

Dairying Great Industry for Klamath County

offer of the First National bank of this city, of a high class registered bull, to the community which first qualifies as 100 per cent successful in the campaign for getting rid of scrub bulls and replacing them with registered animals.

Best Dairy Feeds

The best dairy feed raised in Klamath county is alfalfa and sunflowers, County Agent Thomas states. This, with good pasture, with blue grass as a basis, cannot be excelled. And, Klamath county alfalfa, says Mr. Thomas shows possibilities for the highest type of forage and quantity per acre of that of any county in the state. For feeding value and production it is unexcelled. The use of sulphur has been wonderfully instrumental in placing our alfalfa upon its present high plane.

Silos Coming In

At the present time there are ten silos in this county. A year ago there was only one, this one being erected by H. A. Talbot who lives on the Keno road. Mr. Talbot's progressiveness was instrumental in causing the other nine to be erected.

There are three creameries in the county, one at Merrill, one at Fort Klamath, and the other one in this city. Every pound of butter made in these creameries finds ready sale here. An enormous amount of butter is shipped in every day. With Klamath county's wonderful possibilities as a dairying center, this importation of butter is regarded as a crime.

Of course, said Mr. Forge, in conversation with The Herald yesterday, the dairy industry cannot be built up in a day, but from his knowledge he knows that an extensive creamery and cold storage business was established at Havre, his former home, with not more than 400 cows from which to derive its support. From that it grew to wonderful proportions.

That Monthly Cream Check

Beef cattle of the right kind always play their part in farm and ranch life, but it remains for the dairy cow to produce the monthly pay check, to furnish milk for calves, hogs, and chickens, and in this way pave the way for real intensified and diversified farming. There is nothing to compare with it in the upbuilding of farming communities, and in addition, states both Mr. Forge and Mr. Thomas, the dairy business is one that does not require an immense acreage to assure success. Eighty acres, or less, are oftentimes sufficient as a basis for conspicuously successful dairy business.

Reverting to the Holsteins, it is pointed out that they are hardy animals, being natives of countries of rugged climates, are good rustlers, are prolific milk producers, and in short embrace all the qualities necessary in the highest type of dairy cattle.

Make Milk of It

At the present time there is an immense amount of hay in this county the selling price for which has dropped considerably. Why not, says Mr. Forge, convert this hay into milk right on the farm? Bigger returns are secured in this way. Begin the dairy business on a moderate safe basis. Keep only as many cows as you can feed from crops grown on your own farm. Never keep more cows than you can house comfortably throughout the winter, for every man going into the dairy business must learn that if his cows are going to give good results they must have adequate shelter, particularly in the winter months. Cleanliness also is a requirement that must not be overlooked.

Summed up, Mr. Forge is firm in his belief that this county is fundamentally a dairy section. People here do not know their possibilities in the dairying line. With soil and climate particularly adapted to the raising of the right sort of food for dairy cattle, with water always available, and with mild winters, what more can the dairymen ask?

They're All Awakening

County Agent Thomas is on the right track. He's working hard. So are all his co-workers. The banks of the county are showing a helpful spirit. Interest in farming is being evidenced by the interest taken in the present farm bureau congress now being held here. Everything seems propitious for bigger and better agricultural development in this county. A general get-together spirit will accomplish wonders, and don't overlook the "cows and sows." They are the bulwarks upon which the development of every successful farming community in the country has been built.

THE STAR THEATRE

Movie fans will have their opportunity to see how a "regular" girl behaves when Selznick Pictures present Elsie Janis in "A Regular Girl" at the Star theatre tonight.

Miss Janis, it will be remembered, forsook the stage and all its munificent earnings to go overseas to entertain her pals of the A. E. F. Her appearance at the Star theatre marks her first public bow in two years and no efforts have been spared to surround the popular comedienne with a story well calculated to exploit her versatile talents.

"A Regular Girl" is said to be one of the most entertaining photoplays produced in several months. The authors of the story—Frances Marion and Edmund Goulding—have taken a typical American girl, full of fun and ginger, and placed her in the center of a timely plot which deals with the problems and difficulties arising from her determination to land jobs for returned soldiers and aid them in finding "wives to match."

There are many novelty scenes throughout the picture, including those which show an entire circus in full blast, a trip through Coney Island's Luna park a party on board the yacht "Oneida" and the inner circles of one of New York's "well" boarding houses.

The characters in the play are picked from the stage of life itself. There are moments of tender heart appeal, interspersed with the inimitable clowning for which Elsie Janis has sole rights.

Cecil B. DeMille's latest production, "Why Change Your Wife?" is coming to the Star Friday and Saturday.

If you have seen "Male and Female," "For better, For Worse," "Don't Change Your Husband," there is nothing that can be said that will not sound weak beside your own remembrance.

"Why Change Your Wife?" is a story of married life. It is staged in the rich and lavish manner of all the DeMille productions. Its leading players are Thomas Meighan and Gloria Swanson, who played the leading roles in "Male and Female." Bebe Daniels, who scored such a hit in "Everywoman," is also in the cast, as well as a host of other favorites, such as Theodore Kosloff, the famous Russian dancer, Sylvia Ashton, Clarence Geldart and Maym Kelso.

The story was written by William DeMille, the scenario by Sada Cowan and Olga Printzlau. It is a Paramount Arctraft.

AT THE LIBERTY THEATRE
Did you know there were such things as "Floral Kisses"? Neither did anyone else until a press agent desperate to boost the "Vanities," a struggling musical comedy, advertised "Maybelle Flowers" as the "Kissing Girl." The young lady's assortment of osculatory caresses was said to include "the chaste lily-of-the-valley kiss; the scorching crimson rambler and the lingering tantalizing honeysuckle twister."

It threw an awful monkey wrench into the machinery! For Maybelle was no less than the daughter of a very proud old California family who had joined the chorus to recoup the falling family fortunes. When a man seeking a nice, safe co-respondent in a divorce suit gets tangled up with a jealous lover and proud parents feel "disgraced" by a daughter's connection with the stage—it can be imagined that "things are doing."

The floral kisses are but one of many comedy bits in "Food for Scandal." Wanda Hawley's new photoplay which comes to the Liberty theatre tonight.

Mr. Officer, Turn Him Loose!

One of the most terrific storms that has ever lashed the south Pacific into fury was utilized in the filming of "Under Crimson Skies," the Universal photodrama playing at the Liberty theatre.

Under the spur of a northwest gale, the usually docile Pacific plunged wildly off the southern Pacific coast and sent pyramids of water shattering into the rocks along the shore.

Rex Ingram, directing Elmo Lincoln in the romantic Universal-Jewel photodrama, decided that it was a fine night for ducks. Nevertheless, he thought, it was exactly the kind of a night that the Universal camera should record for "Under Crimson Skies," at the Liberty Theatre Saturday.
