THE MONDALE

Riding across the drifted wastes of the Mojave desert, Jack Keith, border ranger, observed a thin wreath of smoke curling up from the barren sands.

Investigation disclosed to the horror-stricken eyes of the ranger that a prairie schooner had been fired after the two occupants had been murdered.

Death had evidently come from unseen hands. It was apparent that the assassins, concealed behind a sand dune, had shot down the travelers. They had then set fire to the prairie schooner in the hope that the flames would destroy evidence of their crime. With a shovel that had escaped the fire, Keith made two graves. Before placing the bodies to rest he took from the clothing the few belongings the men had carried, trusting that they might aid him in establishing the identity of the murdered men.

Keith thought that his act of humanity had been unseen. But his every move had been under observation.

He rode into town and stabled his horse. As he walked off, the sheriff of Los Palos placed a heavy hand on his shoulder and arrested him for the murder of the two desert victims.

Alone and friendless, with enemies all about him plotting his ruin, Jack Keith made his escape.

Roy Stewart, Triangle cowboy star, is the mastodon who plays fighting Jack, and Josie Sedgwick is the girl who wins his heart as Hope Waite. "Keith of the Border" will be shown at the Mondale theatre on Wednesday and Thursday.

THE STAR

"It all depends on where you sit," is an old saying which most aptly describes Elaine Hammerstein's latest Selznick picture, "The Point of View," which is announced as the headline attraction at the Star theatre tonight.

Miss Hammerstein is seen in this production as the daughter of a once wealthy father. The girl is the only practical member of a family who have never had to provide for themselves and who consequently are completely lost when adversity strikes them. Hilbert the Thorncroft family have always looked down upon anyone not born of the blood, but their point of view is changed by a big-hearted younger westerner who capably demonstrates to them that when a friend is needed it is red blood that counts far more than blue.

"The Point of View" is one of those "common sense" pictures that avoids all extremes of theatricalism and puts over its point by the real true-to-life situations it depicts. The story is by Edith Ellis and Alan Crosland directed the picture.

Added attractions are the Fourth episode of "The Lost City and a two-reel comedy.

THE LIBERTY

"The House of the Tolling Bell" is the title of the photoplay which features the program of the Liberty theatre for tonight. My McAvoy, the petite and charming star of "Man and His Woman," is the featured player of this newest Blackton-Pathé production, ably supported by Bruce Gordon.

The theme of "The House of the Tolling Bell" deals with the chivalry, the passion and the superstition of the south.

Mysterious Walker was known the length and breadth of the Canadian northwest. Over him hung a cloud. No one knew what it was, not even his beautiful spirited daughter, Wanda, the master of any horse in that wild country. The enigma is in a way cleared up when "Thundering Ames," a notorious bandit, makes the section his stamping ground. Into the net is drawn Hanlon, deputy of the royal northwest mounted, that essentially useful and at the same time romantic organization. How a deep, fearless love is born between Wanda, played by the daring young actress, Edythe Sterling, and Hanlon, and how the mystery which throttled her father's life is cleared up make the existing tale around which is woven "The One-Way Trail," the latest Republic picture starring Edythe Sterling, which comes to the Liberty Wednesday.

Major Sloan of the U. S. army recruiting service will arrive here tonight and will open a recruiting station in Klamath Falls.
