

Cardinal Gibbons Is Called By Death

Born in Baltimore, Md., of Irish parents July 17, 1834, James Gibbons spent his youth in Ireland, but when he was a lad of 14 years his family returned to America, settled in New Orleans where he acted as "punctual grocer's boy."

"I look back on these early days of hard work with pride," he said in speaking of his boyhood. "I am a firm believer in the school of hard and honest labor."

His ambition for the priesthood began in those early days. At 21 he began preparations for his service in the Roman Catholic church. Graduating with distinguished honor from historic St. Charles college in Maryland, he pursued his studies at the Seminary of St. Sulpice and St. Mary's university in Baltimore. He was 27 years old when the civil war began. His heart was moved by the tragedy he witnessed and throughout life has been strongly opposed to war.

"The average American is a lover of peace," he frequently remarked. "He stands for peace at home and abroad. Let us hope that international disputes will soon be decided not by standing armies, but by permanent courts of arbitration."

The scholarship and statesmanship of Cardinal Gibbons has been recognized by theologians of all creeds. "Religion," he said shortly before his death, "is the only solid basis for society. Religion is to society what cement is to a modern building; it makes all parts compact and coherent. The teachings of Christ have been the basis of all Christian legislation for nearly 2000 years and continue to be the light and guide for hundreds of millions of souls. Neither Solon nor Lycurgus nor Justinian nor Napoleon nor any other framer of laws ever exerted a tittle of the influence which the gospel of Christ exercises on the human race."

At the Theaters

THE STAR

Douglas MacLean, the popular young Thomas H. Ince star in Paramount pictures, will be seen in his first starring vehicle, "The Jailbird," at the Star Theatre tonight. Mr. MacLean is a star in his own right now, but recently he was co-starred with Doris May in "Twenty-three and a Half Hours' Leave", and other notable Paramount triumphs.

"The Jailbird" is one of the most enjoyable comedies ever presented anywhere. It is a superior Thomas H. Ince production.

Admirers of Roscoe Arbuckle, the big, good-natured comedian who won fame in Paramount-Arbuckle comedies, will be interested to learn that he is now a Paramount star in future pictures, his first appearance being as the fat Sheriff known as 'Slim' Hoover, in George Melford's production of "The Round Up," which will be shown at The Star theatre Friday and Saturday.

Mr. Arbuckle proves in this picture that he can do serious mimetic work as well as slapstick comedy.

Tabernacle Is Fast Going Up; Many Help

The tabernacle to be used during the meetings to be conducted by Evangelist Bulgis, commencing Sunday, March 27, is being built in remarkably short time, not less than 30 men appearing at the building site, on Pine street between Seventh and Eighth streets, this morning, bringing their hammers, saws, and other carpenters' tools with them. This building, of only temporary construction, is expected to hold 2,000 people with ease. At the rate the men are working the building will be finished by tomorrow night, but there is a standing call for all the men who can spare a couple of hours to lend their assistance.
