THE STAR

One day a workman, the next a financier; now an uneducated steel worker, now a polished gentleman; those are the positions occupied by Conway Tearle in his new Selznick picture, "The Road to Ambition," which will be at the Star theatre Tuesday.

As Bill Matthews, an energetic, inventive young man Conway Tearle has added to the long list of great screen characterizations, one more, which will take its well deserved place in the foremost ranks.

Business Is Good

New houses are being started every day. We are selling as much LUMBER, MILL WORK and BUILDING SUPPLIES, as could reasonably be expected at this time of year under present weather conditions.

PRICES ARE LOWER on every item in the building line. More new buildings are now being planned on than last year at this time.

Our stock is complete. Our mill running full time. We anticipate a larger business this year than last. We want our PAY ROLL TO DOUBLE this year.

Help us to increase our Pay Roll, and thereby increase the GENERAL PROSPERITY.
