

LEADING AUTHORITIES NOW SHOW JUST WHAT TANLAC REALLY IS

Physiological Action of Principal Ingredients Of Celebrated Medicine on the Human System Is Explained.

Supremacy Claims Well Supported

Many of the Medicinal Elements Have Been Known and Used Since Civilization First Began.

Tanlac, the celebrated medicine which has been accomplishing such remarkable results throughout this country and Canada, is composed of the most beneficial roots and herbs known to science. The formula is purely ethical and complies with all National and State Pure Food and Drug Laws. Altogether, there are ten ingredients in Tanlac, each of which is of recognized therapeutic value.

Many of these ingredients have been individually known and used since civilization first began, and some of them have been used and prescribed by leading physicians everywhere, but until they were brought together in proper proportion and association, as in the Tanlac formula, humanity had not heretofore realized their full value and effect.

In referring to one of the more important ingredients of Tanlac, the Encyclopedia Britannica says: "It has been the source of the most valuable tonic medicines that have ever been discovered." In referring to others of the general tonic drugs contained in Tanlac, the 13th Edition of Potter's Therapeutics, a standard medical text book, states that "They impart general tone and strength to the entire system, including all organs and tissues."

This same well-known authority, in describing the physiological action of still another of the ingredients of Tanlac, which is of value in treating what is commonly known as "a rundown condition," uses the following expression: "It is highly esteemed in loss of appetite during convalescence from acute disease."

There are certain other elements in Tanlac, which, because of their influence upon the appetite, digestion, assimilation and elimination, improve the nutrition and vital activity of the tissues and more important organs of general tonicity which is called Health.

The United States Dispensary makes the following comment regarding another ingredient: "It may be used in all cases of pure debility of the digestive organs or where a general tonic impression is required. Dyspepsia, atonic gout, hysteria and intermittent fever are among the many affections in which it has proven useful."

There are certain other ingredients described in the Dispensary and in other standard medical text books as having a beneficial action upon the organs of secretion, whose proper functioning results in the purification of the blood streams passing through them. In this manner objectionable and poisonous ingredients of the blood are removed and the entire system invigorated and vitalized.

Tanlac was designed primarily for the correction of disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. At the same time, however, it is a powerful reconstructive tonic and body builder, for it naturally follows that any medicine that brings about proper assimilation of the food and a thorough elimination of the waste products must, therefore, have a far-reaching and most beneficial effect upon the entire system.

Although Tanlac's claims for supremacy are abundantly supported by the world's leading authorities, it is the people themselves who have really made Tanlac what it is. Millions upon millions have used it with gratifying results, and have told other millions what it has done for them. That is why Tanlac has become the real sensation of the drug trade in this country and Canada, and that is also why it is having the largest sale of any medicine of its kind in the world.—Adv.

S. A. NEWSPAPER SAYS YANKEE GOODS INFERIOR

SANTIAGO, March 12.—(By Mail)—The South American countries will be commercial clients of the United States so long as they are not able to avail themselves of more advantageous markets, says the newspaper Ultimas Noticias in an editorial in which it asserts American goods "ordinarily are of inferior quality."

The paper says the war permitted the United States to enter into commercial relations with the South Americans who "by force of necessity were obliged to accept America's strange systems, diametrically opposed to those that had been used by the great producing nations of the old world." It is well known, the paper declares, that the methods employed by the North American exporter differ notably from those followed by the exporters of Great Britain and above all by Germany.

"The American goods apart from being ordinarily of inferior quality are costly," the paper adds, "and in addition the goods are badly packed. This results in heavy losses. Moreover, the Americans do not concede credit and if they do concede credit it is on terms little acceptable."

Replying to the newspaper's charges of inferiority in American merchandise, a writer in the newspaper El Mercurio, signing himself "Chilean merchant" says: "If American goods are consumed by 150,000,000 Americans and Canadians—in fact by nearly half the population of the universe—are you not able to be assured that American merchandise should be good enough for we South Americans?"

Answering the newspaper's assertion that American export methods are entirely different from those employed by the Europeans, the "Chilean merchant" says there are two reasons for this: first, because the Europeans have demonstrated that their system of selling has not proven beneficial since "it only has facilitated fictitious businesses without foundations, resulting largely in heavy losses through bad arrangements or bankruptcies," and secondly, because the Europeans are not able today to extend long term credits through lack of means. The Chilean merchant thinks the period of long term credits has passed never to return, and continues:

"What occurred here in Chile before the world war? A foreigner would arrive and set up a business with, say 20,000 pesos. He then received visits from the salesmen of European firms who would deliver him merchandise. At the end of two years he would have a credit with these houses for more than 200,000 pesos. At the end of another year he had declared bankruptcy—accidental or fraudulent—thus occasioning heavy losses to the European creditors."

The merchant adds that Americans always have extended credit to serious firms that respect their obligations and do business on a solid basis.

Developing the Local Field

Great faith in the future of the Klamath Oil Field is constantly being demonstrated in the offices of the Crater Oil and Gas Company at 622 Main street. Here J. R. Kelley, Sales Superintendent, receives a constant stream of visitors who are making inquiries and investing their money. They like the plan of spending all the money received from the sale of stock in actual development. This stream of investors keeps Mr. Kelley so busy that he will not be able to make any proper and general canvass and those who are interested are requested to come to the office of the company and talk it over.
