HOB DOG IS ON THE ROAD AGAIN

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 28.—"Twenty-three," a dog of uncertain ancestry, also known as "the hobo" is riding freights again in Southern California after having been a patient in the Southern Pacific yard hospital here.

"Twenty-three" came to Los Angeles three months ago in an otherwise empty box car and Southern Pacific yardmen adopted him as a pet. He made trips out of town whenever he found a door open in an outgoing train, but invariably returned. His name was bestowed upon him because a two and a three were the first numerals of a long string on the car he occupied when he first arrived.

While in the yards his favorite pastime was riding running boards of switch engines. One day his tail was nipped under a wheel and he was taken to the hospital.

This camp town has been the center of anti-prohibition feeling for several months. Whole districts in this part of the north woods have been regarded by dry officials as law-defying communities.

Before the raiders got through 70 persons were arrested and 37 saloons raided. Two bobbed loads of liquor were seized.

HOW BANKER'S PIG BROUGHT BACON HOME

That "pigs is pigs," will not be denied by anyone, but that there is a great difference in pigs will not be denied either by anyone who has had much experience with them. Like Griswold, the humorist, who stated solemnly that he was brought up in Cincinnati "right among 'em," O. D. Burke, president of the Klamath State bank, also claims to have actual experience with the porcine family, and at one of the sessions of the farm bureau held here last week, Mr. Burke told a story that substantiates his claim to pig-raising knowledge.

Years ago, when Mr. Burke lived back in Nebraska, the premier corn and hog state of the union, he often went to nearby fairs as assistant to his brother-in-law who was extensively engaged in the livestock business. In this way, he gained some firsthand knowledge regarding the requirements of prize winning exhibits.

One day, O. D. was presented with a pig, a runt, with instructions to take care of it and prod it along toward real pig-like proportions. This pig, by the way, had lost its mother, and Mr. Burke states that, even if he says so himself, he made a very responsible substitute. The pig was of the Yorkshire breed, and therefore had a good foundation, a fact of which Mr. Burke took cognizance and legitimate advantage.

The pig outgrew its runt-like proportions. Finally, one day in April, during one of the worst blizzards of the season, O. D. went out into the field, found his pig and five little ones, carried them home, warmed up the little fellows behind the stove, and gave them all the care possible. They were his pigs, and pride of ownership undoubtedly was a big factor in the care heaped upon them.

Eventually the big Trans-Mississippi exposition at Omaha opened its doors to throngs of interested people. There were exhibits in all the livestock lines, and Mr. Burke's sow and five pigs were among them. To make a good story short, the runt that was, now grown and groomed into a wonderfully well developed sow, won the sweepstakes in her class, and with the five pigs carried away more premiums.

"That sow was in splendid shape," said Mr. Burke. "I scrubbed her, polished her, dined her and did everything necessary to bring home the bacon, and I want to say the medal I received is one of my most prized possessions. I attribute my success first to her pure bred ancestry, and second to the care I gave her from the time she was given to me as a seemingly hopeless runt."

"What I did at that time can be done on a more extensive scale here, and that is one of the reasons why I, in the name of the Klamath State bank, am taking so much interest in the effort to bring pure bred livestock into this county. I know the value of pure-blooded stock to any community, and I might add that it is the only kind of stock anyone can raise with a view to making stock-raising a profitable venture for him."

Family Left in Need As Result Garage Fire

Last night's fire was a hard blow to the Welmer family. William Welmer, a barber employed at the Mars shop, his wife and two children barely escaped the flames when their dwelling, adjoining the Call garage, was burned. They had no time to save their belongings and are in need of clothing and a place to live in, it was reported to The Herald today. Temporarily they are being sheltered by the White Pelican hotel.

Mrs. William Ganong, secretary of the Red Cross chapter, stated this afternoon that she would make investigation at once. If Mr. Welmer is an ex-service man the Red Cross can make direct provision for the family's needs, but if not it will be forced to take a roundabout course and get donations from friends for this specific case.

RELATIVES SUE TO BREAK DALY TRUST FUND

The $700,000 trust fund created by the late Dr. Bernard Daly to provide college education for the young people of Lake county, would be broken and the money distributed among the surviving relatives, in a suit filed in the federal court at Portland. The 15 surviving relatives of Dr. Daly, whose homes are scattered from Ireland to Italy, seek to break the will which established the educational fund, on technical grounds.

Dr. Daly, who died recently, was an old-time citizen of Lake county and he desired to leave the fortune which he amassed in Oregon, to provide college education for deserving young residents of his home county. In his will he created a trust fund of his entire fortune, the dividends of which were to be used in sending the young people of Lake county to Oregon institutions of higher learning.

Because of the sparsely populated condition of Lake county, it was considered highly probable that the fund would educate all of those who desired to attend, inasmuch as not more than 15 youths from the county would be eligible or available each year. P. L. Campbell, president of the University of Oregon; W. J. Kerr, president of the Oregon agricultural college, and W. D. Herrford, J. D. Herrford and Fred Reynolds, directors of the Bank of Lakeview, were made ex-officio trustees of the educational fund, and as such, they are codefendants in the suit brought by the relatives.

