HUNTING FOSSILS. REDLANDS, Cal. Apr. 7.—Paleontologists are preparing for an expedition into the Moreno Hills, near here following announcement that fossils of a two and three-toed horse have been found in a mountainous canyon there. The discovery was made by two prospectors and the fossils, together with bones of a camel of prehistoric origin have been sent to the Smithsonian Institute. These horses, according to William A. Bryan, curator of the Los Angeles Museum of History, Science and Art, are between 100,000 and 200,000 years old, living prior to the Pleistocene age.

NATIONAL PARK SERVICE FIXES OPENING DATES

Herald Washington Bureau WASHINGTON, April 8.—Within a few weeks the exodus of city dwellers to the great outdoors will begin, and the National Park service announces the following dates for the opening of national parks:

- Crater Lake park, Oregon, July 1 to September 30.
General Grant Park, California, May 24 to October 10.
Glacier park, Montana, June 15 to September 15.
Lassen Volcanic park, California, June 1 to September 15.
Mesa Verde park, Colorado, May 1 to November 1.
Mount Ranier, Washington, June 15 to September 15.
Rocky Mountain Park, June 15 to October 1.
Sequoia park, California, May 24 to October 10.
Wind Cave park, South Dakota, June 1 to September 30.
Yellowstone park, Wyoming, June 20 to September 15.
Zion park, Utah, May 15 to November 1.

Open All Year Grand Canyon park, Arizona; Hawaii park, Territory of Hawaii; Hot Springs, Arkansas; Lafayette park, Maine, and Yosemite park, California, are open throughout the year.

Officials of the park service believe that this will be one of the greatest tourist years in the history of the country and particularly will the travel by automobile be even greater than in years past. With the organization of a company with adequate capital to provide travelers with all comforts at Crater Lake, Oregon will begin to get its share of the tourist travel, and this connecting link in the chain of national parks will be as interesting and comfortable as Yellowstone or Yosemite.

With the good roads development in Oregon, these tourists of Yellowstone park, Mount Ranier and Glacier park all naturally will want to see the beauties of Crater Lake.

Yellowstone Has Animals One of the questions more often asked by people contemplating a trip to one of the national parks, is "Where can we see the most wild animals?" and the answer to this question is found in the annual report of the director of the national park service, which tells the tale of animal life in the Yellowstone park section.

The wild herd of buffalo ranging in the Pelican valley contains well over a hundred head. The tame herd, so-called because they are fed hay during the winter months, totals 442 animals. This herd ranges in the Lamar River Valley and tourists who make the side trip to the buffalo farm may easily view the herd.

About 200 mountain or big horn sheep make the Yellowstone their home. The park superintendent considers the antelope situation serious; only 300 head of antelope are left. As antelope will not breed in captivity and zoological gardens cannot maintain the ones they have, it is essential that the Yellowstone herd is wisely cared for if the extermination of the pronghorn is to be prevented.

Elk Are Fewer There are 800 moose in the park, which range in the upper valley of the Yellowstone river and in the Falls River basin in the southwestern corner of the park.

In 1912 there were 50,000 elk in the Yellowstone; today only 23,000 remain. The winter of 1918-19 was reported as the severest which the wild animals ever had to face. The heavy snows of 1918 forced the elk outside the park limits in search of food and thousands were killed by hunters, while many more died from exposure and starvation. If the elk herds are to be preserved, the superintendent recommends a restricted hunting season in Montana and more winter feeding of hay.

Deer, once so numerous, now number only 1200 mule deer and but 100 of the white tail species.

Beaver are reported so numerous that there is practically no way of estimating their number. Almost every stream has its colonies.

Woodchucks Numerous Woodchucks, while considered an insignificant animal in the park, are unusually numerous and greatly attract the attention of tourists.

Porcupines are numerous all over the park plateau and are often seen. Jack rabbits are quite common about Mammoth Hot Springs and Tower Falls and the snowshoe rabbit is an abundant inhabitant of the forested areas. Among other animals often seen are pine squirrels, three different species of chipmunks, two species of ground squirrels, muskrats, conies, badgers in open country and five species of bats.

Canada lynx, bobcat, fox, wolverines and fishers occur in the park but are rarely seen even by the park rangers.

Not Often Seen Otter, pine marten, mink, skunk, two species of weasels, flying squirrels, woodrats, pocket gophers, jumping mice, nine other species of mice and three different shrews are common everywhere, but not often seen by tourists because most of these animals are active only at night.

Coyotes, wolves and mountain lions are the most destructive of the carnivorous animals and are hunted and trapped each year by the park rangers. In 1919, 107 coyotes and twenty-eight wolves were destroyed.

As the park bears attract the greatest interest, it is interesting to learn that there are over 100 black bears in the park. Black, brown and cinnamon bears are all included in the term "black" as scientists have agreed that each is but a different color phase of the same species.

Last Grizzly Stronghold. The superintendent reports that there is no reason why the black bear should not become more abundant. It is also estimated that there are at least forty grizzly bears, Yellowstone providing the last stronghold for the silver tips.

There are an even 200 different species of birds listed as occurring in the park, although only sixty-five are common and likely to be noted by tourists. Hawks, owls, osprey, mallards, geese and pelicans are unusually tame and easily studied because of the absolute protection given them under the national park.

In 21 years no fewer than 230 slight shocks of earthquake have been recorded in the British Isles, an average of almost exactly one a month.

A Message to the People of Oregon By Governor Olcott

IT IS with pleasure I take the opportunity thus afforded me to urge upon the people of the state the importance of rallying around Oregon industries by the purchase of Oregon products.

The prosperity of all of us is very closely linked with the prosperity of such industries. When Oregon people invest in Oregon industries by the simple method of buying their products, they are making an investment which cannot help but bring large returns to themselves.

I sincerely trust that this campaign to educate the people of the state into the knowledge that the purchase of Oregon products means a greater and better Oregon for each and every one of us will meet with success from the start.
