

COUNCIL TURNS DOWN WILSON FOR POLICE HEAD

H. S. Wilson will not be reappointed chief of police of this city. This was decisively asserted at the meeting of the city council last night when Councilmen Vollmer, Bogardus, and McCollum voted against his re-appointment by Mayor Wiley. Councilman West and Hawkins voted in favor of the chief's retention.

After the council had refused to affirm the mayor's appointment, the latter recommended Price Recob for position. He, also, was turned down. Councilman Vollmer did not vote this time, Bogardus and McCollum voting against Recob's appointment, and West and Hawkins voting for him. The tie vote disposed of Recob's candidacy. Recob is a federal investigator of liquor violators in Indian territory.

The list of appointments offered by the mayor included the name of George McDonald as patrolman, but the council also refused to confirm his appointment, the vote being the same as that which caused Chief Wilson's rejection.

In explaining his attitude in the matter, Councilman Bogardus said that the platform upon which he was elected required him to work in the interest of a better city morally, and that he would vote in accordance with his election pledges.

His appointments being turned down, the mayor stated that he would defer presenting any other name for consideration as chief until next Monday night.

One of the surprises of the evening was the appointment of Keith Ambrose to succeed H. R. Delaney as chief of the fire department, he having resigned the position last November because, as he stated, the city council was not giving him the support he needed. The appointment becomes effective on February 15. Chief Delaney, who has been certain that a successor was being groomed by the council, wished the new chief an abundance of success and offered to give him any assistance he might need in the work before him.

The other appointments were Fred Grennon as garbage inspector, John Uerling as city teamster, and W. S. Redkey as electrical inspector.

Bert McDonald was granted permission to run dances in the Moose hall. To a Herald reporter, Mr. McDonald stated that the dances given in the hall under his supervision would be run in accordance "with laws governing such amusements, and that nothing that tinged of the slightest disorder would be tolerated.

Permission to conduct the Kellogg apartment house at Pine and Eighth streets was granted to Edna Kellogg, and William H. House was given permission to build a four-room house in Mills addition, at an approximate cost of $700. The Southern Oregon Drug company was given permission to erect a sign in front of their place of business.

The first part of the meeting was devoted to somewhat monotonous routine business and to the hearing of paving petitions, these petitions indicating much activity in that line this year.

One petition for the paving of portions of Washington, Oak, Walnut, Seventh, Eighth, Ninth, and Eleventh streets were referred back to the petitioners in order to make them more specific.

Standard specifications for concrete and warrenite paving were filed by City Engineer Zumwalt and accepted by the council as the basis for contract awards.

Plans for the improvement of the alley in block 17, and the paving of Pine street east from 11th street were also filed by the city engineer.

The petition covering the paving of Oak street asked that the paving of part of the street be 25 feet in one section, and 30 feet in the remainder of it. This petition was turned back to the signers with the suggestion that they change the figures from 25 feet to 30 feet, and thus insure uniformity.

The matter of sewer connections on Eleventh near Klamath was taken up. City Clerk Leavitt suggested that temporary relief could be

FILE REPORT FIRE RELIEF

The Central Labor council committee that handled the Houston hotel fire relief fund has filed a report with the city council of the proceeds and disbursements. The report shows that $1,043.65 was raised, all of which was expended in relief. The number sharing in the relief was 154.

The fund was administered by I. R. Struble, city mayor at the time of the disaster, September 6 last, W. S. Conkling, then president of the labor council, and L. P. Campbell. These three sign the report which is certified by O. C. Bristow, president, and Matt Williamson, secretary, of the labor council.

The report contains a recommendation that a special committee be appointed to make further solicitations to pay bills for treatment to fire victims, due the Warren Hunt hospital.

Following sources of the fund are shown by the report.

Labor Council, $412.90; Culinary Alliance, $136; Pelican Bay Lumber Co., $100; Klamath Lumber & Box Co., $100; W. H. Hockins, $5; W. C. Hoare, $10; J. D. Gibson, $1; Boxing Commission, $100; Carpenters Union, $16; B. C. McCoppin, $1.75; Mrs. S. C. Moore, $25; A. A. Bellman, $25; Big Lakes Box Co., $25; Jos McDonald, $25; L. M. Hannen, $1; Labor Council, $60.

In addition a check was received from the Rev. E. P. Lawrence for $85.74 (church collections,) which was applied as per request to the hospital bill and therefore is included in neither receipt or disbursement total of $1,043.65.

The report shows the disbursements to have been made in the form of purchases of clothing and supplies from local stores and cash aid to sufferers.

given to the property owners if they would pay for the laying of a pipe, but no definite action was taken.

The economy and practicability of laying sewer pipe before paving was done in the several units under contemplation was discussed, but nothing definite was done in this regard. The discussion will undoubtedly bear good fruit later.

The ordinance relating to fire-proof booths and other protective requirements in movie houses was read, but action on the matter was deferred pending investigation relative to the effect it would have on the use of moving picture machines in churches, schools, and in fact in private as well as other public places.