The fund is tied up in litigation over inheritance taxes and hence has not been available for the educational purposes. The attorney-general has ruled that an inheritance tax of $180,000 is due the state from the estate, and this ruling is being contested by the board of trustees. Besides this, the federal government seeks a further inheritance tax of $30,000.

The surviving relatives now ask that Dr. Daly be declared to have died intestate, and that they, as nearest of kin, inherit his fortune. They maintain that inasmuch as the fund was not given for a public charitable purpose, the document should be declared null and void. They further beg that the board of trustees created under the provisions of the will, be enjoined from carrying out its provisions, or from distributing or paying out any funds or income from the estate. The prayer of the relatives is couched in lengthy legal terms, and takes up many pages of typewritten matter.

The relatives are represented by Veazie & Veazie of Portland, and two eastern legal firms. Those contesting the will are Hugh Daly, James J. Daly, Mary A. Daly, Hugh J. Daly, Rosetta Daly Duffy, Edward Daly, Minnie Daly Danore, Bridget Daly Deader, John Daly, Hannah Daly Macklin, Margaret Mullen Haire, James Daly, Patrick Daly, Mary Daly, and Edward Daly.

The plan of the board of trustees before the filing of the present suit, was to meet every June after the completion of high school, and select the 15 most worthy students as recipients of the scholarships.

Councilman Lavenick Couldn't Do It Alone

Councilman Mike Lavenick was the only member of the city council present in the council chambers last night when the time arrived for calling to order the last session of this year. The clerk was absent also, but City Attorney Carnahan was at his post, and seconded Mr. Lavenick's motion to adjourn before convening. The motion prevailed, five citizens who were present voting unanimously for immediate adjournment.

CAL. WILL LEND AID TO REFORESTATION

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Dec. 28.—Reforestation of timber land in California through state aid will be urged by Edgar S. Hurley, assemblyman, at the session of the California legislature opening January 3.

HOMESPUN SUIT IS ON LOOM FOR HARDING

BOSTON, Mass., Dec. 28.—The homespun suit made for Vice-President-elect Coolidge during the election campaign is to be matched by a suit of homespun for President-elect Harding. The fabric is being woven on a loom 165 years old by Mrs. Laura A. Jackson of this city on whose farms in Bethel, Bt., the wool was clipped from native sheep. Mrs. Jackson, notwithstanding advanced years, put the wool through every process necessary for its conversion into cloth. When finished the fabric will be of heather color in a subdued shade.

DEL MONTE SOCIETY PLANS A FOX HUNT

FIRE DESTROYS GARAGE, CARS AND DWELLING

Fire, which probably originated from a stove left smoldering in the building after it was closed up for the night, completely destroyed the Klamath Auto company's garage and repair shop at 1157 Main street between one and two o'clock this morning. A small house on the west side of the garage, occupied by William Welmer, was also destroyed.

The alarm was turned in by Robert Bissell, employed at the White Pelican hotel, who noticed the blaze, which had already gained considerable headway, while he was returning from the postoffice. The fire department, somewhat handicapped by slushy streets, made a creditable run, and immediately turned its attention to save the nearby buildings. The work of the fire department was made more dangerous by the frequent explosion of gasoline tanks in the cars in the garage, but they worked with determination, and while it became apparent early during the firefighting that the garage and its contents were doomed, the safety of the other buildings was soon assured. The garage was a frame structure and burned rapidly.

The heat was terrific, windows in the Jackson apartments, about 45 feet away, being broken.

Mr. Call estimates the loss on his stock of tires and accessories, and 13 cars at $12,000. On these he carried $5,300 insurance, $4,300 with Dunbar & Dunbar, and $1,000 with Fred Buesing, both of this city. Jasper Bennett, owner of the garage building and the little cottage next to it, had insured the former with Fred Buesing for $1,000, and the latter for $500. Mr. Bennett is out of town and his loss estimate could not be learned, but judged by the nature of the buildings the insurance will cover the greater part of it. In addition to the 13 cars owned by Mr. Call, the car loss included a Ford owned by H. V. Dow, a Willys-Knight owned by H. A. Thede, a Studebaker Six, the property of Fred Duke, another Studebaker owned by a Mr. Lindsey of the Modoc Lumber company, D. M. Smith's Maxwell, and a Ford owned by Elmer French.

It is possible to salvage some parts of the cars, some of the engines having been sufficiently protected to warrant repairing, but judged by the blackened, bent and crushed appearance of the autos the amount of salvage will be trifling compared with the loss.

Damage Suit and Forgery Case Dropped

Suit for $5000 damages, brought several months ago by Violet Turpin, against A. G. Dunlap, was dismissed by Judge D. V. Kuykendall today. The suit was based on an allegation that defendant had circulated harmful stories. It followed the arrest of Alfred Turpin, on complaint of the Spot Cash Basket grocery, with which Dunlap was connected, for forgery.

Turpin was indicted for forgery and his case was also dismissed today by Judge Kuykendall, both actions being dropped for insufficient evidence to warrant prosecution.
