THE LIBERTY.

Pearl White, "the marvel of the screen," is coming to the Liberty theatre Sunday, being presented by William Fox in a special production, "The White Moll," a stirring story of life in New York's underworld. This is her first big production—she having heretofore devoted her screen work to serials.

The story was written by Frank L. Packard, author of "the Miracle Man," and the scenario by E. Lloyd Sheldon. It deals with Rhoda, a girl crook of the slums, who, having seen the light in a startling miracle performed in St. Agnes' church—where her father is killed trying to rob the poor box—determines to reform and labor to aid those in the underworld. As a settlement worker she becomes known by the crooks and gangsters as "The White Moll."

Her work has started to bear fruit. "The Sparrow," a notorious safe burglar, who has served a long term in prison is released. When "The Dangler," leader of the gang tempts the released convict to return to his his unlawful trade, "The White Moll," who has been caring for his aged mother, steps in and wins the Sparrow's promise to go straight. But she incurs the enmity of the Dangler, who determines to "frame" the Sparrow. Then begins a series of thrilling experiences, which, it is said, make the picture one of the most fascinating and heart-appealing ever screened.

THE MONDALE.

The struggle of the defenders of world democracy against German kultur is pictured with the force of a great epic in D. W. Griffith's tremendous love story of the present war, "Hearts of the World," which opens its local engagement in this city at the Mondale Sunday and Monday.

The big film is the finest example of Griffith's art and is a drama of life and love, hope and fear, joy and sorrow, and at the same time a tremendously stirring patriotic story. It isn't that D. W. Griffith's big play has more guns in it than any other war play; it isn't because it shows life in the trenches as it is, for these things have been shown time and time again without number; it isn't because of the photography and the exteriors are wonderfully beautiful, not that the cast is well chosen and the story is intensely interesting and human. It is because every character in the play is real.

THE STAR

Whether or not you are interested in the problems of hercity advanced by Robert W. Chambers in "The Fighting Chance," you will be entertained by the lavish screen version of the popular novel which is coming to the Star theatre tonight.

The story centers around the efforts of Stephen Sward and Sylvia Landis, both youthful members of New York society, to fight off the weakness in their erring ancestors. The man has an insatiable craving for alcohol, and the girl has a perverted sense of moral and ethical standards. Craving the luxury that money brings, she has become engaged to a multi-millionaire. Then Stephen comes along. The dramatic events that follow form the main plot of the photoplay.

All of the brilliant society atmosphere that has made Mr. Chambers a favorite American author has been retained. It is said, in the pictured "The Fighting Chance." Anna Q. Nilsson and Conrad Nagel have the leading roles. The picture, which is a Paramount-Artcraft, was directed by Charles Maigne.

Lionel Barrymore in "The Master Mind," will be the attraction at the Star theatre, beginning Sunday. This is the first of a series of Barrymore photoplays to be presented by the Associated First National and it is claimed to be one of the sensational screen masterpieces of the season. Mr. Barrymore is himself authority for the statement that he has never had a role which provided a wider latitude for his talents.

ELKS SHOW TONIGHT

Rural Schools Topic of N. E. A.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 8.—The "great problem in American education—the rural school" will be the first topic considered by the department of superintendence of the National Education association when it meets at Atlantic City, February 26-March 3. Association headquarters here have estimated that 8000 educators will attend this meeting and those of the National Society of Vocational Education, the National Council of Education and other department and allied associations which will also meet in Atlantic City at this time.

One entire session of the department of superintendence will be given over to the consideration of what the rural schools have accomplished and what steps have been taken to better them. The tentative list of speakers on this topic includes Will C. Wood, state superintendent of education in California; W. L. Harding, retiring governor of Iowa; W. C. Bagley, of the Teachers' college, New York and Ralph Decker, superintendent of schools in Sussex county, New Jersey.

How to get better teaching will be another topic at the meeting and other sessions will be devoted to problems peculiar to the duties of school superintendents. City, county and state superintendents from all sections of the country have been asked to take part in these discussions.

A number of special addresses are also on the tentative program of the convention. The list of speakers includes Sir Auckland Geddes, ambassador from Great Britain; Representative H. M. Towner of Iowa who introduced in congress the bill to create a federal department of education; Nicholas Murray Button university; Dr. P. P. Claxton, United States commissioner of education, and Dr. John H. Finley, commissioner of education for the state of New York. These addresses are to be given at general evening sessions of the department but their subjects have not been announced.

VICE PRESIDENT CAN MILK, BUT PHOTOGRAPH WAS PURE CAMOUFLAGE

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Jan. 8.—Vice President-elect Coolidge can milk a cow, but he did not milk the one he was represented as milking in a photograph taken last July while he was on a vacation at his father's farm in Plymouth, Vt., after his nomination in Chicago. However, it was the cow's fault and not the governor's.

In explaining the misrepresentation to Horace A. Moses, president of the Hampden county improvement league, Governor Coolidge said that the cow was a creature of temperament and insisted on being milked indoors. The picture released to the press last summer, showed the candidate in the accepted position for milking, and apparently getting results.

"You see," he said, "she has always been accustomed to being milked indoors and when I approached her with a pail and milking stood she quite naturally in accordance with long established precedent, started for the barn door."

It took several minutes of coaxing before the cow would so far depart from the law and order of her ways as to stand in the barnyard while the governor had a pretense of milking her. To really do so out-of-doors was quite out of the question, he declared.

are rapidly readjusted, that it was possible that the plant would be erected this summer.

The present mill has a yearly capacity of 34,000,000 feet. It will continue to operate, so that the expansion plan will give the company a milling capacity of easily 80,000,000 feet a year, and the logging road will give it access to 850,000,000 feet of fine timber.

Pelican Bay Taps Timber. The Pelican Bay company's logging road into the Bear Creek unit, north of Kirk, tapping 600,000,000 feet of new timber, is ready for operation during the coming season. The lumber will be manufactured at the plant north of this city.

FEWER MISHAPS TO LAKE SHIPPING 1920

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 8.—Marked reduction in the number of marine disasters on the Great Lakes during the 1920 season, compared with 1919, is shown in the records of shipping companies here. During 1920 there were eight vessel losses and 29 lives lost, against 19 vessel losses and 80 lives lost the preceding year.

The 29 persons who lost their lives last year perished when the steamer Superior City sank in Lake Superior off Whitefish point. This occurred on the night of August 20 after a collision with steamer Willis L. King.

The collision is said to have been due to a fog. The Superior City sank so quickly after the collision it was impossible to launch boats, according to the stories of four survivors. One of those lost was a woman, wife of the second engineer.

In London during the Great plague of 1665 smoking was not only encouraged among the children, it was actually enforced, under severe penalties.

Labor Leader Ready For Readjustment

in pressing their claim. Recent testimony given by Mr. Grace of the United States Steel corporation before the New York investigation committee shows that organization determined to maintain the principle of the open shop, and manufacturers generally appear to be favorable to the steel corporation's position. Advocates of the open shop maintain that a man's right to work is an inalienable as his right to quit, and the loss of public sympathy which organized labor has suffered during the past few years makes it difficult to combat this proposition.

In spite of this unfavorable position, organized labor is putting up a spirited fight, and, while wages are bound to come down, there is no question that they will remain higher than the pre-war standard. Neither will wages come down without a corresponding graduation in cost of commodities.

Outlook Is Healthy

Observers here believe that the present situation has healthy tendencies and will result in a readjustment of the relations between capital and labor. The chief danger seen at present is in the possibility that capital may become arrogant and invoke the same rebuke that has just been administered to the powerful labor organizations.
