DON'T STOP THE WORK

The move to postpone the paving of portions of High, Washington, Sixth and Seventh streets, is a mistake. Now is the time for carrying on public work of this kind. It furnishes employment for the idle and helps to prevent the business stagnation that paralyzes a community during times like these. Postponement until next year will probably call for higher prices. It will, if done next year, have to carry its part of this year's overhead. Labor will probably cost more, efficiency will be less and there will be no chance of buying the materials entering into the work at a less figure than they can be bought now.

But above these considerations is the necessity for furnishing employment to those who have been idle most of the winter. There is a real need that something be done and done now. Klamath Falls should not be put in a position where thoughts of a bread line or soup kitchen should have to be considered. Public work should take the place of such a program.

In addition to the work, the postponement of which is being considered, High and Cedar streets should be paved this year. The property owners are in favor of the work and nothing should arise that would interfere with its completion.

RUN IN EDITORIAL COLUMN...

THE SOLDIER BONUS BILL

(That the readers of this paper may become thoroughly familiar with all the facts connected with the so-called Soldiers' bonus bill. The Herald will publish a series of articles by Don J. Belding, setting forth the various features of this measure that the people of the state will pass judgment on next month. It should be fully understood that under the loan feature of the measure, the money is simply loaned to the boys; that it is advanced only up to 75% of the value of the property in which it is invested and that it will be paid back, with interest, under the amortization plan provided in the bill. A thorough understanding of the new line provisions of the bill means the removal of any serious opposition to it.)

Mr. Citizen:

Four years ago today you were watching the flower of Klamath's manhood and womanhood being mobilized for a great cause, the salvation of world democracy. More than four hundred souls rallied to the national standard and swore to defend her contentions and demands though their lives be the sacrifice. Some paid the Supreme Sacrifice; Some were maimed for life; some were wounded; Some were broken in health; but all suffered financially and all suffered hardships and privations which, unless you were thoroughly familiar with the conditions, knew little of.

These service men and women returned. They did their duty and you were proud of them. Yet the greatest majority of these men and women have been struggling ever since they returned to gain a foothold which they sacrificed and lost when they joined the colors. Stop one minute and think what it would have meant to you to be taken away from your business or farms from 19 to 24 months.

These service men are now asking that you support a bonus and loan measure that will increase the value of your property, mean more homes and farm buildings, in Klamath County, and will cost you a maximum of $1.00 per $1000 assessed valuation.

Klamath county ex-service men with six or seven exceptions have signified their intention to take advantage of the loan feature of the bonus. Many service men are purchasing lots on which to build their homes in Klamath Falls. This home building will mean more prosperity and more business for you.

Will you support us and vote 302 Yes on June 7, 1921? If not we would like to know why.

The high quality of success that follows advertising in the classified column of The Herald is due to the intelligence of its readers.

At the Theaters

THE STAR

Dorothy Gish's latest picture, "Flying Pat," is the merry story of a young husband who conducted a nationwide search for his runaway wife and found her in his own kitchen. It will be the chief attraction at the Star theatre tonight.

In the role of the bride, Miss Gish is urged by her screen husband to choose a "career" for herself and decides to become a flyer. But this leads to complications, when her teacher turns out to be of a flirtatious disposition. Following an accident in the air, there is a smash-up at home, and the bride leaves in haste and tears. However, the world gives her the cold shoulder, and she comes back to her own kitchen, disgusted as a cook. Some laughable complications lead to the newlyweds' reconciliation.

Miss Gish is supported in "Flying Pat" by James Rennie and a competent cast. Richard Jones directed the picture, which is a Paramount.

All three vaudeville numbers presented at the Star theatre last night received more applause and proved that they were far ahead of any vaudeville acts that have been presented here for a long time. The opening act which is an electrical posing novelty, is something new, beautiful and a novelty. The Hawaiian Duo give some real Hawaiian music, the kind that the public enjoys. Oldfield and Drew have an unusually clever singing and talking act and furnished all the laughs necessary for a real evening's enjoyment. Tonight the same performance will be repeated except a change in picture, when Dorothy Gish will be seen in "Flying Pat," the greatest picture she has ever made.

THE LIBERTY

The announcement that William Farnum, the noted Fox star, is playing at the Liberty Theatre in "The Rainbow Trail," should be welcome news to every man, woman or child who loves virile action in a superb story. Those who have seen Farnum in this film version of Zane Grey's remarkable novel will wish to see him again. All others should not fail.

to see him during the forthcoming engagement.

Zane Grey never has been surpassed, if equaled, as a writer of Western romances which combine in equal degree literary class, opulence of imagination and virile action. No picture in which William Farnum ever appeared has been more successful or presented this talented actor to greater advantage. He has a dual role of extraordinary power.

"The Rainbow Trail," it will be recalled, is a sequel of "Riders of the Purple Sage."

THE MONDALE

Lillian Gish, who will be seen in "Tiger Girl," adapted from "The Lily and the Rose," by Granville Warwick, which will open at the Mondale Theatre next Friday and Saturday, is the little star who will live in the hearts of movie fans forever by her clever interpretation of the tragic role.

Miss Gish was born in Springfield, O., Oct. 14, 1896. She first made her debut when only six years old in "The Little Red Schoolhouse." She then became a pupil in a Springfield dancing school, and her next engagement was as one of the fairy dancers with Sarah Bernhardt, then making one of her American tours. After two seasons with Mme. Bernhardt she came to New York to finish her dancing lessons.

There Lillian renewed the acquaintance of Mary Pickford, whom she met while on the legitimate stage. While visiting the studio she was engaged by D. W. Griffith, who was attracted by her natural poise and power of expression. This was about six years ago. Such rapid strides did Miss Gish make in her new field of endeavor that she soon gained fame as one of the greatest emotional actresses of the silent drama.

BRANCH LINE PAYS

DORRIS, May 25.—All along the branch line between Weed and Klamath Falls considerable freight is being hauled. The Southern Pacific has increased its freight service to one train per day, but even with the late increase owing to the lumber and logs coming in from the various lumber camps, it is proving heavy work.