HEALTH NURSE WILL BE HERE TOMORROW EVE

The long awaited county health nurse will arrive tomorrow evening, announced Mrs. Carrie Ganong secretary of the local Red Cross chapter, today. She is Miss Fricke, a nurse of 18 months experience in the Red Cross overseas service and more than two years experience in community service since the armistice was signed. She will be accompanied here by Miss Schreyer, assistant supervisor of the state nursing bureau, who will be remembered as a speaker here during the farmers' week convention.

The state bureau of nursing, from the fund raised through the Christmas sale of anti-tuberculosis seals, pays the salary of the nurse, while the local Red Cross chapter supplies quarters, automobile and other expenses of upkeep.

The work of the community nurse covers the entire county, operating chiefly through the public schools and is largely aimed at the prevention of disease. Encouragement of all measures that work for the prevention of disease is part of the general program.

Thursday afternoon the directors of the local Red Cross chapter will hold a meeting at 4 o'clock in the chamber of commerce rooms to meet Miss Fricke and talk over the details of her work here.

Ulrich Puts Same Trick Over on 'Em Three Times Running

For the third consecutive year George C. Ulrich has put Klamath Falls on the insurance map of the state, and stands a good chance of doing the same thing for the nation. He has just been advised that he leads the Oregon agents for the Mutual Life Insurance company of New York for the amount of paid life insurance written during the past year. When Mr. Ulrich took the lead three years ago the Portland agents looked around as if to say: "Oh, look who's here." And then proceeded to tell him that it was the last time he would be so honored. When he came back the second time, they tightened their belts another notch and went right after him in earnest. Now they are swearing vengeance, and if Mr. Ulrich "puts it over" this year he will know he has had a run for the money. The winning of this honor is a big advertisement for the county, for the company gives it wide publicity, and it speaks well for the prosperity and business acumen of the residents of this section.

PIANIST'S MOST MARKED TRAIT IS MODESTY

A remarkable portrait of Leopold Godowsky, the world famous pianist who will be heard here on Thursday evening January 27th, at the Scandinavian hall, was painted by Haskell Coffin, the celebrated portrait painter and exhibited at a prominent Fifth avenue gallery.

He says: "No one can truly know Godowsky without both liking and respecting him. He is small of stature, but great of soul. A poet as well as a master musical of the finest order.

Among his many fine characteristics most prominent and most rare is his wonderful modesty. As he himself remarked, "Why should one feel concealed, when life is so very transitory and uncertain."

"He is possessed of a most discriminating taste and one feels that he not only has the courage of his convictions, but is true to them. To be able to paint a real portrait, it is necessary to penetrate even the soul of any subject, and my impression of Leopold Godowsky is not only that of a great artist, but of a man of fine and high character, whom we prize as a sincere friend."

The coming of Leopold Godowsky to Klamath falls is one of the great events of the year. While it is a great treat to those who love music it is also an advertisement for this city, heralding us all over the country, not only a business center, but possessing culture and development along artistic lines, making this a desirable place to make a home.

It is through the efforts of the Musical Study club that this master pianist is to appear here. The enthusiasm shown and the support given leads us to believe that those interested in the development of this city as well as those who love music will show their appreciation by attending this concert.

The price of admission is much less than has ever been charged for Godowsky concerts; but by making this low price of $1.50 and no reserve seats everyone will have an opportunity to hear the greatest artist that has ever visited Klamath Falls. Seats are now on sale at the Earl Shepherd company and at the Square Deal drug store.

PRACTICAL JOKE HAS KICKBACK

A practical joke that sort of fumbled brought Roy Poole in from Chiloquin today to get medical treatment for some severe cuts on the forehead, inflicted by the butt of a six shooter wielded club fashion by W. M. Wilkie, who says he is a "dry" investigator. The sheriff's office today wired Portland to determine the exact standing of Wilkie in prohibition enforcement circles.

Roy is a brother of Harry Poole, local theatre man, and runs the branch movie house at Chiloquin. There is a select coterie around the stove these evenings at the Chiloquin hotel, managed by Chester Balfour.

The "dry" agent blew in on a hunt for stills, which he evidently believed abounded in the neighborhood. The hotel crowd did not discourage his belief. They saw a chance for a little gentle japing with the stranger, who rode his hobby hard, and encouraged him.

Having worked Wilkie up to the right pitch they produced the evidence—and here enters Eve, Mrs. Balfour called Wilkie off in one corner and whispered: "There's the moonshiner—Poole. He makes gallons of it under the theatre. See the bottle in his pocket now."

Sure enough Poole swaggered through the crowd with a bottle of amber fluid "on his hip." It was cold tea but it looked real enough to drink.

Followed Poole's "arrest." Then, he says, he went to the kitchen to get a drink. Wilkie waylaid him and wielded the gun butt on him. Balfour came to the aid of his guest and Wilkie "pinched" him. The "joke" came to light and Wilkie wanted to let his captives go but by that time every one was well wrought up and they insisted that he go through with it, bring them to jail here, and show by what authority he made the arrest.

U. S. Commissioner Thomas says no reason to dignify the matter with a hearing today.

Balfour and Poole say the alleged "dry" agent had been stimulating an already super-sensitive imagination with drafts of Jamaica ginger. In other words they assert he was intoxicated.

Although Wilkie posed as a deputy sheriff at Chiloquin, Sheriff Low says he refused to give him a commission last week when he asked for one. Wilkie was armed with a stack of credentials and recommendations from many officers in the state.
