STAR THEATRE

What would you do if you could be a child again? Peep O'Day (the principle character in Goldwyn's picturisation of Irvin S. Cobb's famous story, "Boys Will Be Boys," with Will Rogers in the stellar role, doesn't exactly become a boy again, for his hair remains grizzled and his figure bent, but he lives the boyhood he never had. It is a heart-warming comedy which is at the Star theatre tonight. It's the perfect Will Rogers' role—human character, human emotion and human humor interpreted by the humanest actor on the screen.

Advertising pays. Try it and see.
