Girls of Domestic Science Class Take Baby Girl to Raise

FORT COLLINS, Colo., July 11.—Six girl students of the domestic science department of the Colorado State Agricultural college here have a real live baby girl, named Edith, for "experimental" work in their "laboratory" courses, the baby being part of the "equipment" in the domestic science department.

Baby Edith, a few weeks ago, was sick, fretful and a forlorn bit of humanity. Her mother had exhausted her knowledge of babies without success when Miss Inga K. Allison, in charge of the domestic science department, offered to take Baby Edith for six weeks and try out scientific methods of baby-care. The baby is part of the "equipment" at the "practice house," a cottage where young women students learn to "keep house" by doing it. Six young women wanted to learn the intricacies of infants, and they are the "mothers" of Baby Edith. Miss Mary C. Blodgett, professor in charge of the "practice house," looks after Baby Edith's rations, and sees that they are properly balanced and contain the right number of calories, proteins, starches, etc.

Instead of being fed only when she cries, Baby Edith gets seven ounces of carefully prepared food every three hours. She is thriving on the scientific treatment and feeding.

Each of the six young women students will have full charge of Baby Edith for one week. During this time the other five are "associate mothers." Baby Edith's "mothers" are Miss Elizabeth McConnell of Denver, Miss Ruth Peasley of Fort Collins, Miss Cleone White of Fort Collins, Miss Dorothy Peasley of Lethbridge, Alberta, Canada, Miss Jessie Cherry of Kansas City and Miss Bessie Reuter of Aspen, Colorado. "Baby Edith's" real mother comes to visit her frequently.

Reed, head of the department of physical education and hygiene at the University of Chicago, are expected to address the opening meeting, to be held on the evening of July 19.

Big Gain in Family All of a Sudden

"Gee, Matt, I didn't know you had a big family like this," exclaimed a friend of Matt Egan, manager of the Algoma Lumber company yesterday afternoon as he stepped up to the Egan auto and scanned the faces of five youngsters. Matt got red and stammered and mumbled an explanation, but his embarrassment was so great that his friend misunderstood his confusion. "Oh, that's all right, old scout, I've got seven myself. Glad to see you getting up in my class." But it was all a mistake. They were just borrowed. The party was made up of a mother and five children who were walking to town and were given a ride by the lumber man. That is why the register at the local hotel does not contain the notation "Matt Egan and family."
