

Coyotes Are Reported Unusually Plentiful By Valley Ranchers

Coyotes are becoming plentiful and bold in the surrounding valley, according to reports of ranchers, apparently driven in from the hills by hunger.

R. E. Bradbury reports that a band of eight came close to the corral on his ranch yesterday morning and showed little fear when he approached them. Later in the day while driving into town in a car he came upon a coyote in the road and the beast was so tame that it barely yielded the road to him.

Raisers of sheep and hogs are forced to keep close watch upon them, detailing a herder with dogs and a gun to protect them from attacks of the coyotes, which are more plentiful than they have been for years.

CUPPER GIVES VIEWS OF BILL

The personal opinion of Percy N. Cupper, state engineer, of house bill No. 178 is contained in the following circular letter, which he has mailed throughout the state:

Through house bill No. 178, an effort is being made to legislate the state engineer out of office. I do not consider this a personal matter, as I believe it is an attack upon the present system of handling irrigation matters in this state, and is, in fact, a continuation of the fight that was started at the recent Oregon Irrigation congress, at which time the proposition was overwhelmingly defeated on the floor of the congress. As you know, practically every irrigation interest in the state was there represented.

I will call your attention to the fact that this plan of handling irrigation districts has been conspicuously successful, and other states are now endeavoring to copy the Oregon plan. It has required a great effort to dispose of approximately $6,000,000 in irrigation bonds that have been sold during the past three years, and it is only by building up a reputation for these securities by maintaining irrigation on a sound business basis we can hope to go forward with irrigation development on a large scale in this state.

Our present system is operating successfully. The question is, shall we continue under this system or try some new policy with respect to irrigation development. If you are in accord with my views and believe we should go forward on the present basis, I trust that you may use your influence in the defeat of this measure by writing your representative.

Mayor Blocks Council's Move To Oust Chief

The new council the first of the year, and that it did not seem consistent in him to refuse to make an appointment to the office of chief of police until June.

The mayor in his smoothest voice told Mr. Bogardus that he felt he was entitled to more consideration than the council was giving him, and that he wanted an opportunity to discharge the responsibility placed upon him by virtue of his office.

"Has the council no responsibility," asked Mr. Bogardus.

"Yes," answered the mayor, "but the charter places this responsibility upon me."

Ruled Out Of Order

Evidently believing that they were "getting nowhere," Councilman Hawkins moved to adjourn.

"There is a motion before the house, with a second," interjected Councilman Vollmer.

"Yes, but I ruled it out of order," said the mayor.

Profound silence prevailed for a couple of minutes, and then Mr. Vollmer with an expansive cross between a smile and a giggle, announced that he had a statement to make.

Vollmer Has "Statement"

He made it, to the effect that he wanted the council and people to know that he wanted to work with the mayor in harmony in things that tended to improve conditions in the city, and Mayor Wiley smilingly told his colleague that he was sure that when they knew each others motives better they would work together in harmony in all things. Councilman Vollmer grinned again, and a motion to adjourn, prevailing, put an end to the pleasantries.

A SPLENDID POLICY

If you were offered a life insurance policy that did not absorb any part of your premium, in a company that was safe and sound, it is not likely that you would refuse it. In fact the agent offering such a policy would be swamped with business. Well, that is practically what W. A. Bullock, of this city is doing. He is selling a policy in the Occidental Life Insurance Co. of Los Angeles, Calif., that does this very thing. Here is how it is done:

He will write you a policy on the 20 year endowment plan guaranteeing you that in the event of death to return all deposits made by you in addition to the full face of your policy.

Should you become totally disabled from sickness or accident, the company have made special provision whereby you will have no further payments to make and will pay $10 per month on each thousand dollars of insurance you carry which is not deducted from your policy at death. Besides, your policy matures the same as though you had made the payments yourself.

This is one of the best policies ever offered by any legal reserve company and has other special features just as remarkable as those outlined above. Before you buy that insurance you are thinking about, you will call Mr. Bullock, 43-W or drop a car to 1405 Oregon Ave. He will be mighty glad to tell you all about it.—Adv.
