SHASTA VIEW.

C. T. Darley with his surveying crew has been busy surveying in the Shasta View irrigation district the past few days which looks more like business and brings a smile to the faces of those who have waited patiently for so long and we hope their dreams will come true in the near future.

Snow and more snow every day helps to keep up the spirits of the dry ranchers above the high line and they are still going to try and help feed even those who yet cannot realize that the rancher is the one who saves their lives.

The ladies of the Helping Hand were entertained by Mrs. O. E. Hunt Wednesday. Those present were Mesdames, Crandall, McComb, Bramhall, Daniel, Fogle, Miller, Bailey, Wilson and Miss Hatch, and they busied themselves fixing a comfort and piecing blocks. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Emma Wilson, Wednesday, February 9th, at which time clothing will be brought and repaired, if necessary, to be sent to the needy women and children of Bohemia. Anyone interested come forward and help. Each member will also furnish one or more blocks for a comfort to be made at this time for the same purpose.

Joe Kotera and wife are rejoicing over the arrival of a baby daughter at their home.

W. Crandall recently stepped on a rusty nail and his foot is giving him considerable trouble. We trust he will soon recover with no serious results.

The rabbit drive Saturday near Ernest Taylor's was quite a success as 315 rabbits were killed. There were only about twenty five people there and some have expressed a desire to attend and asked the people if they will have another at the same place Sunday, Feb. 6th, which it has been decided to do. Sandwiches and coffee will be served.

The directors of the Shasta View Irrigation district held their monthly meeting at C. M. Kirkpatrick's Tuesday evening.

The house owned by Mr. Kinney on the Wm. McClure place was destroyed by fire Friday evening. We have not been able to learn any particulars.

CORVALLIS.—The campaign for membership for the Benton county farm bureau has started.

AMERICA LED WORLD IN 1920 WHEAT GROWING

Wheat production in the United States in 1920 again exceeded that of any other nation, amounting to 787,000,000 bushels, or 100,000,000 more than the prewar average and twice as much as was raised by any other country for which statistics are available, according to the National Bank of Commerce in New York. The aggregate output of these countries declined 71,500,000 bushels below prewar averages, while at the same time this country's crop was nearly 150,000,000 bushels less than the 1919 record. The bank shows in the February number of its magazine, Commerce Monthly.

"Before the war," says Commerce Monthly, "the Russian Empire led the world both in acreage planted in wheat and in total production. Little is now known of the actual situation in the grain-growing areas of Russia, but political uncertainty and disorganized transportation apparently make the conclusion certain that Russia cannot become a factor in the grain market during the next year."

"During the last half of 1920 practically all of the wheat entering the international market came from the United States and Canada. Exports of wheat including flour, during the last six months of 1920 from the United States and Canada exclusive of the movement between the two countries, were more than 240,000,000 bushels, compared with 170,000,000 bushels from July 1 to December 31, 1919. Although there are wide fluctuations in the wheat crops of Canada and the United States, they are both to be described as dependable wheat producers. The only important free wheat markets of the world are those of the United States and Canada.

"The impoverishment of Europe as a result of the war has brought about an extreme degree of governmental control of trading in wheat and flour. The motive of this control has been, twofold. On the one hand it was felt necessary to regulate the cost of bread, to protect the poorer part of the population from exploitation during the difficult period of adjustment following the war. This could not be done, however, unless at the same time the supply could be assured. The various European governments were thus obliged to become buyers of wheat in the international market, and to guarantee the price of the domestic crop with the definite policy of assuming part of the cost of bread if this should be necessary. The bread subsidy has indeed proved costly where it has been in effect.

"The second motive has been prevention of unnecessary imports. Governmental control over imports has brought as its corollaries price rationing, and the resultant use of in several countries, requisitioning, regulation of domestic crops, and substitutes, either because of inability to secure wheat flour, or actual regulations. In all the important importing countries of Europe, the United Kingdom, France, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands, Germany, Switzerland, Spain and Portugal, overseas purchases are made by government agencies.

"Purchasing by a governmental agency is never as flexible and sensitive to the market as is free private buying. Utterly considerations may affect policies. Thus the heavy British buying in the American market, the primary cause of the high level reached by wheat in May and June, was at least in part due to fear of a coal strike in the United Kingdom and consequent difficulties of transportation. Although it proved unnecessary, this was no doubt a justifiable policy on the part of the British Government, but it served to force the price of wheat to artificial levels, made higher by the fact that the railways of the United States were not able, at that time, to move the stocks of wheat then available for the market.

"Governmental purchasing in its very nature has a tendency to cause buying in large units, so that entry of an important government buyer into a market or withdrawal from it, is likely to cause abnormal fluctuations in prices. Moreover, competition in the sense in which Europe formerly competed for the surplus wheat of the world, does not at this time exist.

"It does not follow that elimination of government control abroad, or the erection in the United States and Canada of a governmental agency to represent the sellers would favorably affect the price of wheat. If removal of the bread subsidy in European countries were to result in an increased price for bread in those countries the immediate effect would be curtailed wheat consumption. De-control in Europe, or establishment of control in selling countries, would not increase purchasing power of decrease supply.

"Conditions beyond the crop year 1920-21 cannot even be conjectured. The dominant factors which will finally determine European demand are low purchasing power and the policy of governmental regulation and control, which has resulted from it. In the normal course of events as the United States increasingly becomes an industrial country and population grows, wheat exports will tend to decline, as the best wheat areas of this country are now under cultivation."

MRS. SYLVIA FOSTER, of Buffalo, N. Y., who says she wishes she could go into every home and tell how Tanlac completely restored her health after she had lost all hope of ever being well again.

"They had given up all hope of my ever being well again but thanks to Tanlac I am feeling as well now as I ever felt in my life and I only wish I had time to go to every home and tell every sick person about this grand medicine.

"A year ago last January I had a severe attack of influenza which left me in a terribly weakened condition and my appetite was so poor that I ate little more than enough to keep body and soul together.

"My heart palpitated so dreadfully at times that it seemed like it had stopped altogether and I would think my time had come. I was so weak that I couldn't go up the steps without holding on to the railing. It was impossible for me to do any housework. I was so nervous that I couldn't drink my tea or coffee without spilling it.

"My sleep was restless and broken and I would have smothering spells and would just have to get up and go to the window so I could breathe.

"I finally started taking Tanlac on the advice of a friend and before I had finished taking the second bottle my neighbors could tell I was improving right along. Well, it has only taken five bottles to restore my health completely.

"My appetite is just splendid now, my nerves are strong and steady, my housework is a real pleasure and I can sleep like a child at night. In fact, I never felt better in my life than I do now."

The above remarkable statement was made by Mrs. Sylvia Foster, of 206 S. Division St., Buffalo, N. Y., a well-known and highly respected resident of that city.

Tanlac is sold in Klamath Falls by Star Drug Co., in Lorella by James Merc. Co. and in Merrill by Southern Oregon Drug Co.—Adv.

The Aspirin Situation

Don't Be Deceived

by Aspirin advertisements being run by those who seek to discredit Aspirin Tablets except those made by them.

The Facts Are

that we regularly handle large quantities of Aspirin U. D. Co. Tablets that we know are Pure and Genuine and full strength. They are rigidly tested by first-class chemists, and are put out by a firm of the very highest standing, the United Drug Company of Boston. We, as Retail Druggists, are their exclusive agents in Klamath Falls.

The Aspirin patent expired in 1917, and any one can now make Aspirin and sell it under that name.

Aspirin U. D. Co. Tablets are put up in packages of 12's, 24's and 100's. The price is moderate, for there is no profiteering in United Drug Company business methods.
