

TENNESSEE TO PRESERVE THE JOHNSON HOME

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 25.—A dilapidated little building at Greenville, in Eastern Tennessee, upon the front of which once hung the sign: "A. Johnson, Tailor," and which was the place where Andrew Johnson, the man who succeeded Lincoln as President of the United States, began his business career, probably will be bought and preserved by the State of Tennessee.

A bill now is pending in the Tennessee Legislature providing for the purchase of the building and its maintenance as a state relic. Its picture has adorned Tennessee histories for years but the Commonwealth has been slow to take steps to preserve the building.

The little tailor shop stands at the corner of East Depot and College streets in the sleepy little town where Johnson, who was born in Raleigh, N. C., emigrated at the age of eighteen. Having served his apprenticeship to a tailor, Johnson opened his first shop in Greenville. After a year he was married to Miss Eliza McCordell to whose lot it fell to teach her young husband to write and undertake other educational preliminaries as Johnson knew only his letters when he became head of his own house, having never attended school a day in his life.

Johnson's political career began as alderman of Greenville. He then served as mayor, was elected to the lower house of the legislature, then state senator, afterward to Congress, became governor of Tennessee serving two terms, United States senator, military governor of Tennessee, was elected as vice president of the United States and became President upon the death of Lincoln. His final political office was that as United States Senator from Tennessee.

Johnson, while governor of Tennessee, once resumed his vocational implements. He had formed a strong friendship in the Tennessee legislature for W. W. Pepper, of Springfield, a staunch Whig and once a blacksmith. Despite their irreconcilable political creeds the personal relations of Johnson and Pepper were extremely cordial. Pepper became judge of the seventh judicial district in 1854 and after a visit to Johnson, then governor, set about making a present to his friend, fashioning a shovel which he sent with a note explaining it was intended as a memento to a friendship that was proof against all political differences.

Johnson, to show his appreciation of the token, took up his scissors and needle and made a handsome beaver cloth coat which he pressed and sent to Pepper. It was a splendid piece of workmanship, probably the last of the kind of work Johnson ever did, and exists to this day, the property of W. W. Pepper of Springfield, Judge Pepper's only surviving son. The coat was made about eleven years before Johnson entered the White House and the movement to preserve his old tailor shop in Greenville by Legislative enactment has revived that story of the tailor president.

MINT PLANTING STARTS APRIL 5 ON BIG TRACT

Two carloads of mint roots for planting on the Caledonia Marsh will arrive tonight from the Willamette valley. It is just one year ago today since the first car of mint roots for demonstration work was brought in from the Willamette valley mint fields by the Pacific Coast Mint company. The results were so satisfactory that the Pacific Coast Mint company and the Klamath Mint company, owners of the 4000 acre tract on the Caledonia marsh, are now engaged in mint production on a wholesale scale.

Everything is in readiness for starting with spring planting about April 5th, and all told it is expected that at least 500 acres will be in mint on this tract by May 15th. In addition, over 500 acres will be seeded to grain.

Although it has been a rather wet season for marsh lands, there is practically no water on the Pacific Coast Mint company's tract at this time, and work will start a good deal earlier this year. To facilitate drainage the company installed a large pump on March 1st, for handling any surplus water.

The Caledonia marsh will be the scene of some interesting work this year, for those who are unfamiliar with the mint growing industry, and already a large number of people from the Willamette valley have definitely stated that they were coming here to view the mint lands with the expectation of making some permanent investments.

Note: A crew of between 15 and 20 men will be employed regularly in mint work starting April 1st, and when we have reached the maximum production on the Caledonia tract, it is expected that it will require a force of from 75 to 80 to properly handle this work. Two large distilleries are now being manufactured for handling this year's crop.

Merrill Flume Job Let to W. D. Miller

The United States Reclamation service has awarded a contract to W. D. Miller for the delivery of 2500 yards of crushed rock, which will be used in the construction of the government irrigation flume this side of Merrill.

The W. D. Miller company has also begun the construction of a concrete half-basement under the Woolworth store in the Willits block. This work will be finished about Wednesday, and the construction crew will immediately transfer its activities to the Scandinavian Hall under which a full concrete basement will be built.

A Miller, engineer for the Southern Pacific, left for Portland today on business.

DOINGS OF THE DUFFS BY ALMAN

Another Way to Make 'Em Shorter—

TOM AND HELEN INSIST THAT I DON'T CUT ANY MORE OFF THE BOTTOM OF THIS DRESS BUT I BELIEVE IT COULD BE A LITTLE SHORTER! I DON'T LIKE TO CROSS THEM HOWEVER!

A GIRL MAY AS WELL BE DEAD AS OUT OF DATE NOW A DAYS!

I THINK THIS WILL WORK OUT ALL RIGHT AND THEY CAN'T SAY I CUT ANY OFF!

WELL, I SEE YOU CUT YOUR DRESS SHORTER IN SPITE OF WHAT I SAID!

I DIDN'T CUT IT OFF I ONLY SHRUNK IT!

LARGE CROWD HEARS BULGIN

The Rev. E. J. Bulgin, evangelist, opened his month's series of revival meetings last night, his audience filling the Pine street tabernacle.

The reality of resurrection was the theme of the sermon. The evangelist presented his argument forcefully, with an interspersal of anecdotes that seemed to please the audience as they responded with laughter and applause.

The great choir, advertised to contain 250 voices, under the direction of the Rev. Robert Lewis, showed, in well blended vocal effects, the good result of the week's training.

This week, it was announced, is "Church Week" at the tabernacle. Tonight is Presbyterian night; tomorrow, Christian night; Wednesday,

Methodist night, and Thursday night Baptist night. A special section of seats will be reserved for the different congregations on their special nights.

Kitts Mill Will Start Next Week

The Kitts sawmill, near Dairy, will start about April 1st, W. H. Kitts announces, with virtually a full crew. The mill employs about 25 men. This is the fourth season of the mill's operation.

"While the market is dull at present," said Mr. Kitts, "we have a quantity of logs on hand to work up and I look for a revival of buying within a few weeks that will keep us going steadily all season."
