

Timbermen War On Pine Beetle

may be gained from the display in K. Sugarman's window.—an original idea that window, by the way, that reflects much credit upon Mr. Sugarman—where it is stated that O. A. C. investigations have shown that the timber destroyed last year in Klamath and Lake counties by the beetle, is sawed into lumber, would build a board walk four feet wide from Klamath Falls to New York.

Or to put it another way: In one year, 1919, the beetle destroyed more timber in Klamath county than was lost by fire in five years in five Oregon lumber counties.

In the face of these figures, it is obvious that the timber men must take action and the aim of the present conference is to form an association strong enough to enlist not only all private interests but the government as well. For the government has done little to control the beetle on public lands, and Professor Chamberlain says his investigation have shown that 57 per cent of Klamath county's timber is in national forests, Crater Lake park and the Indian reservation.

Klamath county is proud of its timber. It is estimated that on the Klamath Indian reservation alone there is between eight and twelve billion feet of pine timber, sufficient, in the natural course of things, to last from 50 to 100 years, without natural or artificial reforestation.

But in the Black Hills of Idaho, in the past ten years, seven billion feet of pine have been totally wiped out by the pine beetle.

One new wrinkle was introduced into the beetle fight at yesterday's discussion by John Miller, of the U. S. bureau of entomology, who has an experimentation camp in Madera county, California.

Mr. Miller has found that it is not necessary to fire the fell trees during the summer months to destroy the beetle, but the natural rays of the sun will do the work if the tree is peeled and the bark exposed to the sun. Bark is a good heat conductor and when the air temperature is between 80 and 90 degrees the bark will heat to 115 degrees, enough to kill the beetle colonies.

If this plan will work in Klamath county during the hot months of July, August and September it means a big gain in the fight, for during those months it is not wise to use fire in the forest. The conflagration risk is too great. And those are the months when the best work can be done, because remote timber areas that are inaccessible in the winter can be reached then.

Should this one idea alone be proven practical in the local fight, yesterday's demonstration will have been very much worth while.

Last night the timbermen and local business men banqueted at the chamber of commerce rooms. The central dish was rainbow trout from Klamath river provided by members of the county sportsmen's association.

Mayor Wiley welcomed the beetle fighting brigade as conservers of basic industry, the foundation of Klamath County's prosperity.

Among the speakers were George M. Cornwall, editor of the Timberman; W. E. Lamm, of the Lamm Lumber company; G. W. Luce, freight and traffic manager of the Southern Pacific; Professor Donald Bruce of the University of California, department of forestry, and George S. Long, vice-president and manager of the Weyerhaeuser Lumber company.

Mr. Long expressed the belief that Klamath Falls would eventually become a metropolis, and backed the statement with fluent and forceful logic that made his address one of the most outstanding talks of the evening. This city, he said, derived about 50 per cent more benefit from lumbering operations than other large lumber centers, because the lumber produced here was adaptable for such a variety of general purposes, which alone gives Klamath Falls immense advantage.

Speaking of transportation, Mr. Long said that after experience with many of the large railroads of the nation, he believed that the Southern Pacific gives the best service of any road in the United States.

Visitors who are taking part in the beetle war council are: George S. Long, of Tacoma, vice-president and general manager of Weyerhaeuser Timber company; Professor W. J. Chamberlain, Corvallis, Oregon Agricultural College entomologist; J. E. Patterson, Ashland, U. S. Bureau of Entomology; John M. Miller, San Francisco, U. S. Bureau of Entomology; James Evenden, Coos Bay, Aleno, Idaho, U. S. Bureau of Entomology; F. A. Elliott, Salem, State Forester; E. J. Eberly, Salem, assist. state forester; A. J. Jaenecke, Portland, in charge of insect control for U. S. Forest Service; Col. C. S. Chapman, Portland, Western Forestry and Conservation association; George M. Cornwall, Portland, publisher "The Timberman"; Professor Donald Bruce, Berkeley, forestry department University of California; Charles W. King, Weed, forester for Long-Bell Lumber company; Walter G. West, Klamath Agency, superintendent of Klamath Indian Reservation; James A. Howarth, Klamath Agency, U. S. Forester; Wm. C. Hodge, California Forestry committee; Jesse Hall, Sisson, supervisor Shasta National Forest; Gilbert D. Brown, Lakeview, supervisor, Fremont National Forest; N. C. White, Lakeview, ranger, Fremont National Forest; Wm. Durbin, Alturas, Supervisor Modoc National Forest; R. H. Radcliffe, Chiloquin, Modoc lumber company forester; R. P. Box, Weed, Long-Bell Lumber company forester, Frederick Weyerhaeuser, Tacoma, Weyerhaeuser Timber company.

The conference was arranged by J. F. Kimball, local representative of the Weyerhaeuser interests and secretary of the Klamath-Lake counties forest fire association, who with H. H. Ogle, the Weyerhaeuser company's local forester, and a corps of assistants staged yesterday's demonstration, provided transportation and a bountiful luncheon in the woods and proved royal hosts.

Practically all the local timber interests were represented either at the demonstration, last night's banquet or today's conference, and are taking a keen interest in the beetle campaign.

The law passed by the last session of the legislature, providing for districting the infested areas on request of 60 per cent of the owners of the district and the extermination of the beetles by pro rata assessment to cover expenses, will become effective in May and is relied upon as a strong weapon to enforce eradication measures upon timber speculators and others who have shown little interest so far.

OAK FLOORS OVER OLD FLOORS

Oak floors are often found in such costly surroundings that few imagine how little they cost. Very few people realize how much they can get for their money by laying 3/4-inch Oak floors over old floors.

The distinctive modern and artistic appearance of a home, as well as its health and comfort, will be greatly increased by the use of Oak flooring. Oak flooring is rich and cheerful in color, and imparts an air of elegance and refinement to a home.

For permanently artistic floors we recommend Long-Bell Forked Leaf Oak Flooring. It is uniform as to color and texture, perfect as to manufacture and is of superior quality. Its remarkably smooth surface is unsurpassed, and it makes an ideal foundation for a beautiful interior.

Let us know the size of the rooms you wish to floor. You will be surprised and pleased at the figures we can quote you on 3/4-inch Long-Bell Forked Leaf Oak Flooring.
