

At the Theaters

THE STAR

Charles Ray, the popular screen star, will be seen Sunday and Monday at the Star theatre in "The Old Swimm'n' Hole." It is said to be one of the most appealing pictures in which he has yet appeared and to call forth more laughs and tears to the reel than any other of his past successes.

It is a First National attraction. Riley's verse is interpreted with such artistry as to both charm the thousands of admirers of the Hoosier poet and to win new converts to his ballads of boyhood's happy days.

From the opening scene to the close of the story is brimful of heart interest. Charles Ray, as Ezra, is 'just plain boy,' wholesome but mischievous. He would rather fish and spend his time at the old swimmin' hole than study. He loves Myrtle, the flirtatious belle of the country school but after bringing him to his knees and robbing him of all his treasures she jilts him for his best friend, "Skinny." However, there is happiness awaiting him in the loving grasp of the ever faithful Esther.

It is skillfully directed and so wonderfully acted as to obviate the necessity for a single sub-title.

'He's tight' and he can't dance.

What more sweeping condemnation could be heaped on a young man by a beautiful girl? When Jenny of the dance halls finds her old "hick sweetie" rich but stingy, she does her best to jar him loose from some extra "change." But he's "Burglar Proof" until the beautiful Laura comes on the scene—and then, ah, THEN!

It is a Paramount comedy drama. Bryant Washburn is the star and Lois Wilson, his leading woman. At the Star theatre tonight.

THE MONDALE

"The Italian," George Beban's big picture which is coming to the Mondale Sunday, has drawn favorable comment from all the big film critics of the country. A few examples:

New York Tribune—"The film is of the sort to lift you out of your seat. Mr. Beban's own work being of that vividly expressive sort which is graphically effective on the screen."
Brooklyn Eagle—"The story abounds in thrills, tears, sighs and sobs."
New York Herald—"If there was a dry eye in the house it must have been a glass one."

Salt Lake City Tribune—"The creation of the Italian himself may be regarded as wholly Mr. Beban's work; and it is a masterly performance."
Herald, Louisville, Ky.—"There comes a splendid climax in which Mr. Beban reaches the limits of the emotional acting."
New York Evening Sun—"The film story has been produced with such care and ability that it stands up alongside the spoken drama as a compeller of tears and laughter."
Philadelphia Public Ledger—"A photoplay such as 'The Italian' is going to do something for the spoken drama that the artistic theatre of our day is impotent to achieve."
Brooklyn Standard Union—"An unqualified success."

THE LIBERTY

One short week after her last appearance in New York society, Alice found herself heels over head in a Central American revolution. And one night, while trying to escape from the rebel garrison with a message, she was captured by the commander-in-chief of the enemy, a dashing young fellow named Calderon, and held as a prisoner in his home.

What followed makes a story full of struggle between a man's and a woman's will, of romance under a soft, southern moon, and of thrills and excitement aplenty.

Constance Binney, as the American girl, is absolutely delightful, and "something different," which plays at the Liberty Theatre tonight certainly lives up to its title.

"Tiger's Cub," a picturization of the famous novel by William Fox presents his dazzling star Pearl White, is coming to the Liberty Theatre tomorrow.
