AN UNUSUAL SUGGESTION

Next Sunday afternoon, at half past two, the Lutherans of this city and vicinity will have an opportunity of hearing Rev. Karl Mathies, who will hold services in the First Baptist church on Eighth street. It is a somewhat unusual thing for a newspaper to urge members of a particular sect to go and hear a particular minister. It is outside its province. But this is an unusual case because Mr. Mathies is an unusual man. He is a man's man. He is a minister of which the Lutherans have reason to be proud. He lives in what he preaches and is not ashamed of it. He has not transformed himself into the "modern" method of camouflaging the teachings of Jesus Christ so as to satisfy the esthetic fancies of the 20th century christian. He preaches the gospel of Christ as Christ intended it should be preached and when he does it his words carry with them no tinge of apology. What we need nowadays are more preachers and teachers of the Mathies type and we want to be hunting around this and that and the other things to keep the present and future generations in the straight and narrow path.

To our notion the Rev. Mr. Mathies rings true. He carries his message to the people honestly. That is why we say to the Lutherans—and those who are not Lutherans, too—hear him next Sunday and other Sundays for he will help you.

CORRECTION

Through one of those typographical errors that creep into a newspaper, irrespective of the care exercised to avoid such mistakes, the price of Cara Nome face powder was quoted at 60 cents in the advertisement of the Star Drug company in yesterday's Herald. The price should have been $2.00, and as this is the lowest price at which it can be sold, customers must accept this correction as sufficient reason for the store to sell it at that figure, and not 60 cents.

Eastern Cut in Gas Cost Not to Affect Coast, Is Reported

PORTLAND, Jan. 28.—No reduction in the retail price of gasoline in Portland is to be expected, despite the decline of 2 cents announced by the Standard Oil company of Indiana at Chicago. It was said at the offices of the leading oil companies here. A cut in the price of gasoline on the Pacific coast by the Standard Oil company office announced.

The action of the Standard Oil company at Chicago caused speculation as to the probability of a similar reduction in this section. The decline of 2 cents a gallon on gasoline and 3 cents on kerosene was due, it was stated in a dispatch from Canada, to a reduction of the cost of crude oil from $3.50 to $3 a barrel. The price of gasoline on the Pacific coast, it was explained by an official of the Standard, is depended upon the price of crude oil in California and has no direct connection with the price of gasoline or crude oil in the middle west. As there has been no reduction in California crude oil, it was stated, and as none is expected for the immediate future, no hope is held out for a drop in gasoline.

A similar summary of the situation was given by an official of the Union Oil company of California, who said that no reduction was probable.

FIRST MAN OUT OF NEW ALASKA OIL DISTRICT

JUNEAU, Alaska, Jan. 28.—Winter trails 1,385 miles across the northern continental divide were followed recently by J. T. Burns, well known Alaska "musher," on a trip to Juneau from the new oil fields at Fort Norman, in the great Mackenzie basin of northwestern Canada. Burns, it is believed, is the first man to reach Alaska this winter from the snowbound oil country. Royal Canadian mounted police are holding back until spring scores of prospectors, who would strike out over the snow for the fields.

In coming out from Norman, Burns fell over a cliff, he reported, when within several hundred miles of his destination. He broke a bone in his foot and injured his hip, he said. As he was alone, he came on without assistance.

Burns, an Australian mining engineer, has been in the northland for years, and claims he has covered 26,000 miles "mushing" over trails. His dog Peary, which has accompanied him on many trips, came from Norman with him.

Letters From The People

WHY HAVE A MAYOR?

Klamath Falls, Jan. 28, 1921.

To the Editor Of The Evening Herald:

I would like to ask through The Evening Herald this question: Why do the voters of the city of Klamath Falls elect a mayor and honor him as the head of our administration if he has no power or say in conducting the interests of the people? Why not leave it up to the council and let them run things their own way as they have started out to do? I, for one tax-payer, think it a useless expense to pay a mayor if he can do no good in the office to which he is elected by the people? This, present council, it seems to me, is starting out in rather bolshevik style. It has been the practice of councils in Klamath Falls for a long time to back the mayor. If he is responsible for the welfare of the city and its officers why are they allowed the right to interfere with him and hamper him in doing his duty by the people? I for one think such a council should be recalled before they get any farther.

Your Telephone

What does your telephone service mean to you?

In the successful operation of your business is your telephone necessary?

Does the telephone in your residence prove more than a convenience and perform an important part in the management of your affairs?

In fact, don't you find good telephone service essential in both your office and home?

The Telephone Company believes you do, and wants to supply that service to you.

Telephone properties are now operated at a loss in the State of Oregon.

Increased rates are necessary to continue present service and attract capital for building new plant needed. Can investors be expected to furnish funds for extensions when the present plant does not pay its way?

Is not the Telephone Company entitled to rates which will enable them to continue to furnish good telephone service to the people of Oregon, and without which they cannot carry out their plans for development?

These are questions of importance, and should interest every telephone user.
