MRS. AKIN SUFFERED SINCE SHE WAS A GIRL

PORTLAND WOMAN IS ENTIRELY RELIEVED OF STOMACH TROUBLE AND RHEUMATISM BY TANLAC, SHE SAYS.

"I wish every sick man, woman and child in Portland knew what I know about Tanlac," said Mrs. S. O. Akin, of 460 Malden Ave., Portland, Ore.

"I suffered from stomach trouble practically all my life. When a girl I was always bothered with indigestion and sick headaches. The pains in the pit of my stomach were simply awful, and often I had to get up in the night and walk around on account of the pressure of gas around my heart. My appetite was poor and I had to be very careful about what I ate. I was so badly crippled up with rheumatism I could hardly walk and it was all I could do to turn my head.

"That was my condition when I began taking Tanlac and my improvement with the very first bottle was just wonderful. I continued to take it until it put an end to all my troubles.

"Ever since I have taken Tanlac I have been a well and happy woman, and even with the care of my baby I do all my housework and never feel tired. I have gained considerably in weight and feel better than I ever remember feeling before."

Tanlac is sold in Klamath Falls by James Merc. Co., and in Merrill by Southern Oregon Drug Co.—adv.

Look For Treasure "High Grader" Cashed

SCOBEEY, Mont., Feb. 15.—Hunt-moal of the bones of Lem Chung, Chinese miner from the Anaconda cemetery for shipment to China has revived the story of treasure he is supposed to have buried in Gold Coin gulch, near here, many years ago. Lem Chung died July 18, 1908.

For several years before his death Lem Chung was employed in the Gold Coin mine, at that time one of the greatest gold producers in Montana. He is alleged to have stolen several thousand dollars worth of gold and to have cached it in the vicinity of his cabin. He is even declared to have confessed to close friends before his death that he had taken and hidden the ore against the time when he would return to China. Fire destroyed the cabins of Gold Coin gulch, however, and efforts of seekers to find the buried gold have been fruitless.

Many old-time mining men in Anaconda believe Lem Chung hid the gold, which according to rumor, is valued all the way from $2,000 to fabulous sums. Every so often an attempt is made to locate it but so far no trace has been found.

At the Movies

THE STAR

Did you read "The Sins of St. Anthony" when it ran in The Saturday Evening Post? It was a breezy story, you'll remember, about a young scientist who wore baggy, over-size trousers and celluloid collars and was thrown down by his sweetheart because of lack of pep. Then he went out, resolved to paint the town red, and back-stage in a girly-girly show found a pretty dancer. And when she got through with him—!

"The Sins of St. Anthony" is twice as funny and ten times as jazzy as a motion picture. It will be shown at the Star tonight.

Bryant Washburn is the featured player, in the type of light comedy role that only he can make a real delight on the screen. Margaret Loomis is the leading woman and, incidentally, offers some startling dances.

The picture is a Paramount Art-craft.

The most powerful and gripping story that has appeared in photoplay form in recent months is without doubt "The Branding Iron," which will be shown at the Star theatre beginning Thursday. It is a story as broad in its sweep as the great outdoors itself; it portrays a clash of the most intense emotions of which human beings are capable. It will hold you breathless as you watch the unfolding of a theme as powerful and direct as a thunderbolt. "The Branding Iron" is a photoplay you will long remember, not only as a gripping, soul stirring story, but as a masterpiece of photography and of the director's art. You should make it a point to see this picture.

THE MONDALE

Ed and Grace McConnell, in a comedy act that was a hullabaloo in every respect, captured a capacity audience at the Mondale theatre last night. In "Fun at the Piano" the McConnells have an act that is away above the ordinary in originality and cleverness. They really give a slambang performance, and will be seen at this theatre again tonight. Ed McConnell will have something novel for his audience, as he will essay to write the music spontaneously for any words or poems that might be brought to him. He asks anyone who desires to test his ability to leave their poems at the box office before the performance tonight. He writes all his own songs, and composes the music for them, but of course he also favors his audience with many of the old favorites.

The Tennessee Jubilee singers will be the attraction at the Mondale at an engagement beginning Thursday, February 17.

SPANISH VETS HOLD REUNION

Talks, recalling their experience in Uncle Sams service, were made by each of the score of Spanish-American war veterans, who gathered for reunion at the chamber of commerce rooms last night. C. J. Ferguson presided.

It was decided to reinstate the local post in the national organization of Spanish war veterans and Fred Baker, Frank Frankford and T. L. Stanley were named a committee to arrange the details.

Following the toothsome banquet and business meeting, the boys of '98 indulged in reminiscences and singing of the old war songs. Resolutions of gratitude to the chamber of commerce for the use of the quarters were passed.

Those present were: Fred Baker, J. H. Carnahan, C. J. Ferguson, T. L. Stanley, Arthur Wilson, Frank Frankford, J. L. Simmons, E. A. Shulmire, B. M. Hinz, Bob Robins, J. B. Vollmer, A. R. Morrison, E. C. Koppen, R. B. Wilcox, C. E. Hoffman, Harry Hall, John Simmons, G. N. Sanders and Claud Hall.

Legion Post Votes for Construction of Own Building

Sentiment of the American Legion post, as expressed at last night's meeting, is against uniting their building program with the proposed community building that is being talked of by the chamber of commerce. The post has $10,000, allowed under the state law by the county court in this year's budget, as a start toward a building fund.

Coleman O'Loughlin, vice-commander, resigned last night. A successor will be chosen next meeting.

By-laws and constitution were read and adopted. It was decided to ask A. L. Wishard, secretary of the Klamath Irrigation project, to be present at the next meeting and outline the work that is being done on the project.
