Title Plus Millions

Another American heiress became the wife of a titled European when Eleanor May Guggenheim, daughter of the "copper king," became the bride of Viscount Stuart, heir to the Earl of Castlewart, County Tyrone, Ireland. They are shown leaving St. Margaret's church, Westminster, London, after the wedding.

U. S. COULD DO MUCH WITH TEN BILLION DOLLARS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—What the ten billion dollar foreign debt means to the people of the United States, is set forth by the republican publicity association, through its President, Hon. Jonathan Bourne, Jr., as follows:

"A number of newspapers have been calling attention, recently, to some of the uses the United States could make of the $10,000,000,000 this country has loaned to European nations and which eventually, we hope to have repaid. A number of those who have commented on this subject have pointed out that at an average cost of $25,000 a mile, the ten billion dollars would construct 400,000 miles of hard surfaced highway—enough to give the United States the best highways in the world. Suggestions along this line are evidently made, not with the view of advising what should be done with the money but what might be done with it—the purpose being to illustrate in a concrete way what ten billion dollars means.

"The fact of the matter is that few people are able to grasp the immensity of valuation expressed with a dollar sign, a figure '1' and ten ciphers. All of us can recognize a dollar when it looks like 40 cents. Many of us can remember when a dollar looked as big as a cart wheel. Some of us can visualize a $1000 and we presume there are a lot of people who really understand what a million dollars means.

"But ten billions is beyond the power of any human mind to grasp unless it is translated into some concrete form with which we are more familiar and which we can stretch our imaginations to comprehend. Therefore, when some newspapers translated our foreign loans into miles of hard surface highway, they rendered a real public service, for they helped the people of the United States to understand exactly what is proposed by those visionaries who advocate the cancellation of European debts to the United States.

"There are other good and useful things the United States can and will do with that ten billions when we get it back. In the first place, the United States owes some $24,000,000,000 on which it is paying interest. The interest charge goes far to swell the taxes the American people are called upon to pay each year. A considerable part of that ten billions could be applied to the liquidation of the debts owed by the United States, thus stopping the interest charge.

"Moreover, if a considerable part of that ten billions were applied to the payment of outstanding Liberty bonds, those bonds, which are now worth about 85 cents on the dollar, would advance in market value and perhaps reach par. People who loaned their money to the government on the assurance that the loan would be a safe investment, but who have witnessed a 15-per cent decline in the value of their security, will scarcely favor a cancellation of the $10,000,000,000 debt when it could be applied to the payment of the obligations the government owes them.

"Cancellation of the $10,000,000,000 debt would be a relief to the people of European nations to that extent, but it would be in effect an additional burden upon the American people to a similar extent. Cancellation of the debt would postpone the time when the United States will be able to pay its own bonds, would extend the period during which American taxpayers must raise money to pay interest, and would delay the time when Liberty bonds will be restored to par.

"As remarked before, if we do not use that ten billion dollars to build roads, we can find other good and useful purposes to which it can be applied."

A Classified Ad will sell it.

QUALITY

The Heel Lasts as Long as the Sole

If you have had trouble with your rubbers breaking through at the heel before the rest of the rubber was worn, buy a pair of Top Notch Rubbers. Every curve and angle of the heel is so strengthened that it resists the gritty grind of walk, gutter and pavement. It will last as long as the sole—and this means that you will get extra value from every pair. Both soles and uppers are pure gum.

The ladies especially will like Top Notch Rubbers which are made in all styles for every member of the family.
