THE SANDWICH

When a person goes into a restaurant and orders a sandwich he little knows, nor little cares, perhaps, the history that's come down through the centuries, as to just how the lowly sandwich got its name.

But perhaps one pricks up his ears when told that gambling was at the root of it. To the same man, history tells us, is due the credit for the naming of the sandwich and the naming of the Sandwich Islands.

The Earl was considerable of a public man, it seems, a good debater, and a sporting man. He was an inveterate gambler. As a result of this he frequently gambled all through his meal hours.

And just to make the memory of the inventor of the sandwich indelible, Captain James Cook, that wonderful navigator named the Sandwich Islands for him back there in 1778.

INTENSITY

Somebody once asked Henry Ward Beecher what he best liked to do of all things in the world.

"Preaching," answered the famous preacher.

But what do you like best for recreation? That's your vocation. What's your avocation?

"Preaching," answered Beecher.

"Yes, yes, but what do you like to do to give you a relief from preaching?"

"Preaching," again came the answer.

Henry Ward Beecher was not a narrow man, but he evidently believed in intensity.

He liked his work so well that he could even find relief from work in more work. Is it any wonder that he succeeded in it?

It must be noted, however, that his work was of a very broad kind, as well as a broadening kind. By it and through it he could follow every avenue of human thought, if he would. He could thereby compass that most admirable definition of education—"to know a great deal about some one thing and a little about everything."

Nevertheless his answers were a lesson in the value of intensity to achieve accomplishment.

"Preaching" and "preaching" and "preaching" made him a great preacher, perhaps America's greatest preacher.

TRUCKEE, Jan. 6.—About 200 people, arriving here in a special train of eight cars, spent a two-day vacation enjoying the winter sports which opened New Year's day.

PALESTINE HAS VAST WEALTH

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—The natural resources of Palestine are greater than those of Southern California and are able to support decently about 4,000,000 people, Harry Thomas Cory, former director-general of foreign relief for the American Red Cross, declared in a report to the Zionist organization of American made public here today.

Mr. Cory, a California engineer, went to Palestine recently at the invitation of Justice Brandeis, honorary president of the international and American Zionist organization. He had just investigated the Nile river irrigation projects in Egypt.

Mr. Cory said his findings after a short survey of the Holy Land were in complete accord with those of Sir William Willcox, head of the Nile projects commission of the Egyptian government, and Professor R. H. Forbes, of the University of Nebraska and an American student of desert irrigation.

"The western slope of Palestine is naturally better than the Southern California region in and about Los Angeles, which has made possible that city's enormously rapid development," Mr. Cory said. "The configuration is strikingly similar, and I was therefore not surprised to learn that it was planned to irrigate 150,000 acres of this coastal land in relatively small units, largely by pumps.

"The soil of western Palestine is better in all essential particulars, more fertile and more favorable for intensive development. In the lower regions there is no danger from frost. Nowhere in Southern California is there frost-proof area.

"The greater quantity and better distribution of the rainfall renders 'dry farming' easier and safer in Palestine regions.

"The valley of the Jordan is an entirely different matter as to climatic conditions and many other features. However, Sir William, Professor Forbes and I are in complete agreement as to the feasibility of irrigating at least 500,000 acres there. Sir William and I are entirely satisfied as to the ability to economically develop 50,000 horsepower in hydroelectric plants.

"The 500,000 acres are much more comparable to the irrigated lands in the Imperial Valley, the southeastern corner of California overlapping into Mexico.

"The future of Palestine is entirely dependent upon the human element. In that regard I was greatly surprised and impressed by the fact that probably the Zionists will be able to secure very quickly ownership of over half the land in that country. Further, the land which can be secured is apparently typical of the region as a whole.

"The one outstanding element in the human phase of the situation is the extraordinary morale which I found among the Zionists of all grades in Palestine. I was impressed with the exuberant spirit of enthusiasm and sacrifice for a cause."

NINE INCHES OF SNOW AT MALIN

MALIN, Jan. 6.—Nine inches of snow fell Wednesday morning throughout the Malin and Tule lake valley. Rain preceded the snow assuring plenty of moisture for the dry farmers. Cattle and sheep owners will have to feed larger quantities of hay until the snow melts.

CAL. CANNERS MEET TO TALK READJUSTMENT

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 6.—Canners generally realize that costs and prices must be brought down to a low basis that will restore confidence in the market and justify purchasing on the part of dealers, Vice President C. H. Bentley of the California Fruit Packing corporation declared here today in an address before the annual meeting of the Cannery league of California.

Although such falling prices make the farmer "less wealthy on paper than he thought he was," Mr. Bentley said, it is necessary that the process continue until price levels are on a competitive basis enabling the sale of surplus farm and factory products in foreign trade.

He said it was likely that every material entering into manufacture of canned goods, as well as labor, would be cheaper this year than in 1920, but that these low cost goods would hardly reach the market before summer and fall. As the pack on most varieties had been restricted the last year, according to Mr. Bentley, probably the entire stock on hand would be marketed before the 1921 crop appeared.

"If American industries maintain their normal production, foreign markets must be found and developed, both for disposal of the surplus and as a means of stabilizing home markets," he said, in urging that tariff laws be revised with a view not only to home protection and revenue but also developing foreign trade. "It is obvious that the enormous indebtedness owed to this country by our late associates in war cannot be paid unless they are enabled to sell their own products," Mr. Bentley continued. "A high tariff wall erected without any appreciation of the various factors entering into the problem will not only delay the normal business relations but invite retaliation in these foreign countries against the products which we desire to export."

State Highway Contracts Are Let; Bonds Sell at 90.7

PORTLAND, Jan. 6.—The state highway commission contracted for building 58.78 miles of road at Tuesday's session at an aggregate cost of $434,481. Advertisement for bids for grading the Oregon trail from the Umatilla county line to La Grande; for culverts between Bend and Milligan, and for construction of the Clackamas river bridge were, ordered.

Survey of 38 miles of the John Day highway from Condon to Arlington was ordered. The commission disposed of $500,000 worth of bonds, out of $1,500,000 offered. The best bid was 90.71 compared with 94.58 in November.
