

The Office Cat

BY JUNIUS

Open Sesame!
Doc. Noel's dental patients are wondering what freak law passed by the last legislature might have made it a penal offense for the victim in the chair to refuse to bare his molars and bicusps to the operator's gaze and forceps. For the doc, is constantly murmuring: "Open in the name of the law." Seems to be a pet phrase that he has acquired some where lately.

Meow! Meow! Meow!
I was down in the mouth,
And was blue as could be;
All out of sorts, and
Felt like bumping a tree.

Tried all the doctors,
And stayed full of dope;
Finally they told me that
There wasn't any hope.

Unless I quit worrying,
And throw business aside,
Absorb humor and merriment
And stretch out my hide.

That my race would soon be over,
And the world be rid of one;
If I didn't take no frolicking
Get out and have some fun.

But chance I began reading,
The good old Herald daily;
For long I was feeling better
And acting rather gaily.

I ran across a colyum,
They call the "Office Cat,"
That hands them out red hot
Right off the bat.

I laughed and I laughed
Till I thought I would bust;
And then I laughed some more
And I know that I must.

Have excited all the neighbors,
For out of every door;
They came running in to see
If I was going to laugh some more.

I have gained twenty pounds
Lost my grouch and the blues
Feeling younger every day,
Even shine my shoes.

From now on the doctors,
Can all go to scat;
I will take my medicine
Through the daily "Office Cat."
—A Longfellow

"Stop Have You Left Anything?"
Many hotels throughout the country have signs, reading as above posted on the inside of the door, in all bedrooms. A departing guest at a Chicago hotel, added to this—"Stop Have You Left Anything Left?"

A Matter of Diet
A negro employed at one of the movie studios in Los Angeles was drafted by a director to do a novel comedy scene with a lion.
"You go into this bed," ordered the director, "and we'll bring the lion in and put him in bed with you. It will be a scream."
"Put a lion in bed with me!" yelled the negro. "No sah! Not a-tall! I quite right here and now."
"But," protested the director, "this lion won't hurt you. This lion was brought up on milk."
"So was I brung up on milk," wailed the negro, "but I eats meat now."

The Obvious Question
A reporter was misinformed, and the obituary of a live man appeared in the Daily Tribune. Of course, the man was more or less indignant about the error, and rushing to the phone, called the editor. "I see in your dirty old sheet that I am dead," he snorted.

"Yes, replied the editor, "Where are you speaking from?"—Candy News.

Doc Wright says when a man visits his old home town after an absence of years he cannot understand why all his friends look so old while he is as young as ever.

A Hollow Victory
A thirsty individual called at a hotel in North Wales and asked for a glass of beer. When he tasted it, he asked:
"What do you call this?"
"Victory ale," was the reply.
"My goodness!" he exclaimed.
"Then we lost the war after all!"—Ideas.

PEACE RESOLUTION IS READY, SAY LEADERS
WASHINGTON, June 25.—Terms of the compromise agreement on the Knox-Porter resolutions to end the state of war with Germany and Austria have been settled, republican leaders said today. Formal acceptance is expected at a conference tomorrow.

RAIL LABOR BOARD'S WAGE CUT ORDER IS EXTENDED
CHICAGO, June 25.—United States railroad labor board today extended its wage reduction order, effective July 1st, to practically every large railroad in the country. No change from the 12 per cent reduction granted 105 carriers June 1st was made by today's decision. The new order affects 210 roads.

When a young widow asks a man whether he has his life insured he's awfully slow if he doesn't take the hint.
