could not tell them apart. Both were splendid men morally, but Stephen, the minister, was frail of body and meek of spirit and unable to withstand the buffets of a greedy and grasping world. Jim had heeded the call of Wanderlust for 12 years and had gone to jail for the crime of another.

When the strong brother steps into the shoes of the meek brother interesting complications arise, for no one but his sister and brother know of the masquerade. Blackmailers threaten to besmirch his name in the eyes of the townspeople whose attitude of tolerant respect changed to whole-hearted admiration when their minister suddenly displayed a courageous, two-fisted fighting spirit.
