THE STAR

In many ways New York is the strangest, most fascinating city in the world. It's so big that you never know your neighbor. Your waiter may be an escaped convict. Your chauffeur an ex-nobleman. And your parlor maid a duchess in disguise.

George Barr McCutcheon, the author of "Graustark," "Brewster's Millions," and a score of other "best sellers," once wrote an entertaining novel about New York and its camouflaged citizens. It was a love story, packed with romantic adventure. He called it "The City of Masks."

Naturally, such a story was rich material for a fine motion picture. Paramount Artcraft recently transformed it to the screen, with Robert Warwick as the star. It will be shown tonight at The Star.

Please don't miss "The City of Masks."

A photoplay of contrasts is Hobart Bosworth's latest. J. Parker Read, Jr. starring vehicle "A Thousand to One," which comes to the Star Thursday under the auspices of the Associated Producers, Inc.

The atmospheric detail—the star's characterization and the locale of the story are a series of contrasts.

Bosworth is first the dilettante and waster, spending his nights in the haunts of San Francisco's Chinatown. Then he is the outcast—the wanderer in the mining camps—and finally the man regenerated—brought back into his own by the one chance in a thousand!

Heretofore, Hobart Bosworth has been happily identified with sea stories and it is a bit unusual to find him in evening clothes—but variety is the spice of amusement and this favorite of stage and screen offers a brilliant example of his versatile talent in his new vehicle. Ethel Grey Terry, the popular English actress, who in an amazingly short time has won her way into the hearts of American theatergoers, plays opposite the star. Rowland V. Lee has covered himself with glory as the director of this Bosworth screen play.

MELODY MAIDS MAKING HIT AT THE MONDALE

Twinkling toes, tinkling music, of a more jazzy nature, intermingled with excellent voices and snappy dialogues kept interest in an effervescent state at the Mondale theatre last night, while the pictures were pleasing to an unusual degree. The Melody Maids are rightly named, and the only time they are not engaged in tickling the audience is when they are not on the stage. They are joy-makers of the first water. They will be here all this week, and a change of pictures will be made every other day.

ALL OFF FOR ANOTHER SIX WEEKS! THE GROUNDHOG SAW HIS SHADOW

Early this morning, with clouds and snowfalls predominating, the prospect for Mr. Groundhog glimpsing his shadow, and then retiring to the solitude of his hole for six more weeks, was anything but bright, and people who ordinarily scowl at dark weather were somewhat mollified by the thought that the little animal would remain out, and that good weather and an early spring would be the outcome.

Unfortunately, just about 11 o'clock, Old Sol crawled out from behind the clouds, and smiled brightly upon the world for at least 15 minutes, thus giving the groundhog plenty of opportunity to see his shadow and scoot into his hole again—and remain for six long weeks during which, according to the time-honored belief entertained by some people, bad weather will prevail.

About 12 o'clock the sun came out again and shone resplendently, thus adding more weight to Mr. Groundhog's reasons for hiding himself again.

Consolation is offered in the fact that no matter what the quality of the weather dished up here may be, it's always a mighty good winter at that in this part of creation, the ground hog superstition to the contrary.

Personal Mention

Jess Copeland, a farmer in the valley, was in town yesterday attending to matters of business.

Mrs. E. D. Tilton who has been in from Chilquin on a shopping tour, returned to her home there this morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Al. Marshall, who operate a stock ranch in the Olene district, were business visitors here yesterday.

Charles McCartney, sheepman and farmer, is in town from his home near Bonanza.

Will Adams is in town from the Merrill district.

On account of high water making feed scarce on the Doak ranch on the Upper Lake, Mr. Edwards, foreman, is moving cattle from the ranch to the Merrill district for winter feeding.

H. B. Clark, who opened the Gift Shop here for the holiday trade, has closed the place and returned to his home in Medford. He may return later in the year and engage in business here.

C. V. Holmes, Malin merchant and owner of the Klamath Cash grocery here, was in the city yesterday from Malin accompanied by Mrs. Holmes.

A. Kalina is in town today from Malin.

Mrs. Sam Smith left this morning for Hutchinson, Kansas. She was accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. E. T. Saunders. Mrs. Smith will remain in Kansas for a visit of several months with relatives and friends, while Mrs. Saunders will return in about a month.

Weather Probabilities

The barometric pressure, as indicated by the Cyclo-Stormograph at Underwood's Pharmacy, continued to fall from the time of yesterday's reading until 10 a. m. today. From that hour it was rising until noon, since when it has been falling rapidly. Frequent changes, such as these, mean a continuation of unsettled weather.

Forecast for next 24 hours: Cloudy; warmer; unsettled weather.
