WEDNESDAY BARGAIN DAY

Judgment can fail to recognize in this week's offerings prices that would have been real bargains in pre-war days. There is no camouflage in this Bargain Day proposition. It has a two-fold object: First, it is out to convince the people of the county that they can buy here just as cheaply as any place else. Second, the special price is made on one article to get you to visit the store. The mere fact that only one article is given does not mean that that is the only bargain you will find. The Herald limited the merchant to just one article. We know you will find other bargains when you visit the store if you wish to look around. If you do this the purpose of this Bargain Day will be served, for you find that your home merchant is not the profiteer you have been thinking he is.

It is up to the people to say whether they want this Wednesday Bargain Day to continue. If the merchant finds that there is a demand for what he is offering, he will continue; if he sees that the public is not responsive, he will discontinue his special offering, and Wednesday Bargain Day will be discontinued. The Herald is confident that Wednesday will be the biggest day of the week and will be profitable alike to buyer and seller. At least, we are sure of it if the prices are cut in the future as they are out this week.

WOMAN IN HER NEW SPHERE
Writer Asserts She Has Ceased to Be Sentimental and Is Armed for World's Work.

"Women no longer marry for a home and a provider," writes Frances Hodgson Burnett in McCall's.

"To begin with, woman has largely ceased to be an amateur and a sentimentalist, and she has also largely ceased to be regarded as either one or the other or both, as the natural and inescapable result of her sex. Such paid work as she undertakes to perform is not approached in the tremulous hope that incompetence and inexactness will be overlooked 'in a woman' because a woman called upon to be self-supporting must necessarily be regarded as an unnatural and pathetic object.

"Women have begun to support themselves as a matter of decency and preference—from which has evolved the fact that they have ceased to marry merely to have 'someone to provide for them.'

"Coming into competition with men, in her search for self-support, the woman whose portion it was to retain her despairing hold upon hope by studying more 'to please' has found it incumbent upon her to supply herself—among other working tools—with men's logic, men's restraint and men's knowledge of the necessary ignoring in the workaday world of the personal influence which is a matter of gender. Beauty and gender still exist, but they are no longer the sole working assets."

PHOTOS NOW SENT BY CABLE
Their Successful Transmission Has Passed Beyond the Range of an Experiment.

Photographs have been successfully cabled across the Atlantic. The first pictures actually transmitted were probably those taken in New York of the recent international yacht race and reproduced a few hours later in a London newspaper. There are several methods of transmitting photographs by wire and even by wireless electricity, but the system followed in cabling the yacht pictures is probably the best. The negative containing the photograph is "coded," or prepared for transmission by an ingenious device which reduces the picture to an arrangement of messages which resemble an ordinary cable code and can be transmitted as such. This message can be handed into a telegraph office for transmission like any other message. On being received on the other side of the Atlantic this message is placed in a machine resembling an ordinary typewriter and is in turn reproduced by a series of holes in a long tape. The tape is then placed in the reproducing machine with an undeveloped plate and after being transmitted the plate is placed in a developing bath which reproduces the original picture in every detail. Some details are lost in the sending, but it is promised that the machine will soon be perfected and the long distance transmission of photographs will be a commonplace.—Boys' Life.

Fossil Whale Unearthed.
A rare fossil, that of a Miocene whale, has been found by Dr. Earl L. Packard, professor of geology at the University of Oregon, near Eugene, Oregon.

The relic of prehistoric times, which was found in the cliffs along the beach at Newport, Ore., is, Doctor Packard believes, the finest specimen of fossil whale yet found in North America. Such petrified skeletons are very rare and the extreme age of the recent find makes it of particular interest to scientific men.

Only the skull of the creature has been exhumed from its rocky bed and Doctor Packard is now preparing it for addition to the Condon geological museum of the University of Oregon. The bones are rather small, indicating that the leviathan was young, or, which is more probable, that the leviathans of the Miocene age were markedly smaller than those of the present day.

Fish Not Affected by Tar.
The old question of the effect of tarring roads on fish in neighboring streams has been settled anew at Chesham, England. The main road of the town was tarred last winter for the first time, and this has been followed by the death of large numbers of trout and other fish in the River Chess. A special commission of investigation, however, has now reported that the fish destruction was not a result of the road tarring or of any epidemic disease. The real cause appears to have been poisoning by a temporary increase in the industrial pollution of a ditch which discharges into the river and is practically an industrial sewer.

Thrift in the Paint Brush.
A little attention to details on the part of the housewife will prolong the life of utensils or utilities which cost considerable money to replace these days. The varnish on carpet sweepers soon wears off; unprotected as it is from moisture and variations in temperature, it is likely to fall to pieces. This can easily be prevented by applying a coat of stain finish, obtainable at any paint store. Washing machines should also be protected from variations of temperature and moisture by applying a coat of colored enamel when needed. Porch furniture, screen doors, baby carriages and folding screens should all be thus cared for.—Thrift Magazine.
