THE SOLDIERS BONUS BILL

(That the readers of this paper may become thoroughly familiar with all the facts connected with the co-called Soldiers' bonus bill. The Herald will publish a series of articles by Don Belding, setting forth the various features of this measure that the people of the state will pass judgment on next month. It should be fully understood that under the loan feature of the measure, the money is simply loaned to the boys; that it is advanced only up to 75 per cent of the value of the property in which it is invested and that it will be paid back, with interest, under the amortization plan provided in the bill. A thorough understanding of the new line provisions of the bill means the removal of any serious opposition to it.)

A gentleman (German by descent), remarked the other day that if these ex-soldiers would go to work and quit trying to tease the soft spot feelings of the Oregon tax payers, the state would be a whole lot better off. He also stated emphatically that he would not vote for the bonus bill.

As pitiful as it may seem that such people exist, it may be well to point out the exact amount of money that the bonus measure (302 YES) will mean to the tax-payers of Oregon.

The loan feature should cost the state very little, if anything, and indirectly should prove of great profit and benefit to the state. Putting the matter simply, the state borrows money by issuing bonds carrying 5 or 5 1/2 per cent interest, depending upon the bond market at the time of issuance. The state re loans this money to ex-service men, taking as security first mortgages on real estate and loaning up to value of 75 per cent and no amount exceeding $3,000.00. The service man pays 4 per cent. The difference in interest rates would have to be absorbed by the state for a period.

But the loans to the service men will be converted gradually year by year to 6 per cent loans as the service men sell out. This interest rate will be more than the state pays for the money and at the end of the thirty year period, should about equalize the amount absorbed at first by the state.

It is estimated that the cash bonus which many of the men will take advantage of will cost the state $1,000,000. If a man takes the cash bonus he can never take the loan.

To cover the $1,000,000 cash bonus maximum and the interest rate difference and running expenses of the administration handling the details the legislature provided a tax assessment of one mill only.

It means then simply if you own $1000 worth of property you are required to pay $1 per year, if found necessary, to meet the provisions of the cash bonus and loan. The general business prosperity following the placing into circulation of millions of dollars cash will of course warrant an expenditure of a much greater amount by the tax payer for the good resulting.

FOUR DEAD IN IRISH BATTLE

CORK, Ireland, May 31.—Four soldiers were killed, two mortally wounded and 12 slightly injured when they were attacked this morning while marching from the Youghal barracks to the rifle range.

As the column neared the golf links, mines in the roadway were exploded, bombs hurled and a fierce rifle fire opened on them. Despite the surprise, the attackers were repulsed and driven off by the unharmed.

JACKSON IS CLEARED

In circuit court Saturday afternoon a jury returned a verdict of not guilty in the case of the State of Oregon against Cecil Jackson, charged with assault with a dangerous weapon upon the person of J. D. Woodley.

citizens on board, citizens our country is pledged to protect in their lives and property no matter where situated in the world, then we went to war. It was a terrible war. God forbid that we ever experience another such war. Who can say, however, because unfortunately the actions of the people of the world are controlled more by feeling and emotion than by reason.

"Let the deeds and teachings of the ex-service men and the veterans of all of our wars be a stern lesson on in loyalty to our country."

"Memory, blest gift, is ours to recall at will, and in this little hour, let us close with this sentiment to our soldier dead.

"Sunlight on valley, mountain and stream,
We live in the bright world with love and a dream,
But the sunlight will die in a shadowy sky,
Life is only good morning, good-night and good-bye,
Yet in veterans' rest beyond the blue sky,
Twill again be good morning and never good-bye."

The next speaker upon the program was Rev. Father Molloy whose address in part was as follows:

"This large and representative gathering illustrates a fact that very properly, on this day and in this place, merits our attention. In the study of purely human affairs we might go as far as to say that it is the great outstanding fact. Its appeal is evident for just, as—despite all distractions—the people of Klamath Falls obeyed its compelling force and assembled here this morning, so all over the world, wherever the flag is honored, Americans—in answer to the same appeal—have gathered to do as we do this morning. And this fact, this great fact, is this—that when all is said and done the first place in the affections and love of the citizens of a country is held by the soldiers."

"Nor is this unseemly or at variance with the objects of our civilization. In the last analysis everything that we prize depends entirely for its permanence on the able-bodied males who can fight for their rights. It is not a boast that we make but all elements of our citizenship should remember that the only class in which the right of suffrage is inherent is that class that is physically able to shoulder a musket and mentally ready to battle until death for honor and country."

"Now though there are many sad and touching features to a ceremony of this kind yet it really is not a feeling of sympathy that has called out all the veterans here today. Of course they are moved at the thought of the sorrowing mothers but their reason tells them that war is always an uncertain thing with grim possibilities ahead for everyone. It is a man's game; and some lose, and some win. The impelling, indeed the compelling force that has marshalled all these soldiers around the graves of their dead comrades is that on this day all true Americans must, as Lincoln said, consecrate themselves again to the ideals of America."

"So we now with bared heads formally and solemnly consecrate ourselves to the work before us. Liberty and Freedom and Honor—these are the things that we prize. We pledge our lives to fight for these, and we swear to God over the ashes of our dead defenders that nothing matters, success or failure, if when we die those who know can say that we died in battle and fell with our faces toward the foe."

Spectators along the route remarked upon the ease with which Grand Marshall Applegate handled his columns; the led horse, with the late Captain J. P. Lee, missing from the saddle, the musical selections by the local band; the marching of the children from the Sacred Heart Academy and public schools under teachers' supervision; the soldierly bearing of the Boy Scouts; and the general appearance of the Ladies Auxiliary, Red Cross and Army nurses, American Legion, Spanish-American War veterans, Ladies Auxiliary, Red Cross and Indian War veterans.

There were many favorable comments passed upon the parade but considerable criticism arose over the failure of many people to signify honor the United States flag as it was carried past by an uncovering of the head, and also by the lack of general flag raising over the public and private residences in the city.

PORTLAND MAN HAD SUFFERED 40 YEARS — SAYS HE FEELS LIKE NEW MAN SINCE TAKING TANLAC.

"For forty years," said J. C. Doonika, of 1241 1/2 Macadam Road, Portland, "I was all run down and under weight. No matter what I took I couldn't get above a hundred and thirty pounds but Tanlac has actually built me up to a hundred and fifty, which is more than I ever weighed in my life."

"My appetite wasn't up to what it should have been and I didn't get the proper nourishment and strength from my food. I couldn't rest well at night and would get up in the morning all tired out and with scarcely any energy at all."

"Well, sir, Tanlac has given me a splendid appetite and has actually built me up twenty pounds in weight. I sleep good and sound every night, and I am feeling so fine in every way that I believe I could outrun any man of my age in Portland. Why, I simply feel like a new man and Tanlac will always get a good recommendation from me."
