THE LIBERTY

While filming the unusual desert scenes that are a feature of J. Warren Kerrigan's latest Brunton production, "The Coast of Opportunity," released by W. W. Hodkinson and showing tonight at the Liberty theatre, the entire company was lost 48 hours in a sandstorm.

In this picture Kerrigan plays the role of a young mining engineer who roams the waste places of the earth in search of rich fields of ore. Deep in a desert region of Old Mexico he discovers a heavy vein of copper and makes his fortune. The star took his company 40 miles into the arid Mojave desert to film these scenes. Half of this distance was covered on horseback, the rolling sand dunes prohibiting motor transportation.

Camp was made the first night in the lee of a sand knoll. At midnight a gale came up that completely wrecked the tents of the actors. When daylight arrived the sun was totally obscured by fine particles of sand and drifts had hidden a major part of the camp equipment.

"La La Lucille," presented by Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran, the comedy favorites of the films, will be shown at the Liberty theatre on Friday. Although this feature has just been released, many glowing reports of its quality have already been received, the one that will appeal to local theatregoers most being that it is more clever and amusing than Lyons and Moran's first fun feature, "Everything But the Truth."

Flow In River About at Average With Other Years

A discussion relative to the amount of water now passing through the Link river resulted in an appeal to Mr. Smith of the United States reclamation service and, off hand, Mr. Smith volunteered the information that the river at present contained only an average amount of water, lower in fact than in most of the years since 1907.

Not content to trust to his recollection of figures, Mr. Smith turned to the records and found that at present the flow is 3100 second feet. In all except two or three years since 1907, when the flow reached 5000 second feet, the average has been a trifle higher than the figures shown at this time. The record for April, 1919, shows the same amount as at present. In January, 1918, the water was a foot lower than it is now. In fact, the records show numerous instances when the water was much higher than it is now.

THE STAR

Early American history is graphically represented on the screen in Maurice Tourneur's new special film, "The Last of the Mohicans," which shows at the Star theatre commencing tonight.

The actual event repeated was the horrible massacre of Fort William Henry, New York, which took place on August 10th 1757. Strangely enough, Tourneur filmed the identical scenes on the tenth of August, 1920, and for a time it looked as if the calendar had returned to colonial days, so realistic was the big scene.

It was a bloody affair, but only one gallon of glycerine blood was spilled over the ground at the Tourneur studio. Montcalm, the French general, set out from Canada with savages as his allies, determined to capture the British forts. The general, Col. Munro, and thousands of soldiers and Indians lived again in the film scenes.

This special picture comes with an all-lead cast, headed by such well-known players as Wallace Beery, Albert Roscoe, Joseph Singleton, Barbara Bedford, Lillian Hall and Henry Woodward, with an array of player talent that is capable of carrying a picture unaided.

Cartoonist's Work Appreciated By Liberty Audience

A laugh a minute is no longer a record for a vaudeville act according to those who saw the Cartoonist Payne in action at the Liberty theatre last night. Payne dishes out a brand new laugh every eight seconds. He is a small man with big ideas who makes the crayon do stunts with speed and accuracy that startles. His stories are good and to the point and the audience both young and old followed him closely throughout the series of 26 cartoons and character studies. Mr. Payne closed his act with a scene on Klamath Lake which was much appreciated. As one of the theatre's patrons remarked "we don't get that kind of a show very often—it sure is good. Payne will appear again tonight with an entirely new line of stories and some new faces that will have a laugh in each line. It is an act that theatre goers all like."

MULTNOMAH SOLON HURLS BOOK AT EDITOR

(By Associated Press.)
SALEM, Jan. 13.—Senator Joseph, of Multnomah, hurled a binder containing a copy of the Oregon Voter at its editor, C. C. Chapman, in the senate room, following a denunciation of the Oregon Voter by Senator Thomas, because of an article attacking Senator Jones of Eugene. The binder grazed the editor's ear.

Advertised for Pup—Got It and Whole Menagerie

"Great are The Herald want ads." So saith Bill Ganong, court stenographer par excellence. A few days ago Bill lost an Airdale pup. He confided his loss to a friend. Advertise for it in The Herald said the latter, and straightway the disconsolate owner of the pup inserted an advertisement in the said Herald. He had hardly reached home that night when the telephone rang, and after a brief parley it was ascertained that the lost was found. It was restored to the Ganong home immediately. He also says that there were nine or ten more people with dogs in town who came to his home that night, but none of them were able to persuade him that the canines they were trying to dispose of belonged to him. At that, he says, there were some mighty fine dogs in the bunch, and he was sorely tempted to claim a couple of them and present them to Lloyd DeLap so that the latter would have something to occupy his attention during lulls in circuit court work.

SUIT FOR ATTORNEY'S FEES ON TRIAL NEXT

There was no trial in the circuit court today, the case of George Hartley against the Modoc Lumber company which was to have been tried, having been settled and dismissed. Tomorrow the trial of C. J. Ferguson against Henrietta Melhae is scheduled. The suit is based on a claim for attorneys fees, which plaintiff alleges he earned while representing defendant as counsel in a will contest several years ago.

Bargain Day Sales Very Good, Report

Bargain day, inaugurated by the advertising department of The Evening Herald, was abundantly successful yesterday, the stores reporting very satisfactory sales. Like all good things, or most all good things, it takes more than two or three efforts to put them upon their feet, but this venture is walking already, and seems to be a permanent institution here. The public is beginning to understand it, and next Wednesday should see yesterday's record eclipsed.

amount of income between $6000 and $8000, and 3 per cent on the amount of income between $8000 and $9000.

If computed separately, the husband may deduct the personal exemption of $2000 from his income of $7000 and on the remainder pay a normal tax of $240, being 4 per cent on the first $4000 and 8 per cent on the excess. His surtax amounts to $30, being 1 per cent on the amount of his income between $5000 and $6000, and 2 per cent on the amount of his income between $6000 and $7000. The wife receives no personal exemption, and her entire income of $2000 is taxed at the rate of 4 per cent, being less than $4000. The husband's tax is $270 and the wife's $80.

Exemptions Not For All
Not every married person is entitled to the $2000 exemption. The claim is dependent upon whether man and wife are living together within the meaning of the revenue act. In the absence of continuous residence together, whether a man or woman is living with wife or husband depends upon the character of the separation.

If occasionally and temporarily the wife is away on a visit or the husband is away on business, the joint home being maintained, the $2000 exemption applies. Unavoidable absence of a wife or husband at a sanatorium on account of illness does not preclude a claim for the exemption. If, however, the husband voluntarily and continuously makes his home at one place and the wife at another, they are not living together, within the meaning of the income tax laws regardless of their personal relations. In case of separation by mutual agreement each must make a return of income of $1000 or more. The same rule applies in case of divorce or legal separation. A maid or widow not the head of a family and without dependents is entitled only to a $1000 exemption.

How to Determine Status
The status of a taxpayer on the last day of the taxable year determines the amount of his exemptions. If on December 31, 1920, he was married and living with his wife he may claim the $2000 exemption, although the marriage may have taken place on December 30. If on December 30 he became a widower, he is entitled only to the $1000 allowed a single person unless the head of a family.
