though it necessitated the tearing away of large portions of the window casings, and entailing a whole lot of work. Flowers will bloom in the boxes soon, and then Miss Hannon's demands will be vindicated.

Uptown, at the corner of Sixth and Klamath, is the service station, in charge of Merle Houston. This is the company's only station in this vicinity, and in accordance with the company's policy, it is a model of neatness and efficiency, and certainly a station which will not cause the people of the city to close their eyes when looking at it or talking about it.

"We're for Klamath Falls and Klamath County, and want to be in on anything that will tend to make things bigger and better in this vicinity." So said Mr. Wright, assistant to Mr. Halliwell, and it is not necessary to say that Mr. Wright voiced Mr. Halliwell's sentiments when he said the words. And, therefore, the Standard Oil station at the corner of Sixth and Spring streets must be considered one of the institutions that are injecting the jazz in Klamath Falls and Klamath county as they trip down the road toward that prosperity that shall be theirs by virtue of the possession of all the natural resources needed to make prosperity permanent.
