A HOME IS A HOME WHERE'ER IT MAY BE

*But It Will Be A Superlatively Desirable Home,
If You Build It In Klamath Falls*

Next to the possession of a loving, capable, home-loving wife the desire of every man should be to own a home in which she can happily exercise her home-making capabilities, a place that he and wifey can call home for, after all, there is a volume of truth and meaning in the words taken from that old song, "There is No Place Like Home." Of course, after the wife and the home have been acquired, it seldom takes long for children to appear, and then, if both husband and wife have a spark of local pride in them, they will continue to take an interest in home town affairs, in their home town, and in everything that pertains to community progress, and then they will find themselves in sympathy with everything that is necessary to make their home a real home indeed. This might sound a great deal like counting chickens before they are hatched—this matter of getting a wife and kiddies—but the desire to own a home should not be confined to married folk alone, for old bachelors and old maids, too, also see the desirability of owning a home, and there are any number of people of this description who are helping to make the "world go around." They are doing it right here in Klamath Falls. Practically speaking, the basis of every substantial community are the home owners—renters, while exceptionally desirable people in many instances, cannot be expected to make the town grow and prosper. Their incentive isn't there; that's all there is to it.

Klamath Falls, and Klamath county, are

When You Build That New House

do not overlook the fact that "convenient" electric outlets will go far toward making it a real HOME. A baseboard receptacle here—an additional bracket light there—will pay for their installation many times over in satisfactory service rendered from day to day. Few outlets which are conveniently located are idle—you always need them.

And the cost is comparatively little—your wiring bill is usually the smallest of the construction costs.
